WALL ST. CLOSE

Today

The R-101 Lesson.
A New Preparedness.
15,050,000 Jews.
Foolish, Weepy Wall St.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE FRENCH government declares a day of mourning for the loss of the R-101. With that news comes a cable from Berlin, telling of another air disaster, six passengers and two members of the crew burned to death in a Lufthansa plane bound from Berlin to Vienna.

THESE LOSSES are appalling, but they will not intimidate real men, or check aviation.

Even the young robin that flutters from the nest and is bruised does not give up flying.

THE LESSON of the R-101 disaster is plain enough.

It is folly to build giant flying bags of cloth, that will absorb, as that unfortunate ship did, more than 16,000 pounds of rain water when already heavily loaded.

It is preposterous to run such a ship into a storm, as was done in this case, when it might have run away from the storm.

DIRIGIBLES SHOULD be made, as one was recently made by the United States Government, setting an admirable example, all metal clad.

Such a metal gas bag can be kept absolutely free from leaks, so that even hydrogen gas might be safely used. It is not exposed to danger from lightning, since it offers no resistance to the passage of electric current from sky to earth.

ADMIRAL MOFFETT, saying that this country possesses unlimited supplies of non-explosive helium gas for dirigibles, deplores our law that forbids exportation of it. He urges us to let European nations have that helium gas; but that suggestion calls for careful decision.

If the gas were used to send here dirigibles loaded with TNT, we would better keep the helium gas to ourselves.

ON THE OTHER hand, helium gas will be of no importance in a few years, when airplanes cross the ocean in six hours. We might gladly supply hostile European nations with gas bags, because, at least, you could hit those with anti-aircraft guns. You will never be able to hit the swift-flying machines that will come.

Our only hope is in being able to say to other nations:

"Attack us, and we shall destroy you and all your cities. Come here and we'll prove to you that we can do it."

IT IS A PLEASURE to read in President Hoover's address to the American Legion:

"We must sustain a preparedness for defense that is impregnable, yet that contains no threat of aggression."

There is no threat of aggression in being prepared. The history of this country proves that it will not engage in the piracy of war unless forced to do so.

"WE HAVE ALWAYS relied on our citizen army, and never relied in vain," says the President.

That is true.

But before gunpowder and bullets came, all rulers of Europe relied on their armored nobles and leather-jacketed foot soldiers. They had to put aside the armor and build fortifications when bullets came.

WE MUST NOW rely on flying machines and submarines. "A citizen army" couldn't do much against a flock of airplanes dropping TNT, or against submarines, destroying our commerce, invading our harbors.

THERE ARE, on earth, about 1,600,000,000 human beings. Of these, according to the American Jewish year book, 15,050,000 are Jews.

Three years ago, latest figures, there were 4,228,000 in the United States, 1,765,000 of them in New York City.

Three million live in Palestine, Arabia, Iraq and Syria. There are only 300,000 in Great Britain, 3,686 in the Irish Free State, 4,000 in Spain, more than 500,000 in Africa.

FOOLISH VICTIMS of race and religious prejudice should consider what the Jews have accomplished, and are accomplishing, in this world, in proportion to their number.

They are less than one per cent of the total population. In the most prosperous part of the world, New York City, they represent 16.67 per cent of the total.

They formed a considerable proportion of the population of Portugal and Spain when those countries were prosperous.

WALL STREET reminds you of a baby with the colic. Try as you may, you can't soothe it, or stop its weeping. It reminds you, also, of the watch at the mad hatter's tea party, which would not keep time, although "the best butter" was put in its works.

Wall Street gentlemen tell each other, with icy smiles, that everything looks "very good, indeed," then because some pirate sells their stocks short, they follow suit, and sell also.

What are those best financial minds doing at present? Taking a vacation?

INCOME TAX authorities allowed Jouett Shouse, chairman of the National Democratic committee, to deduct from taxable income amounts bet and lost on horse races. The department, however, will not allow him to

MRS. VICTOR BRUCE

BRITISH WOMAN FLIER CRASHES

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(INS.)—The Hon Mrs. Victor Bruce, holder of a number of automobile speed and distance records, who was forced down on a solo flight from here to Tokio, was found bruised and exhausted today in a desolate spot in the Persian hills, according to a Central News dispatch from Jask.

The report indicated Mrs. Bruce was not seriously injured, although suffering from exposure. Her plane was not badly damaged.

Mrs. Bruce had been missing since Sunday, when she was seen flying over Henjam, on the Persian Gulf.

Judge Watson Weds New Orleans Widow

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Albert L. Watson, of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Effie Woodville, of New Orleans, La., were married here in a quiet ceremony at the Ritz Carlton Hotel.

Judge and Mrs. Watson met on a cruise of the West Indies a year ago. They plan to repeat the holiday this winter. Judge Watson is 52, a widower, and a resident of Scranton, Pa. Mrs. Watson is 40 and was formerly the wife of Warren Woodville, a New Orleans attorney. They will make their home in Scranton.

N. Y. Girl Marries Scots Guard Officer

MARLOW, Buckinghamshire, England, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—William F. Kenny, millionaire New York contractor, announced to the Associated Press that his daughter, Alice Kenny, and Capt. Percy Lawson-Johnston were quietly married here last Saturday.

Capt. Lawson-Johnston is an officer in the Scots Guard Reserve, one of Britain's crack military units. He is the youngest brother of Lord Luke, of Pavenham.

WASSON CHARGES DISCLOSED

VOTE DEVICE INJUNCTION REFUSED

Court Denies Preliminary Writ Pending Airing of Case Before Full Bench

Judge James R. Macfarlane today refused a preliminary injunction sought in an attempt to block the county's $1,000,000 vting machine contract with the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, of Baltimore.

The court held that "the position of counsel for the plaintiff is not so clear as to justify an injunction."

WILL AIR CASE

A final opinion will be given by the whole court after a trial of the issue at which the entire controversy will be thoroughly threshed out, according to Judge Macfarlane's opinion.

In his opinion Judge Macfarlane said:

"It is not claimed that the Poole Engineering and Machine Company was not the lowest and best bidder in the legal significance of the term. Several questions of law arise out of the documentary evidence, all of which appears in the bill."

The question at issue, the court holds, is whether injury to the rights of the taxpayers is imminent, and if committed, irreparable. An injunction to hold the case in its present status is not necessary, the opinion sets forth, as the full number of machines contracted for are not required before July 1, 1931, under admitted facts as to extension of time for delivery.

GUTHRIE CHARGE

At the hearing on the petition for a preliminary injunction yesterday, Francis D. Guthrie, complainant, hld that the couny commissioners, treasurer and controller had not followed the regulations for competitive bidding in awarding the contract to the Poole company.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern today informed his fellow members of the board that the Poole company had promised to have a machine completed and delivered within 30 days. He said:

"If at the expiration of the 30 days a machine is not delivered, then I expec to say just what I think of the whole voting machine proposition."

Pinchot Forces Denounce Bolt In Philadelphia

By E. L. RAWLEY,
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—Rumblings of approaching warfare on the battle-scarred Philadelphia political front were plainly heard today as Pinchot leaders leaped into the breach created by the defection of Charles Hall and State Senator Samuel Salus, and planted the banners of party regularity.

Hall and Salus, rated as Vare lieutenants and powers in the political world here, openly announced their allegiance to John Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal gubernatorial candidate, today. Hall's announcement being accompanied by a bitter denunciation of Gifford Pinchot, regular Republican nominee and Hemphill's opponent.

HOLD UP WIFE OF MAYOR

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—The crime wave reached brazen heights today with the robbery of the mayor's wife, Mrs. William Hale Thompson, in the very doorway of her Gold Coast home.

She was stripped of jewels valued at approximately $20,000.

She was so shaken by the experience as to become hysterical.

Her policeman-chauffeur was robbed of his star and his revolver, and narrowly escaped a bullet death. The three thugs who held them up escaped.

Mrs. Thompson had attended the theater with her sister, Mrs. William Burkhardt.

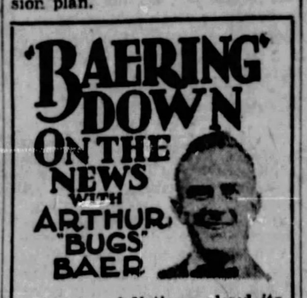
Franklin Schools Add More Room

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 7.—Ten more rooms will be added to the city's school system when the reconditioned Ninth street building is put into service October 13. An addition to the building of four rooms is nearing completion. Meanwhile, pupils of that district are being cared for at the Fourth street building on a double session plan.



League of Nations closed its Geneva session with prayers for peace in the wrong language.

Brazilian rebels, Soviet, Spanish republicans, Cubans, Arab nationalists, and other nations too important to mention, have all resumed their rough, manly ways.

The League should stop requesting peace and be satisfied with an armistice.

It has builded its tower of babble, speaking every tongue including the pickled.

Ten years ago we wrote a line that has since been credited to many others. That line was that the United States had never lost a war nor won a peace conference.

But the League still continues to move from city to city, thinking that a change of climate will atone for an absence of reason.

Like a man in a lunch wagon, the League diplomat is eating, but he ain't going anywhere.

NORTH SIDE BANDIT PAIR GET $1,800

President of Cleaning Firm Crowded to Curb, Robbed; Pair Flees in Stolen Car

Max A. Moses, 43, of 5731 Beacon street, president of the American Coat and Apron Company, was held up and robbed of $1,100 cash and $700 in checks in West North avenue, near Allegheny avenue, today by two young men, who escaped in a large touring car.

The bandits' car, bearing license 57-U-6, was reported seen being driven rapidly toward McKeesport several hours after the holdup. State police joined in the hunt. The machine, belonging to D. J. Kennedy, of the Schenley Apartments, president of the D. J. Kennedy Company, builders supplies, was stolen shortly after 8 a. m. today from in front of the Schenley garage, Bennott street, police reported.

CROWDED TO CURB

Moses was driving in the same coupe in which Abe Silverberg, treasurer of the company, was held up and robbed of a $2,364 payroll last June 11 near the company's plant in Chateau street, when, near the Munn Lumber Company plant, the touring car crowded him into the curb.

Beside him on the seat was a wallet containing the cash and checks which Moses was taking to the Providence Trust Company, Ohio and Chestnut streets, for deposit.

POINTS GUN

One of the bandits, leveling a revolver at Moses' head, commanded:

"Hand that wallet over and get into our car."

Moses handed over the wallet, but instead of entering the bandits' car leaped from his machine on the side next to the sidewalk and started to run.

One of the robbers began pursuit, but abandoned the chase when several pedestrians appeared. He dashed back to his car and sped away.

LINKS IN PARK OPEN OCT. 18

With city and county officials, judges and others interested as their guests, the county commissioners are to open the golf course in South Park on Saturday, October 18.

An automobile caravan will carry the visitors on an inspection trip of the park.

Commissioner E. V. Babcock suggested the formal opening, and proposed that the visitors be entertained with a "little dinner of hot dogs or something like that."

Quoth Commissioner McGovern:

"I am for everything but the county paying for the hot dogs. Commissioner Babcock should set them up."

Babcock declared:

"I'll be glad to do it."

Babcock explained that, although the drouth burned out the grass on the course this summer, the fall rains have put it in shape for play.

MacDonald's Foe Won to His Cause

LEGION PARADE LED BY HEROES

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—(INS.)—America's Legion host tramped the historic streets of Boston today.

Seventy-five thousand strong, the Legionnaires of the nation, and uniformed units of the Legion Auxiliary, furnished 2,000,000 cheering spectators one of the most inspiring and spectacular peace-time demonstrations in the history of the country.

Two World War heroes—Gen. John J. Pershing, who commanded the A. E. F. on the Western Front, and Gen. Henry Gouraud, one-armed idol of France—rode near the head of the column, which was 28 miles in length and moved for more than seven hours by a given point over a four-mile route.

Mother of 6 Shot, Policeman Arrested

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(INS.)—Shot by a policeman said to have been drunk, Mrs. Angelina Mantione, 53, widowed mother of six children, was believed dying today. Her assailant, patrolman Calvin Sayers, 27, was held and may face a murder charge.

According to police investigators, Sayers walked on to the porch of the Mantione home and when ordered away by the widow drew his gun and shot the woman four times. He was intoxicated when taken into custody today, police said.

BAR SCORES FORMER JUDGE

Davidson Estate Mishandled, Report Declares; Court Bares Charges in Case

Former Judge Henry C. Wasson was guilty of "evasiveness, equivocation and perjury and direct violation of his oath of office as an attorney," according to a report filed by the Board of Governance of the Pennsylvania Bar Association recommending his disbarment. This was revealed today when the Supreme Court sitting here lifted the impounding order which has kept records of the case secret since the disbarment recommendation several months ago.

Wasson's appeal from the recommendation was filed today with the Supreme Court without oral argument by Attorney Oliver K. Eaton.

CALVERT CASE NEXT

After the Supreme Court hands down its decision in the Wasson case the Board of Governance will then take up disbarment proceedings against Attorney George H. Calvert, it was learned today. Calvert suffered a nervous breakdown, but is understood to have recovered. He has been active recently in social affairs.

Disbarment of Wasson and Calvert was asked by Martha K. and Blanche Hibbard, sisters of Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson, widow of Frederick Davidson, former president of the Union Drawn Steel Company of Beaver Falls. They charged the two attorneys, who were a committee for Mrs. Davidson's $3,000,000 estate, with gross maladministration of the estate. Mrs. Davidson was adjudged mentally incompetent to handle her affairs. She lives in a mansion near Gleashaw under constant medical attention.

"CAUSED LOSSES"

CARDS ARRIVE IN PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—The St. Louis Cardinals, champions of the National League, arrived here shortly after noon today for the sixth battle of the World Series with the Philadelphia Athletics, champions of the American League, at Shibe Park tomorrow afternoon.

The Cardinal Special arrived four hours ahead of the train carrying the Athletics, who are not scheduled to reach their home town until 6 o'clock.

Trailing by one game and faced with the prospect of dropping the world championship if they lose tomorrow, the Cardinals were confident that Bill Hallahan, star southpaw, who stopped the A's in St. Louis, would be able to repeat tomorrow and thereby extend the series into the seventh game.

The A's can retain their title by winning tomorrow's game which would give them a record of four out of six games in the 1930 series.

Brewery Raided, Mouthful Of Beer Evidence

A mouthful of beer was the evidence upon which prohibition agents based their raid of an alleged wildcat brewery at Curry and Library roads, Bethel Township, and arrested pretty Pauline Campbell, 16, and her father, Thomas Campbell, 48, the agents testified before the United States commissioner today.

The agents testified that on September 27, at Campbell's barbecue stand which was part of the property, they bought four bottles of high-test home brew from Pauline.

When her father cautioned them that they would not be allowed to take the beer from the place, one of the agents, so he testified, succeeded in retaining a mouthful until he left the place. Analysis revealed its high test, the agents added.

Two days later the agents raided the place and reported seizing 3,000 bottles of beer. Today Pauline and her father were held for court on charges of sale, possession and manufacture of beer.

Rookie Star of Series, Gelbert, to Marry

AMBLER, Pa., Oct. 7.—(INS.)—Charley Gelbert, the rookie star of the World Series, is to be married at Valley Forge, near here, next week.

Announcement of the forthcoming event was made today by the proud mother of the Cardinals' flashy shortstop at the Gelbert home in this quiet Pennsylvania village. The wedding date has been set for October 16.

The bride-to-be is Miss Mabel Hafey, of Chambersburg, Pa., a former schoolmate of Gelbert's. Miss Hafey was a co-ed at Lebanon Valley College when Charley was a star athlete at the institution. She is a graduate of Chambersburg High School and Lebanon Valley College and has taught school for two years in Lancaster.

Gelbert is the youth who was refused a salary of $300 a year by Connie Mack. When the Athletics turned thumbs down on the rookie, the Cardinals picked him up, and to date he has been the star of both teams in the World Series, both on offensive and defensive play.

The ceremony will take place in the Washington Memorial Chapel at Valley Forge, with the Rev. Herbert Burk officiating.

HOOVER ASSAILS BOLSHEVISM, PRAISES U. S. FREEDOM

ASKS NATION TO RETAIN IDEALS

esident Speaks at Historic Carolina Scene; Declares America 'Equality' Land

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

KINGS MOUNTAIN, S. C., t. 7.—In the shadow of his- ric iKngs Mountain, where 0 years ago a sturdy band of merican patriots defeated a perior force of British and us paved the way for Corn- allis' surrender at Yorktown, esident Hoover today preached sermon of idealistic American- s to an open-air audience of surands of Carolinians, many them the lineal descendants of se ragged mountaineers.

The text of his sermon was that e American system of govern- nt has proved itself the su- rior of all others in a century d a half, and that bolshevism, alism, anarchy, dictatorships d their ilk have no place in this untry.

OLD IDEALS'

He appealed to them to hold adfast to the ideals for which eir forefathers fought 150 years o in these Carolina hills—the edom of religion, equality of portunity, education for all and man rights in whatever form. said:

"This is the American sys m. We have lived it and eathed it.

"Our's is a system unique ith America—an expression the spirit and environment our people—it is just Amer- an.

"Parallel with us, other hilosophies of society and overnment have continued or veloped and new ones have me into the world, born of the irit of other peoples and other vironments.

"From experiences in many nds I have sometimes com- ared some of these systems to race.

UAL CHANCE

"In the American system, rough free and universal ed- cation, we train the runners, e strive to give them an equal art, our government is the mpire of its fairness. The win- er is he who shows the most nscientious training, the great- t ability, the strongest char- ter.

"Socialism or its violent other, bolshevism, would com- l all the runners to end the ce equally; it would hold the riftest to the speed of the ost backward. Anarchy would ovide neither training nor mpire. Despotism or class overnment picks those who run d also those who win.

IRITUAL HERITAGE

"Whatever the merits or de- erits of these other systems ay be, they all mean the de- truction of the driving force equal opportunity, and they ean the destruction of our- nstitution, for our political amework would serve none of em any many of its funda- ntal provisions ar the nega- on of them. They mean the andonment of the nation's iritual heritage."

Some of these systems, the sident went on, deny religion d seek to expel it. He could not ceive, he said, of a nation with sound economic system, or a olesome social system, without gion.

The present wave of unrest oughout the world, which has ulted in many experiments h various kind of government, revolutions and dictatorships, ls for clear-headed thinking in s country, Mr. Hoover observed.

LABOR TO ACT ON BEER PLANK

By DAVID P. SENTNER.
International News Service.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The report of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor recommending modification of the Volstead act to permit 2.75 per cent beer, and 10 planks in an unemployment program was presented to the Federation convention today.

The report said:

"The developments of the last year, as shown in the evil social conditions which have followed failure of the enforcement of the Volstead act, have confirmed the position heretofore taken by the A. F. of L. in favor of the modification of this act so as to provide for the manufacture, sale and distribution of beer containing 2.75 per cent alcohol by weight."

MAN SHOT, SEEK TWO ROBBERS

MONESSEN, Pa., Oct. 7.—Police are today searching for two Negroes who, shortly after midnight, held up John Glenn, 49, of 34 Reed avenue, robbed him of his watch and a little change, shot him in the shoulder and escaped after a revolver battle with officers.

According to police, Glenn had just closed up the gasoline station of the Valley Supply Company, Monessen bridge, where he is employed, when the two men approached, threatened him with revolvers, then robbed and shot him. A moment later Patrolman David Canova came upon the scene, exchanging several shots with the men as they fled.

SHOOTS WOMAN, KILLS HIMSELF

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 7.—(AP.)—A former city patrolman shot and wounded a woman in her home early today, and then fatally wounded himself as he fled.

The former officer was Andy Pastors, 42, whose body, with a bullet through the head, was found on a hillside four blocks from the woman's home after hours of searching. The woman is Missouri Cory, 30, wounded in the arm and shoulder. She will recover.

Police were told that a third shot was heard as Pastors reached an alley nearby after leaving the woman's home. Officers said they believed he had shot himself there, walking to the spot where his body was found before collapsing.

WOMAN ACCUSES POLICEMAN

Patrolman William Osborne, 38, of 110 Jacksonia street, reporting at the Woods Run Station, was ordered to appear before the Police Trial Board after being arraigned in North Side Police Court today. A suspicious person charge was continued by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider.

Mrs. Violet Steele, 29, of 605 Merchant street, testified that Osborne in uniform, and partly under the influence of liquor, had accosted her in Federal street early today and had followed her home.

She complained to police and Capt. Anthony Block arrested Osborne at his home, according to testimony.

VETS TO MARCH ARMISTICE DAY

A meeting of the Armistice Day parade committee will be held at 8 o'clock this evening in the City-County Building to prepare plans for Pittsburgh's Armistice parade, November 11.

The appointment of division marshals, the selection of the route of march and other details will be determined at tonight's meeting.

Samuel D. Foster, recorder of deeds and chairman of the committee, will preside. The committee is composed of representatives of all veteran organizations in the city and county.

Edward Crump, Jr., chief marshal of the parade, has appointed John E. Robinson, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, chief of staff and D. Paulson Foster, of the American Legion adjutant.

$5,000 BLAZE SWEEPS FARM

State police today are investigating the fire which last night destroyed the barn on Daniel Schwartz's farm, Bardona road, near Bakerstown, ruining the year's crops of grain, hay and straw, all of the farm's implements and the burning of a calf and a pig. The damage estimated by Schwartz was $5,000.

The fire, according to the Schwartz family, originated in the field near the barn. It spread rapidly and the Schwartz's and several neighbors just had time enough to save two horses and seven cows. Valencia, Allison Park and West Deer Township volunteer fire companies responded to the fire. The fire was the fifth in that vicinity in the past two weeks.

It is believed that the fires were caused by lighted cigarets being tossed into the weeds.

'WANT AD BRIDE' BELIEVED SLAIN

Body Found in Lake Feared That of Missing Woman; Seek Suspected Bigamist

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, who met a man through a want ad and borrowed $500 to marry him last June 16, has vanished.

In the Lac du Flambeau region of Wisconsin, where she went on her honeymoon, a woman's body has been found. It is yet unidentified, but it may be Mrs. Hackett's.

The man she married, George W. E. Perry, is missing, too. But he made one appearance during the time he was presumed to be on his honeymoon. That appearance was in Cleveland, O., at the home of his first wife—his only legal wife, authorities say. He was driving a tan-colored sedan, and he was alone—and Mrs. Hackett owned a tan-colored sedan.

MEETS PERRY

The want ad that Mrs. Hackett, 42 years old, answered was for a woman companion on a trip to California. She went to the address given and met Perry. He said his mother was wealthy; that she regarded him as a spendthrift, but that she was prepared to set him up in business, provided he would settle down. He suggested he was ready to settle down, and he proposed marriage. Mrs. Hackett accepted.

Perry needed $500 for the journey to his mother in California. Mrs. Hackett, her friends revealed, borrowed that sum at a loan bank, although she was understood to be in comfortable circumstances and a property owner.

COUPLE MARRIED

They were married in mid-June, and left for the Lac du Flambeau region on their honeymoon. Letters from Mrs. Hackett to Chicago friends indicated she was happy. Then the letters and postcards stopped.

In early July, Perry drove a tan-colored sedan to the house of Mrs. Katharine Gebhardt Perry in Cleveland. He had several suitcases and bags containing a woman's clothing. He said the clothing had been given him by his "aunt," a Mrs. Cora Bell Hackett.

Shortly afterward Perry left Cleveland. He said he was going to Texas. Mrs. Perry has not heard from him since.

In a book found among the "wealthy aunt's" effects, Mrs. Perry discovered the address of Mrs. W. H. Rogers, of Chicago. She wrote, in curiosity, inquiring about Mrs. Hackett—"Mr. Perry's aunt." Mrs. Rogers replied that Mrs. Hackett was not Perry's aunt but his wife.

HUSBAND SLAIN, COUPLE GUILTY

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Minnie Roderick and William Woodring were found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury here for the slaying of Frank Roderick, the woman's husband. The jury recommended life imprisonment.

Roderick was shot to death on his ranch at La Honda last May and his body hidden in a well. His widow filed suit for divorce, claiming her husband had run away with a red-haired woman.

Authorities became suspicious and a search of the Roderick ranch led to the discovery of the missing man's body buried 26 feet in a well, which had been filled in with earth.

Record Oil Well At Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Surpassing other gigantic wells in the South Oklahoma City field, which have set records for production of high gravity oil, the No. 1 Ross well of Oils, Inc., flowed 1,824 barrels in 18 minutes on a test today, or at the rate of about 140,000 barrels a day.

19th Hole Rejected By Bogota Golfers

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Prohibition seems to be gaining in this country. A proposal for establishment of a nineteenth hole was an issue in the election of directors of the Country Club of Bogota. A ticket that favored the 18-hole status quo was elected.

BRAZIL REBELS FIGHTING OVER WIDE AREA

Conflicting Revolt Reports Indicate Federal Forces Retain Control of Country

International News Service.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 7.—"Grave incidents," involving "many dead and wounded," were reported in dispatches from Argentine border towns today to have occurred in the Brazilian state of Bahia within the past 24 hours.

While giving few details, the reports intimated severe clashes between federal forces and rebel bands.

The dispatches added that the Brazilian minister of justice had resigned and that a cabinet crisis was considered imminent.

BOMB REBELS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 7.—With a virtual state of civil war prevailing throughout Brazil, the federal government of President Washington Luis resorted to extraordinary measures today to quell the flames of insurrection kindled by the rebel leader, Francisco Flores da Cunha.

Latest official reports declared the revolutionists had been defeated and put to rout by strong federal forces, augmented by fleets of bombing planes, in two-thirds of the states affected by the revolt. The government expressed confidence that the lack of adequate instruments of warfare, coupled with the loyalty of the population, would inevitably spell defeat for the insurrectionists.

PORTS FREED

The federal government has decided to declare freedom of all ports to facilitate importation of food. Prices of all commodities have been strictly limited to prevent profiteering.

The ministry of war called out all reserves under the age of 30 to swell the government forces for a concerted drive on the rebels, while the state of Sao Paulo was reported organizing new battalions of volunteers to stem the revolutionary forces, said to be heading for that important seaport.

HAVANA POLICE RAID PAPER

HAVANA, Oct. 7.—(INS.)—The streets of Havana were thrown into a turmoil today when police attempted to confiscate the regular edition of the Havana newspaper La Semana.

A squad of police approached the newspaper offices just as the corps of newsboys was leaving to distribute the edition. The management refused to permit the police to enter, whereupon the officers drew their pistols and fired into the air.

Pandemonium immediately broke out. Women living nearby hurled missiles at the policemen from their windows, while under cover of the excitement the newsboys bolted down the street.

ley, had picked them up and driven them north along the Lake Shore drive, which at that hour—shortly before last midnight—teemed with the traffic.

Mrs. Burkhardt had alighted at her home.

O'Malley continued north on Sheridan road, turning west into Barry avenue and drawing up at the Barry avenue entrance of the apartment hotel in which the Mayor and Mrs. Thompson make their home.

He stepped out to open the limousine door for Mrs. Thompson.

A man stepped from the darkness and stunned him with a blow on the head. This robber stood guard over O'Malley as two others ordered Mrs. Thompson out of the car.

At pistol points they forced her to walk into the entrance of the building. Roughly they snatched her jewels, including a diamond ring, for which she recently had paid $10,000, a diamond-set bracelet and a diamond pin.

CRUISING TAXI DRIVERS FREED

Failure of taxicab companies to co-operate with the police department was charged today by Traffic Magistrate William J. Soost as he discharged 18 taxi drivers arraigned before him for cruising and congesting traffic in the vicinity of the Hotel William Penn.

The drivers were arrested Friday charged with violating a city ordinance. Many admitted they had been guilty of cruising to solicit fares from the hotel.

Motorcycle Patrolmen Thomas Walsh and Walter Newbauer testified against them.

In discharging the drivers, Magistrate Soost said:

"I blame the companies for conditions at the William Penn Hotel—not the drivers. I am going to recommend the removal of the stand in front of the hotel to Director Clark. The companies should keep their cars in a downtown garage, to be called when needed."

ADMIT 300 TO PENSION FUND

More than 300 employes of the County Poor Board directors were admitted to membership in the Allegheny County Pension Fund by the County Commissioners at their meeting today.

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern and County Treasurer John Francies asked that action be deferred for two weeks for further study. This was refused by Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, and the motion passed with McGovern and Francies voting against it. The board is composed of the three County Commissioners, the county treasurer and the county controller.

BRITAIN BANS R-101 CRASH NEWS

Government Orders Silence On Disaster Until Cause Is Found; Plan Joint Burial

International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—As far as the government has been able, a complete clamp has been put down on all official news concerning the destruction of the R-101.

While all London flags were placed at half-mast and the man in the street is dazedly talking to his neighbor over the latest tragedy to afflict Britain, the official spokesman for the British Air Ministry announced:

"It has been decided to issue no further communique as to the causes of the disaster until a later full technical inquiry has been held."

The government plans a joint burial ceremony for the victims at Cardington. Memorial services will be held at St. Paul's Cathedral with King George or his representative present.

BODIES SENT HOME

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, France, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—France gave back to England this evening the victims of the disaster which on Sunday overtook the British airship R-101.

With French infantry bands playing Mozart's "March for the Dead," and nearly 100,000 persons standing with bared heads, the bodies were taken aboard the destroyers Tempest and Tribune and embarked for home.

14 HELD AFTER KIDNAP CHARGE

William Schaeffer, 36, was arrested on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. 10 men were charged with being visitors, and three others as suspicious persons, when police of the North Side raided a house at 928 Reedsdale street last night. The raid followed a complaint of Francis Seymour, 26, of 1203 Metropolitan street, that he had been held prisoner by Barry McDonald, 52, and Joseph Johnston, 32, of the Improvement of the Poor Hotel, in a house on the North Side since Saturday.

Police questioned the three after the raid and held them as suspicious persons. They said the kidnaping story was unfounded.

Harrisburg Man Held in Arson

HARRISBURG, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Alton May, 42, of this city, is under arrest on a charge of arson as a result of a six weeks' investigation by city, state and Federal authorities. Police said he had confessed to starting six fires here during August, three of which were of major importance and resulted in a loss of $300,000, and three fires of lesser importance.

deduct for bets m on elections.

Income tax department decisions, undoubtedly, are just.

BUT, WHY NOT allow a doctor, or other professional man, wearing his life out at his profession, to deduct for "depletion," as his life and earning capacity grow shorter. The owner of a coal mine is allowed to deduct for depletion, because there is less coal left in his mine.

OR, WHY NOT allow the worker taxed on his income at least to deduct the amount paid to doctors to keep him working? A farmer can deduct what he pays a veterinary to look after a sick mule, but can't deduct what he pays a doctor to look after his broken leg.

Witchcraft Charges Bring Medical Society Quiz

JANESVILLE, Wis., Oct. 7.—P.)—Relatives and friends ked askance today at Henry rn, 64, of Leyden Township.

Apples on the farm of Herman ey, his brother-in-law, rotted. e chickens suddenly stopped ing and the cattle all went dry the same time.

Witchcraft, whispered Dorn's ndred, and they called in Herman E. Englehardt, of Rockford, a spiritualist. He said Dorn d "read black books and worked l." Dorn, shunned by neighrs and relatives, fled to the me of a friend.

The State Board of Medical Examiners was interested in Dorn's story that it was during a "treatment" he received from the spiritualist that the sorcery charges were made.

Walter Drew, an investigator for the Wisconsin Medical Association and an official of the State Board of Medical Examiners, tomorrow will conduct a John Doe hearing to determine if Englehardt practiced medicine without a license.

Vatican Seeking Religious Accord on Royal Wedding

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—A semi-official note was issued by the Vatican today for the purpose of clarifying the religious question involved in the betrothal of Boris, king of Bulgaria, and Princess Giovanna, of Italy. The note says negotiations now are in progress to settle the dispensation for a mixed marriage, but the dispensation has not yet been granted. The note reads:

"It is untrue that the heir to the throne of Bulgaria must be orthodox. The Bulgarian constitution, Article 38, speaks only of the King, saying he must profess the orthodox religion but it makes no mention of an heir to the throne. We are informed authoritatively that an accord between the Italian and Bulgarian royal courts on the religious question already has been reached in the sense wished by the Catholic church; that is, that all children of the union will be baptized and educated as Catholics. The future King, when he must ascend the throne and finds himself confronted by this article, must then make his own decision."

Gulf Stream Power Tube Success; Burns Lights

MATANZAS, Cuba, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Prof. Georges Claude, French scientist and engineer, put nature to work here last night and kept 40 500-watt electric lamps burning for more than a half hour.

The feat culminated five years of effort and expenditure of about $2,000,000 of his own money to finance a scheme utilizing thermal differences in surface water from the gulf stream and water from 1,800 feet below the surface to generate steam, run a turbine, drive a dynamo and generate the electricity to light the lamps.

Dr. Claude first pumped warm water from the surface of Matanzas Bay, and then, through a mile-long tube sunk 1,800 feet below the surface of the sea, from the depths. The warm water was submitted to a vacuum and became steam, finally of sufficient power to turn the turbine.

From the turbine the steam was sent into a tank where the cold water condensed it, creating a new vacuum in which new steam could be generated as soon as the first vacuum was exhausted, the alternate process to be kept up indefinitely.

As the turbine gathered speed and finally attained several thousand revolutions a minute it turned a dynamo and the electric lights began to glimmer and then burn brightly.

THE CROWD'S FIRST VIEW OF THE MONUMENT: HERMAN WESTINGHOUSE FLETCHER, GRANDNEPHEW, UNVEILING IT.

NATIONS HONOR WESTINGHOUSE

Industrial giants of many nations paid tribute yesterday to the memory of a boy who toyed with trinkets—to George Westinghouse, who gave the world 400 inventions and almost single-handed revolutionized modern mechanics.

To the late inventor and founder of the companies bearing his name, distinguished Europeans and Americans, by word and presence, paid homage to his accomplishments.

At a dinner of 800 in the William Penn Hotel, attended by a galaxy of enginering, banking and commercial leaders of this country, British, French and Canadian industrialists recalled his deeds.

BRITAIN'S STAND

Mostly as an inventor and contributor to human comforts was the late Pittsburgher eulogized in a series of brilliant addresses.

Lord Southborough, undersecretary of state for the British colonies, and chairman of a British-Westinghouse concern, spoke of his personal friendship with Westinghouse.

Describing the unfortunate industrial situation of England as difficult to remedy, while waving aside the depression in the United States as a temporary thing "that will, when soon removed, make it more vigorous," Lord Southborough decried the predictions in England that it will eventually call a dictator to rule. He said:

"My people are criticising their leaders. That is, perhaps, their right. But they are criticising their elected bodies. This is a more dangerous proceeding.

"We hear a great deal about a dictator. This I deplore. But it recalls to me George Westinghouse, whose character was dominating, some might say domineering.

"Who knows but in the near future we may see a man of his type ruling, selecting his own government and his own hand-picked cabinet.

"George Westinghouse was not easy to flatter. But even I would hardly dare to suggest to him that he was a Mussolini.

"I see him as primarily a great scientist, linked closely with immense business interests and industrial concerns. If he were living today, I believe he would suggest that British, yes, European politics should be watched and studied closely."

BECK SPEAKS

James M. Beck, Philadelphia congressman, preceding the British statesman on the platform, discussed the values of mechanical contributions to the structure of a nation. He expounded the theory that means of communication rather than statesmen or politicians insured the unity of the United States.

John F. Miller, vice chairman of the board of directors of the Westinghouse Airbrake Company and a friend of the late inventor, paid a personal tribute to his memory, extolling the kindly deeds and the individual charm, the patriotism of the youthful Westinghouse as a Union soldier in the Civil War, his courage, his persistence and loyalty.

The dinner was opened with an invocation by the Rev. E. J. Van Etten, while A. L. Humphrey introduced A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric. Robertson, as toastmaster, spoke of the Westinghouse vision and zeal.

UNVEIL MEMORIAL

During the afternoon in a willowy nook of Schenley Park, the tribute of 60,000 Westinghouse employes—a 40-foot bronze architectural wall—was unveiled by a grand-nephew, Herman Westinghouse Fletcher.

More than 10,000 swarmed around the tablets designed by Henry Hornbostel and Eric Fisher Wood, and executed by Daniel Chester French, sculptor. The unfurling of the tapestry hiding the monument was a signal for an array of orators to tell of the virtues and accomplishments of the inventor of the airbrake and alternating current, and describe his many other useful contributions to human progress and comfort.

James Francis Burke gave the dedicatory address. George Munro, of the Westinghouse Employes' Association, presented the $200,000 monument to the city; Mayor Charles H. Kline accepted it on behalf of the city.

E. M. Herr, vice chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, was chairman, having been introduced by A. L. Humphrey, president of the Westinghouse Airbrake Company. The Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of the Episcopal diocese, pronounced the invocation.

Attending the unveiling were distinguished American business heads, including Samuel Vauclain, board chairman of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; Herman H. Westinghouse, a brother of the late inventor; Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, and many others.

Coolidge Extols Rare Genius of Westinghouse

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 7.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

There has just been dedicated in the city of Pittsburgh a stately memorial to George Westinghouse. More than 50,000 of his former workmen and professional associates testified to the respect and affection in which they held him by contributing to the cost of this great monument. The ceremony of unveiling was attended by a great throng of prominent business men representing both the old and the new world.

Calvin Coolidge

George Westinghouse had that combination which is so rare of both inventive and business genius. His air brake and signal system made possible the speed and safety of the modern railroad. Without the contribution that he made to transportation it would not be possible with the present roadbed and equipment to serve the business of this country. Between 1870 and his death in 1914 he had built up industries in many countries which employed about 200,000 people. He was the first to establish a Saturday half holiday in a great industry. He was one of the pioneers in electrical engineering. Because he lived industrial life is more human, more safe and more productive. He ranks as one of the great benefactors of mankind.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

CAB MEN AWAIT AGENTS HERE

Officials of the local union of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers today were awaiting the return of Business Agent Fred Shaffer and Secretary John A. Stackhouse, who went to Boston to confer with International President Daniel J. Tobin on new grievances of taxicab drivers in Pittsburgh. They are expected tomorrow.

Peter V. Day, president of the Pittsburgh local, denied reports last night that he had requested a conference in the office of Mayor Charles H. Kline in hopes of averting another taxicab strike. Until the return of Shaffer and Stackhouse nothing will be done in the taxicab situation, he said.

Vagrants Arrested After Auto Looting

Seventeen men, arrested on the Monongahela wharf last night following complaints from motorists that cars had been rifled, were arraigned in Central Police Court today charged with vagrancy. Three were discharged, 10 were fined $5 and four were sent to the workhouse for 30 days by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Browning Courtship Play Draws Protest

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—The courtship of Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett is the theme of a play now running which has drawn protests from descendants of Mrs. Browning's father, Edward Moulton-Barrett. The play portrays Barrett as opposing the marriage of his daughters because of his own domestic experience.

Grenet's 'Friend' Dares Arrest; Fined $50

J. B. Shannon, 43, who gave his address as "529 Morrow avenue, Bellevue," was fined $50 or 30 days in jail by Magistrate Ray Schneider in North Side Police Court today. Police testified he entered the Woods Run station intoxicated yesterday and dared anyone to arrest him as he was a close "friend of Sam Grenet." He was locked up on a suspicious person charge. Police said they found lottery receipts in his possession.

China Upholds U. S. Dope Case Sentence

NANKING, China, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Sentence of Mrs. Kao Ying, wife of the former Chinese vice-consul in San Francisco, to four years' imprisonment and a fine of $4,000 Mexican, as a result of her conviction for sumggling opium into the United States, was upheld today by the Nationalist government Supreme Court.

Northern Chinese Headquarters Taken

NANKING, China, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Official announcement was made today that government forces last night captured Chengchow, headquarters of Feng Yu Hsiang, leader of the northern coalition which has been in military revolt against the Nanking government.

Pittsburgh Officers Take Freed Convict

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Law officers of Pittsburgh today arrested Sam Engle, alias Harry Cohen, as he was released from Auburn State Prison on warrant charging embezzlement. He was received here July, 1930, from Sing Sing after violating his parole. Previously he served a two-to-five-year term for grand larceny.

Find Stolen Silver, Hold 3 in Robbery

WARWICK, R. I., Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Warwick police early today recovered a considerable quantity of the bulk silver stolen from a truck in South Killingly, Conn., yesterday, and arrested three men believed to have held up the truck driver. The loot was found in a summer cottage at Shawomet Beach.

SEEK WOMAN IN SLAYING

GLEN MILLS, Pa., Oct. 7.—(AP.)—District Attorney William J. McCarter, of Delaware County, said today that the slayer of Mrs. Vida Robare, 33-year-old matron at Glen Mills School for Boys, "might have been a woman."

A short time after he made this statement information was received that an employe at the institution has information that may lead to the identification of the person who stabbed and beat Mrs. Robare to death, but is "afraid to tell what she knows."

These facts were revealed after three days and nights of fruitless investigation which began Friday afternoon when Mrs. Robare was found dead in her bedroom, stabbed 38 times.

Banker Sells Out To Settle Huge Debt

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Richard Gualino, one of Italy's biggest financiers, has had to sell his rich art collection, an Eighteenth Century palace, racing stable and theater to settle a debt owed the Agricultural Bank of Italy and other institutions aggregating 500,000,000 lire (about $26,000,000).

The Bank of Italy, another creditor, liquidated him. Premier Mussolini is believed to have referred to Gualino in a speech last week in which he bitterly attacked speculators.

Nicaraguan Election Marine Guards Sail

PANAMA, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—The U. S. S. Rochester sailed for Corinto, Nicaragua, with the last of a force of American sailors and Marines who will supervise the Nicaraguan elections.

Rear Admiral E. H. Campbell, commander of the special service squadron, was aboard.

8 ESCAPE FIRE IN OVERBROOK

Eight persons, five of them children, were forced to flee from their home at 91 Frederick street, Overbrook, today, when fire burned out two second-floor rooms and damaged the roof. Loss was estimated at $2,000.

Starting in a cupboard of the apartment of John Dawson on the first floor, the fire ate its way up a partition to the next floor before it was discovered. Firemen helped Dawson get his wife and their infant, and Mrs. Dan Tau and their four children from their second-floor apartment.

David, 3; Mary Jane, 5; Bonny, 2, and a baby, all children of Mrs. Tau, were carried from the burning apartment in their bedclothing. Firemen were unable to determine the cause of the blaze.

Mother of Two, Jobless, Ends Life

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ruth Mae Hays, 30, of Weir, W. Va., mother of two children, who came here to find employment, ended her life by asphyxiation. She is believed to have been made despondent by her failure to find work.

Her body was found in a rooming house by Dewey Francis, who told police that Mrs. Hays had appealed to him to find her a place to live and help her to obtain employment.

Sales Managers' Club Selects New Officers

Officers of the Sales Managers' Club of Pittsburgh have been elected as follows: William C. Arther, of the Ensign Advertising Agency, president; Holgar Johnson, of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, first vice president; Don H. Wyre, of the General Electric Company, second vice president, and Iliff Jones, of Shipley-Massingham, treasurer.

On October 18 and 19 the club will hold a joint meeting with the Cleveland Sales Managers' group at Cambridge Springs.

De Forest Divorce Delays Marriage to Film Star

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—The Examiner today said Dr. Lee De Forest, noted inventor of radio and motion picture equipment, is soon to marry Marie Mosquini, film comedienne.

Just when the wedding is to take place was not known, the newspaper said, even by Dr. De Forest himself. The inventor was quoted:

"But I am happy to say that I am going to marry Miss Mosquini just as soon as I am free to do so."

De Forest, the newspaper said, explained he was not sure just when an unopposed divorce decree obtained in New York state by Mrs. De Forest, his second wife, would become final.

The Examiner asserted De Forest denied reports in Hollywood film circles that he and Miss Mosquini had been married recently and secretly in Mexico. He was quoted:

"That isn't so. We did discuss such a thing, it is true, but my New York attorney advised against it."

MALFEASANCE CHARGED TO WASSON

pensated for. There was misfeasance and malfeasance. There was negligence of the grossest sort. Unlawful investments were made. Figures were used to conceal the truth, and only by the most patient and expensive auditing did the real situation develop.

"We are impelled to the belief that the committee of this lunatic felt that the estate of Eleanor H. Davidson was, so to speak, 'nullius filius' (nobody's child) and that with a ward who was probably hopelessly insane, and an aged mother, as the only parties closely concerned, they could conduct the affairs of their trust to suit their own ends, and without fear of molestation. The committee of hearing masters recommends that the respondent be disbarred."

DISSENTING REPORT

Attorneys Charles F. C. Arensberg, of Pittsburgh, and A. W. Mitchell, of Erie, signed the disbarment recommendation. Attorney Thomas C. Hare, of Altoona, the other member of the Hearing Masters' Committee, filed a dissenting report, stating:

"In my opinion, the circumstances do not warrant disbarment; a punishment less severe would accomplish the desired end. I believe the conduct of Wasson is the subject of just criticism. From all of the testimony, I have acquired the impression that he followed where another led. It is to his credit that when the storm broke he fully reimbursed the estate, even though much of the loss was occasioned by acts of another."

The committee's report contains 20 pages. It summarizes the disbarment action which began November 8, 1929, with the filing of a petition for Wasson's disbarment by Attorney W. Clyde Grubbs, representing Martha K. and M. Blanche Hibbert, sisters of Mrs. Davidson.

TESTIMONY TAKEN

The hearing masters' committee took testimony in the rooms of the Allegheny County Bar Association February 5 to February 7, 1930.

The report states that in an item shown in the report of "administration" by Wasson and Calvert there is an item, "legal fees," $5,271.31; in 1926, $2,250, and in 1927 a similar amount paid to the law firm of Calvert, Thompson & Berger. The fact is, the report states, that an additional sum of $55,452 was paid to the firm (which was the firm of George H. Calvert, the other member of the committee) for legal services, which the respondent (Wasson) received in cash or its equivalent, one-half.

"REFUNDS JUGGLED"

This payment was covered up in the juggling of federal income tax refunds, according to the report, which states:

"Another discrepancy occurs on page 1 of the account where the following items appear: 'Refund on federal income taxes, $291,193.26; interest adjustments on same, $28,-856.90.'

"The fact is that the total income tax refund was $300,854.14 and the interest adjustment was, in fact, $86,459.63. These amounts must have been significant to the respondent, because the actual amounts received from the government had been reduced by amounts more than sufficient to conceal the payment to Calvert, Thompson and Berger of the $55,452, one half of which was subsequently paid over to the respondent."

The committee's account failed to show a loan August 8, 1925, to one C. C. Chalfant, according to the report, of $17,500, on which no interest nor any part of the principal had ever been paid.

Testifying before the masters, the report states, Wasson said that "for services rendered in connection with the recovery of $289,-000 and what went with it, there was a compensation of $35,000 agreed upon and with the subsequent recovery of some $90,000, another $12,500, making up the $55,000.

WASSON DENIAL

Wasson denied receiving any part of the $55,000 fees when questioned during the audit of his accounts, but at the hearing before the standing masters he was asked:

"At that time you realized that you had received long prior to these hearings one half of the $55,000 in fees?"

His answer was:

"Yes, I know that."

The committee built a house for Mrs. Davidson which cost $203,-609.48 and spent $41,058.51 for landscaping the grounds around it. These expenditures were made without an order of court. Wasson explained that they had had a long discussion with then President Judge Shafer, of Common Pleas Court, who appointed them.

The respondent testified that Judge Shafer said "that it would require a good deal of time to the business enterprises, and many things would possibly require court orders, but that he would prefer that we go along and exercise our judgment, and then come in with our account, and those matters would either be approved or disapproved on the accounting."

NO ORDER OBTAINED

Wasson testified that this was the reason no court order was obtained for the expenditure for the house and property.

Wrecking of a Lincoln automobile, purchased for the estate, while they were using it on personal business, was admitted.

Damage of $2,097.80 done to the automobile was charged to the estate.

Wasson admitted, according to the report, that he and Calvert took various members of their families to Mexico on inspection trips "of properties owned by corporations in which the lunatic owned stock," and charged the expense incurred in these trips to the estate. The report states:

"These expenses were included in the charges against the estate in such a manner as to be detected only by expert accountants."

He also admitted that men employed by the estate did work on his own city lot.

$314,913 REFUNDED

After exceptions to their accounting were filed the committee refunded $314,913.06 in cash, the report states, of which $277,170.15 represents an actual increase in the balance of the estate and $87,-742.91 represents conversion of assets into cash.

In concluding the report the hearing masters state:

"This committee was impressed throughout the hearing by the fact that in all past phases of this matter, including audits and negotiations, the truth was finally extracted only by the use of extreme measures; that the estate should have been so dishonestly and negligently handled is of itself reprehensible, but that it should have been put to the further expense of literally tens of thousands of dollars in order to detect and check such conduct makes the case more aggravated."

PINCHOT FIRE RAKES G. O. P. BOLTERS

chot's Philadelphia campaign director, fired the first gun in the counter-attack with a battlecry in which he described Hall as a "Republican-for-profit only," and declared:

"Election day in Philadelphia will be opportunity day for all voters.

"For years the citizens have been of the opinion that if they could rout this Republican-for-profit only they would rid the city's politics of a corruptive factor and of an evil influence.

"Now, in an outburst of rage, he has come out of his political hiding hole and put himself up as a target."

Wilson defined the issue with the assertion that a vote for Hemphill was a vote for a Hall, declaring:

"A vote for Pinchot is a vote against Hall and all that Hall represents."

He added:

"What has Hemphill to expect from Hall except the controlled vote in wards which Hall bosses? He was a liability to Mr. Brown, whom he backed for governor in the primary. It was largely because the voters of the state saw in Brown's candidacy an attempt of Hall and his political colleagues to grab the state government that Brown was rejected.

CALLED 'WELSHER'

"Mr. Hall's attempt to dramatize his bolt to Hemphill sank to the level of low comedy. His bolt did not come as a surprise, for since May 20 he had been exhibiting all the outward instincts of a 'cheap welsher.'"

The Philadelphia machine is not a unit in opposing Pinchot. One or two ward leaders are known to be for Pinchot. One of them is Mayor Harry A. Mackey, who, in a statement last week, said:

"The election of a Democratic governor of Pennsylvania at this time would be so stunning a blow to the Hoover administration that it could hardly rally from the shock."

MARTIN CONFIDENT

HARRISBURG, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Defection of Charles B. Hall, Philadelphia city councilman and prominent leader of the Republican organization of Philadelphia, from support of Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee, will have no effect on the Republican state campaign, Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, said today.

Chairman Martin received the news of Hall's bolting from Pinchot to John Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal candidate for governor, with "regret," but asserted the defection will be more than overcome by a rural Democratic up-state vote for Pinchot.

NAMES HAZLETT

At the same time Martin announced appointment of James H. Hazlett, chairman of the Philadelphia Republican City Committee, and one of the members of the "war board" of the organization, which also included Hall, as a member of the executive committee of the state committee. Asked whether Hazlett had been consulted concerning his appointment, the state chairman said:

"Mr. Hazlett told me last week he would be very glad to serve."

Such an action was regarded here as presaging a break in the organization in the gubernatorial election, with Hall leading the faction turned toward Hemphill, and Hazlett remaining regular with Pinchot.

An ex-officio member of the executive committee is Gen. W. W. Atterbury, who will hold a position on the committee by virtue of his position as Republican national committeeman. Chairman Martin said Atterbury had not been consulted about accepting a place on the committee.

Other members of the executive committee, of which "a call for a meeting will be issued shortly," according to Martin, are:

Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican chairman of Allegheny County; United States Senators David A. Reed and Joseph R. Grundy, Gov. Fisher, Judge John S. Fine, of Luzerne County; Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James, W. L. Mellon, former state Republican chairman; Mrs. John Q. Adams, Uniontown; State Senator Frank E. Baldwin, Austin; Col. Theodore D. Boal, Boalsburg.

Maj. Gen. William G. Price, Jr., Chester; Harry F. Bovard, Greensburg; Representative E. P. Brown, South Montrose; M. K. Burgner, Chambersburg, resident clerk of the tSate House of Representatives; Lucius M. Crumrine, Washington, Pa., and Charles Gebert, Tamaqua, former state commanders of the American Legion; Mrs. Hnnah M. Durham, Allentown; Mortimer B. Fuller, Scranton; Robert G. Greer, Butler; John L. Hanna, Franklin; Secretary of Revenue Charles Johnson, Norristown; Kenneth P. Kressler, Easton; Samuel S. Lewis, York, former state treasurer; Mrs. Charles B. Long, Lancaster; Secretary of Welfare Mrs. E. Grace McCauley, Beaver.

Seth T. McCormick, Jr., Williamsport; Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, Walkes-Barre, president of the State Council of Republican Women; John A. Phillips, Philadelphia; Mrs. Charles F. Stauffer, Lancaster; Vernon F. Taylor, Indiana; Dr. Mary M. Wolfe, Laurelton; George W. Woodruff, Philadelphia, attorney general in the Pinchot administration, and Samuel S. Woods, Lewistown.

In addition to Gen. Atterbury other ex-officio members of the committee are Gen. Martin, Mrs. Charles F. Eetter, Harrisburg, state vice chairman of the party, and Mrs. Worthington Scranton, national committeewoman.

LIBERALS HERE QUIZ MARTIN ON BOLTING

Dorrance Hints Defection From Pinchot Over State; Allegheny Leaders Loyal

Charles Dorrance, state chairman of the Liberal party backing John M. Hemphill, Democratic nominee for governor, today issued a statement asking Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, five questions to sustain Martin's remarks yesterday that he was satisfied with the political situation in relation to the success of Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor and his running mates.

Dorrance asked Martin if it were true that Charles S. Weston, of Scranton, announced as a member of the Republican Ways and Means Committee, had refused to act and if it were true that at least one member of the Republican executive committee, appointed by Martin, agreed to serve only with the understanding with Martin that he would not support Pinchot.

CLAIMS UNREST

Dorrance asked how many Republican county chairmen are satisfied with Pinchot's action in disregarding them and placing control of the campaign in other hands.

Martin was asked if it were not true that members and supporters of the Liberal party are working for the election of every other candidate on the Republican ballot except Pinchot.

Dorrance inquired if the Republican party of Pennsylvania indorsed the "dignified" attitude taken by Pinchot when he classed real Republicans like Andrew Mellon and Samuel Vauclain as bootleggers and bartenders.

Dorrance said he did not know of Allegheny County Republican leaders bolting Pinchot.

Gen. Martin has reiterated his belief that the political situation, particularly in the western sector of Pennsylvania, indicates the election of the Republican ticket.

After conferring here yesterday with W. L. Mellon and Republican County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, Martin said:

"Republicans generally are realizing that the election of a Democratic governor in Pennsylvania would be most unfortunate for Republicans throughout the nation. It would be difficult to conceive anything that would benefit Democrats nationally in the next few years. In Allegheny County all elements, regardless of the primary fight, are united behind Pinchot and Davis and their running mates."

Gen. Martin's prediction was made before Charles B. Hall, Philadelphia leader, and State Senator Samuel W. Salus, member of the Philadelphia City Committee, bolted to the Hemphill camp.

LIBERAL CHIEF LEAVES

His conferees were Arthur M. Scully, Allegheny County chairman of the Liberal party; Samuel Vauclain, of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, member of the Liberal party committee to raise campaign funds, and Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, defeated in the primary as candidate for governor on the Republican anti-dry ticket.

Hemphill and his Democratic running mates will invade Western Pennsylvania on a campaign tour next week with the first stop October 14 in Oil City. Visits will be made that day also in Franklin, Greenville, Mercer, Farrell and Sharon.

Judge Arthur C. Dale, chairman of the Pinchot-for-Governor state committee, after returning today from a tour of the state, said there was a defection against Hemphill in the Democratic ranks that would run in excess of 200,-000 votes, due to Hemphill's anti-dry plank and his silence regarding the abuses of the Public Service Commission.

402,931 VOTERS IN COUNTY

Allegheny County has 403,931 residents eligible to vote at the election November 4, according to official tabulations.

Registration commissioners reported yesterday that Pittsburgh's 405 districts enrolled this year 108,392, and County Commissioners reported a registration of 12,688 in third-class cities, 190,163 in boroughs and 92,682 in townships.

Registration in third class cities was distributed as follows: McKeesport, 8,042; Duquesne, 2,597; Clairton, 2,049.

HANN SEES NEED OF BUTLER PORT FOR AIR MAIL

Despite Bettis Field Choice By Government, Aviation Leader Cites Advantages

Despite the postmaster general's announcement of the new coast-to-coast airmail schedule which names Bettis airport as Pittsburgh's air terminal, officials of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc., affiliated with Transcontinental Air Transport and Western Air Express in the new operations, today expressed confidence that Pittsburgh-Butler airport would be necessary to successful operations here.

The Butler airport provides adequate landing facilities in case Bettis and the county ports are not accessible due to local weather conditions, fog or smoke, according to George R. Hann, president of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries.

CITES BY-PASS

With a thought toward the future success of aviation, Mr. Hann pointed to the necessity of a by-pass route around the congested area, and cited the stragetic location of the Butler airport for through travel, which would necessarily stop for refueling and weather reports before beginning the long non-stop journey across the mountains to the east.

"LESS DELAY"

Again, for westward traffic, Mr. Hann pointed out, the Butler airport would provide necessary facilities to through traffic along the by-pass without the delay that would arise from entering a local air terminal. Shop facilities on the new line also will be centered at the Pittsburgh-Butler port, according to local officials, at least until the completion of the new county port.

Details of the plan of operations over the new route still are in the process of formation. Jack Frye, former chief of operations for T. A. T., has been placed in complete charge of this phase of the program for the new company, which has been named Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc.

Maj. H. S. Martin, vice president in charge of operations for Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, has been named assistant to Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of the technical committee for the new company, and Richard W. Robbins, vice president and general manager of the local concern, has been named to the board of directors of the new organization.

The complete schedule as announced for the new air line follows:

SPEED HEARST FETE PLANS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7.—(Universal.)—Preparations for the testimonial banquet to William Randolph Hearst at the Hotel Biltmore Tuesday evening, October 14, are going forward with satisfactory progress, according to the committee in charge, of which John C. Austin is chairman.

Oscar Lawler has consented to be toastmaster.

The banquet will be held in the Sala de Oro of the Hotel Biltmore. It will begin at 7 o'clock. It will be preceded by a reception to Mr. Hearst, beginning at 6:30, in the foyer of the Sala de Oro.

A committee has been selected to represent the Southern California sector of The Society of the First Division, A. E. F., in cooperating with committees of other veterans' groups in arranging for the welcome to Mr. Hearst. It consists of Adolph N. Sutro, chairman; Gail B. Selig, Clarence D. Symes, Arthur King and Russell A. Barker.

Four prominent members of the United Spanish War Veterans are on the general banquet committee. They are A. C. Munson, former state commander; W. J. Werner, president of the Los Angeles municipal council of the U. S. W. V.; Albert McCoy, secretary of the council, and Congressman Joe Crail.

James B. Gresham Post No. 108, Veterans of Foreign Wars, is taking the lead in arranging for representation of that military order at the banquet.

'Garcon' as Summons Disliked by Waiters

PARIS, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—In the opinion of the Union of Syndicated Waiters, in congress assembled, the term "garcon" as applied to a waiter is too familiar and annoying. "Garcon" can mean a boy or an unmarried man. One protesting waiter, father of five children, said at the congress that an American customer, who evidently had consulted a dictionary, had yelled at him, "Bachelor, bring me a beer."

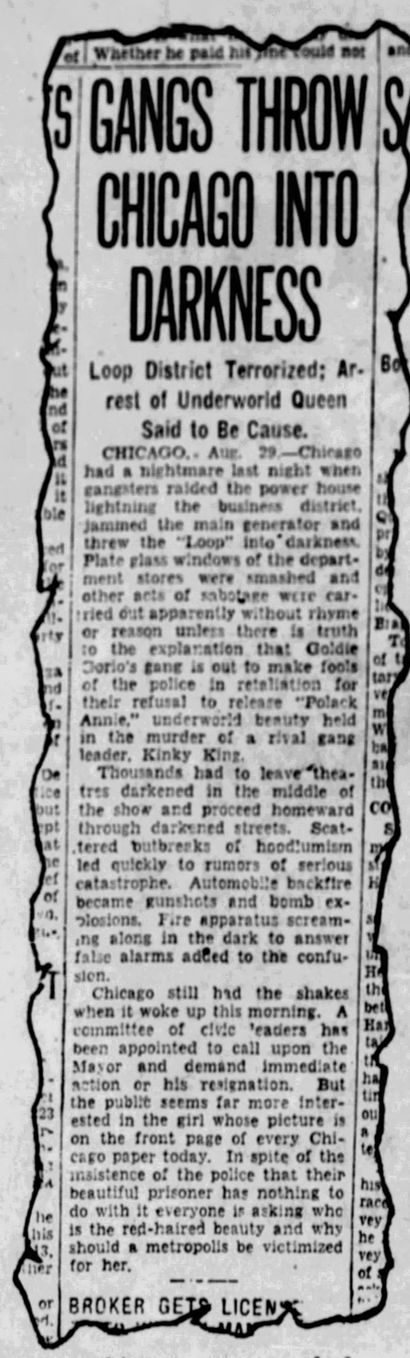
THE TRUE STORY BEHIND THESE GANG OUTRAGES

GOLDIE GORIO

The gross income of the rackets he controlled as leader of Chicago's North Side gangs ran into millions. His business was based on violence and he utilized it remorselessly. No white-haired boy was Goldie. His complexion was of Latin swarthiness and his hair was as black as his reputation. His nickname came from his predeliction for the precious metal (the exhaust pipe of his limousine was of gold).



Whether he paid his fine could not

GANGS THROW CHICAGO INTO DARKNESS

Loop District Terrorized; Arrest of Underworld Queen Said to Be Cause.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Chicago had a nightmare last night when gangsters raided the power house lightning the business district, jammed the main generator and threw the "Loop" into darkness. Plate glass windows of the department stores were smashed and other acts of sabotage were carried out apparently without rhyme or reason unless there is truth to the explanation that Goldie Gorio's gang is out to make fools of the police in retaliation for their refusal to release "Polack Annie," underworld beauty held in the murder of a rival gang leader, Kinky King.

Thousands had to leave theatres darkened in the middle of the show and proceed homeward through darkened streets. Scattered outbreaks of hoodlumism led quickly to rumors of serious catastrophe. Automobile backfire became gunshots and bomb explosions. Fire apparatus screaming along in the dark to answer false alarms added to the confusion.

Chicago still had the shakes when it woke up this morning. A committee of civic leaders has been appointed to call upon the Mayor and demand immediate action or his resignation. But the public seems far more interested in the girl whose picture is on the front page of every Chicago paper today. In spite of the insistence of the police that their beautiful prisoner has nothing to do with it everyone is asking who is the red-haired beauty and why should a metropolis be victimized for her.

BROKER GETS LICEN-

Of all the spectacular outbursts of crime in American cities, none approached the party put on the other night in Chicago by Goldie Gorio and his North Side gang. More than crimes of far greater seriousness it brought the situation home to the public. It is one thing to read about crime in the morning papers and another to have it turn out the lights and scare the life out of you. What was the reason for it all, every one was asking. Well, Jack Lait got the real story behind it and it is the best gangster story you will ever read.

HOLLAND PORT EXPERT HERE

Stopping here on a tour of important river and port development projects throughout the United States and Canada, Dr. D. Ph. Backx, secretary of the port improvement committee, Rotterdam, Holland, conferred yesterday with city and government officials.

After inspecting important government river improvement plans with Lieut. Col. Jarvis J. Bain, Dr. Backx visited City Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, and the Ohio River canalization project was explained to him. Later he conferred with officials of the Chamber of Commerce.

Prior to coming here Dr. Backx inspected river and port development projects at Montreal and Buffalo. After his departure from Pittsburgh he plans to visit Duluth and Detroit.

ASK CITY PAY FOR TRIPS

Dr. C. B. Maits, director of the Department of Health, yesterday requested permission of City Council for himself and two departmental superintendents to attend the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the American Public Health Association, at Fort Worth, Tex., October 27 to 30. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

At the same time Public Works Director Edward G. Lang presented his expense bill for his recent trip to London, where he attended an international conference of public works directors. A resolution requesting payment of the bill, amounting to $692.94, was referred to the Finance Committee.

HORNE'S Annual Sale of OVERCOATS

$28 $38 $48

IF YOU are to have a new overcoat this winter, the thing to do is obvious . . . with the Annual Overcoat Sale at this store presenting complete selection of the season's most desirable models and fabrics at prices that cannot be equaled under any other circumstances.

Our preparations are double those of last year, because men are in a thrifty mood this year, and we believe that they will be more than eager to avail themselves of the substantial savings of this Sale.

This is not a Sale in the ordinary sense of the term because it offers men the same type of selection and service that they find in regular stock at the height of the season. It is rather a case of concentrated effort to give men unmatchable values in a wanted item, at a wanted time, a carefully worked out plan of cooperation among all the factors involved---mill, manufacturer, retailer and consumer.

This year we found mills and manufacturers more than eager to cooperate, and the values, as a consequence, are better than ever.

Fabrics

Fleeces
Twists
Shetlands
Tweeds
Domestic Montagnacs
High Pile Alpacas

Models

Chesterfields
Single-Breasted Box Coats
Raglans
Double-Breasted Box Coats
Storm Coats

To appreciate the nature of this event---the largest Sale of its kind in the country today---it is necessary to realize:

—that the fabrics are our own selections, purchased in the piece (a special trip was made abroad to choose the English and Scotch woolens that comprise a large part of the selection);

—that the coats are made up to our order by our regular manufacturers, and are Horne standard in every detail—tailoring, lining, trimming and finish;

—that every accepted model for the new season is represented by a complete range of sizes, in all of the three price groups;

—that a man can get any fashionable type of winter overcoat in this Sale with the exception of fur coats, and save many dollars over the regular stock price of the coat he chooses.

Come and see for yourself!

The Men's Store Opens at 8 A. M. Tomorrow

For the convenience of those whose shopping hours are limited, the Men's Store will open at 8 o'clock---an hour before the rest of the store. Every preparation has been made for handling a great number of men, with our usual standard of service. Stocks have been arranged by prices, models and sizes, and our entire clothing staff will be available to assist you in making a satisfactory selection.

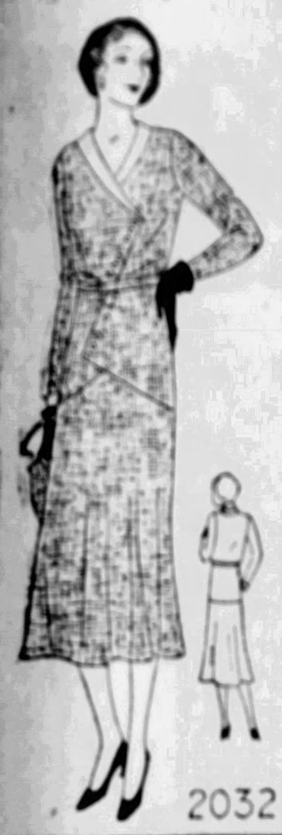
Pattern 2032
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS



The cleverly styled lines, the dainty lingerie touches and the newness of fabric suggest an ideal frock for fall. You will find this model extremely easy to cut and put together, as well as exceedingly becoming. Small buttons add a chic touch.

Pattern 2032 is stunning fashioned of wool crepe, wool georgette, sheer tweed, jersey, silk crepe or marocain. A solid color or a mixture is equally smart. Pique or satin in contrasting color will be delightful for collar and cuffs.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 54-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

HERO OF PRISON FIRE HELD HERE

Sam Engle, 30, alias Harry Cohen, a convict, whose heroism during the Ohio Penitentiary fire won him a parole from that prison and also from Auburn prison, New York, was returned here this morning, and announced he would enter a plea to charges of larceny and embezzlement preferred against him by a McKeesport jeweler.

Engle was paroled yesterday from the New York prison, and was brought here in the custody of County Detective James Reddington.

He was serving a sentence of from 1 to 20 years for larceny in the Ohio prison, and during the investigation of the rioting and fire in that prison it was learned that Engle had helped greatly in fighting the fire and checking the riot.

Accordingly, he was paroled and returned to Auburn, where a sentence of three and a half years awaited him on another larceny conviction. The New York court followed the precedent established by Ohio authorities, and extended Engle a parole.

However, another charge was awaiting Engle in Allegheny County. It is charged that Engle, who was employed two years ago as a salesman for a McKeesport jeweler, disappeared with merchandise valued at $7,500.

HELD PRISONER OVER CHECKS

Francis Seymour, 26, of 1203 Metropolitan street, who reported that he was held prisoner in an alleged speakeasy at 928 Reedsdale street three days, was turned over to McKees Rocks police on bad-check charges this morning by Magistrate Ray Schneider.

Joseph Johnson, 32, of 3204 Mitchell street, who, according to Seymour, represented a city detective and held him prisoner, was fined $50.

Barry McDonald, 38, of Duquesne way, implicated by Seymour, was fined $25.

William Shaffer, alleged proprietor of the resort at 928 Reedsdale street, raided after Seymour's complaint, was held for court on a liquor charge, and eight visitors arrested in the raid were discharged.

Seymour testified McDonald and Johnson attempted to extort $45 from him to suppress bad-check charges in McKees Rocks.

Seymour admitted he was guilty of the charge and said he tried to get the money.

Johnson denied Seymour's story, saying that he had agreed with Seymour on a plan to obtain money from Seymour's wife.

TRIES CASE HE WITNESSED

Magistrate Ray Schneider was a spectator to an alleged wife-beating in Ohio street near Cedar avenue last night, it developed today in North Side Police Court when Martin McGeary, 36, of 223 Voeghtley street, was charged with disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Elizabeth McGeary, of 506 Foreland street, divorced wife of the prisoner, had been chased and was being beaten by her former husband when police interfered, according to testimony. McGeary denied the charge.

Magistrate Schneider said:

"I was there, and you are going to jail for 30 days without the option of a fine."

STATE WEIGHT MEET OPENS

General discussions of law enforcement problems featured the first sessions today of the three-day convention of the Pennsylvania Association of Weights and Measures meeting in Fort Pitt Hotel.

The convention opened with the president's address, delivered by Joseph T. Hayes, of Reading.

The session was given over to committee appointments and reports by Secretary George B. Nebinger, Harrisburg, and Treasurer Perry M. Runkle, Lebanon. It closed with an address by Albert E. Smith, director, State Bureau of Standard Weights and Measures.

More than 100 members were in attendance. Following a short afternoon session, delegates were to go on a sight-seeing tour. The election of officers will be held on the closing day.

Escape of Snake Puts Town on Edge

HADDON HEIGHTS, N. J., Oct. 7.—(INS.)—Everyone was excited here today—and you would be, too.

A nine-foot boa constrictor was roving round the town. The snake escaped from a packing box in the home of Douglas D. W. March, naturalist, who brought it from Honduras.

Bavaria Imprisons Young Communists

MUNICH, Bavaria, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—The Criminal Court here today sentenced 23 Communist youths to three months' imprisonment for violation of the law for protection of the republic. They had been active propaganda agents for the forbidden "Red Front Fighters' League."

Kingsford-Smith Delayed by Illness

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, trans-Atlantic aviator, having contracted another attack of influenza, has been confined to his bed and forced to postpone his projected flight to Australia, which he had hoped to commence from Beston today.

N. Y. U. Co-Eds Ban Smoking as Nuisance

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Upon petition of co-eds, smoking has been forbidden as a nuisance in the girls' social hall of the Washington Square branch of New York University.

Mercury Reaches 92 In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—San Francisco thermometers registered 92 degrees yesterday, the highest reading since June 21, 1929, when the mercury climbed to 95.

ASK HUGE FUND TO AID JOBLESS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Benjamin C. Marsh, secretary of the People's Lobby, announced that a delegation of liberal leaders would petition Congress to appropriate $250,000,000 for relief of the unemployed, when it reconvenes on December 1.

Marsh, addressing a meeting of the lobby, said party leaders at Washington would be urged to push the bill through to afford immediate results, and that the state governments would be asked to set aside sums. He will be a member of the delegation.

The listening public takes the position of program director in the Philco Symphony concert tonight. An all request lineup features the most famous ballet music ever written—the "Bacchanale" from Faust—Liszt's "Liebestraum." Turkish March from Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens" and the Menuetto from Haydn's "Surprise Symphony" in which the "surprise" is furnished by an unexpected tympani note. Four Kroen Brothers sing "The Old Rugged Cross," "Stand Up for Jesus" and "Softly and Tenderly" for their blind mother in Rochester, Pa., during the Sacred Song concert on KDKA at 7:30.

QUESTION A DAY:

Miriam S., Homestead—Are regular telephone wires used for distributing radio programs to network stations?

Answer—Regular wires are used but the equipment on the ends of the lines is different. Broadcasting circuits are equipped for one-way, rather than two-way transmission, and the wire carries only the program. In telephony the same wire would be made to carry several conversations.

Jim Hughes doesn't know what to do with this letter—

Dear Mr. Hughes:

Please sing a song about the Little Bird on Nellie's Hat. I have been trying to get my sister to select hats becoming to her and perhaps if she is made ridiculous through this song she (her name is Nellie) may take my advice.

Name Withheld.

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company invited Mr. Irvin S. Cobb to personally witness and to review the reports of the distinguished men who have witnessed LUCKY STRIKE'S famous Toasting Process and report his findings. The following is the statement of Mr. Cobb:

"I HAVE SEEN"

Says

IRVIN S. COBB

Noted Author

"The old time watch-word—'Let the Buyer Beware' has given way to the modern slogan of confidence, 'Buy in Safety,' and this miracle was wrought by the honesty of manufacture which characterizes every fine American product. A notable example of the modern manufacturers' constant desire to give the public the best is your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of LUCKY STRIKE tobaccos. Anyone can see this as I have seen it on my visit to your LUCKY STRIKE Plant. It's magnificent."

Irvin S. Cobb

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

"It's toasted"

ADDITIONAL RADIO NEWS

The Loudspeaker

"Most Popular." Favor Lehar. Hollywood Music. Mrs. McNamee.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The melodies of Victor Herbert, Sir Arthur Sullivan and Franz Lehar continue to find the most conspicuous place on the music schedule of the radio men.

Louis Reid.

These composers are the musical standbys of the studios, as steadfast as a gangster's sweetheart, as reliable as oaths in a war play. No radio overlooks them. I would no sooner expect the warblers of the air waves to neglect them than I would expect to find S. Parkes Cadman hanging out in Texas Guinan's.

The radio men, of course, are playing safe in reserving so much time for these supreme masters of light melody. The public never tires of them. Their airs are perennially fresh. They lose neither their charm nor their beauty in the passing of the years. Especially is this true of Herbert. The most resourceful in melody of all American composers, he has become almost a patron saint of the microphone. Out of respect to him and to the eternal dependence they place upon him, the broadcasters long ago should have erected statues to him in their sacred pastures.

Lehar's Music Favored on Radio

Though Lehar is new writing in a minor note so far as Broadway is concerned, the operettas which he set down when he was composing in a major key are among the most luscious of all musical broadcasts. An hour of "The Count of Luxembourg" or "The Merry Widow" or "Gypsy Love" or "Alone at Last" has compensated in the past for interminable talks on the tariff or naval parity. They will undoubtedly compensate this fall for just as interminable talks on politics.

I never hear "The Merry Widow Waltz" that I do not grow wistful over the vanished glory of Broadway—the Broadway of Rector's and Shanley's and Churchill's and Jack's and the Hotel Knickerbocker, when Volstead was quietly dreaming on his Minnesota farm and there was rich and endless glamor to the Great White Way. Just as I never hear the strains of "Babes in Toyland" or "Mlle. Modeste" that I am not vividly reminded of the days when Fritzi Scheff and Bessie Wynn were the toast of the town.

Also secure in the affections of the radio poohbahs is the popular song as now written in the gold fields of Hollywood. You cannot escape them on the loudspeakers any more than you can escape the hat check girl in a restaurant. Nor is there apparent any desire to escape them on the part of those who go down to the radio sea in slip covers. The reason, it seems to me, is that the songs of Hollywood are the best that have yet been qualified by the adjective "popular."

Gone is the old Broadway pathos, the lazy rhyming of "spoon" and "moon" and "love" and "stars above." The song writers who have been herded in the Hollywood hills are not only more industrious than when they once gathered in the lofts of Forty-fifth street, they are more painstaking.

Popular Songs Are Better Today

Their melodies are ingratiating, their lyrics have the zip and smartness, if not of a Lonsdale comedy, then of the better revues. If the talkies succeed in maintaining the note of sophistication in their songs without sacrificing melody they will revolutionize the musical life of the republic. Most of the tunes of Hollywood are so far superior to the Tin Pan Alley numbers of yesterday as to win a special order of merit, if not from Damrosch, at least from Rolfe and Whiteman.

The reason, of course, lies in the fierce competition now in progress on the West coast. Not only has Broadway moved in the regimental strength to California, but the studios have summoned the leading tunesmiths of Europe. And the race is not only to the swiftest and most melodious but—Allah be praised—the most civilized.

* * *

Radio is snaring those able character actors who have skyrocketed from obscurity to Broadway fame, such men as Walter Connolly and Guy Kibbee. . . . Mrs. Graham McNamee confesses on the air that when she married the announcer she chose between a career as a professional singer and a job as home-maker. She chose, my ballad makers, the home. . . . Roxy, with Sir Thomas Lipson at his elbow, heard a recent program from his cathedral while voyaging to Europe on the Leviathan. . . . Ivor Novello is the latest of those amazing Englishmen who seem to be able to compose, write plays, act and lead a band to step up to a microphone. . . . With a bow from Major Bowes he played his latest song on the piano last Sunday night. . . . It was Novello, you'll recall, who sat down one afternoon in 1918 and petitioned the English people in song to "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

Look Inside before you buy

WHETHER or not you know radio technically, the 7-check test will point out the salient construction features of the sets from which you make your final selection. It will pay you to look inside each one and learn how well it has been made, before you decide to buy.

Find out how many tubes each set uses. Note that the new Grebe uses only seven. Check its performance and see how much Grebe engineering accomplishes with less tubes. Examine its chassis and speaker—mark its precise, compact, troubleproof construction—compare.

Get a 7-check test list from your nearest Grebe dealer—it will show you how to rate each set for tone, control, selectivity, decorative quality and value, too.

Pedigree counts in RADIO!

Ben Hur's four fleet Arabian steeds, Altair, Antares, Rigel and Aldebaran, won a victory worthy of their noble pedigree.

Stromberg-Carlson success in radio reflects an enviable background in the telephone science—the science so important in radio development.

1894-1930

WHEN you invest in a beautiful work of art, you inquire as to its authenticity—you want the result of the master's experience and skill, not an imitation.

So when buying a radio, you seek a receiver fashioned by a master-builder—an instrument whose tone shall be a replica of the original rendition; whose dial shall be equally responsive at any setting; whose appearance will add to the personality of your home—in short, a Stromberg-Carlson.

For Stromberg-Carlson Receivers have attained their excellence largely because of their telephone heritage. This heritage dates back to the time when Grover Cleveland was president. Even then Stromberg-Carlson was pioneering the solution of sound reception and transmission problems and serving the telephone needs of many American communities.

A pedigree of more than a third of a century in the science which is the ancestor of radio is a very vital reason why—

"There Is Nothing Finer Than a Stromberg-Carlson."

Stromberg-Carlson unsurpassed quality Receivers range in price from $155 to $369. The Multi-Record Radio, $645. (Prices, less tubes.) They may be purchased with moderate down payment out of income at only a nominal finance cost.

40 IN BRITISH CREW IN IRONS

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Dispatches from the Riviera today said 40 sailors from the British battleship Revenge had been arrested after trouble with their officers.

One version of the affair was published in a Nice dispatch to the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune, which said that 1400 men aboard the cruiser had revolted against excessive punishments and had left the ship Saturday. Forty who returned were placed in irons. Police rounded up others and returned them aboard the ships, but 25 were said to be still at large.

Other reports said that 340 men who had shore leave refused to return on board, complaining of over-strict discipline and unsatisfactory food.

The admiralty issued a statement that the reports were inaccurate and explaining that during the course of the Revenge's stay near Nice, an average of 340 men have been landed daily on leave, and the total number of leave-breakers has been 35, of whom only two have not returned aboard.

Chase in Command Of U. S. Battlefleet

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Oct. 7.—(AP.)—The four-starred flag of Rear Admiral J. V. Chase flew from the main truck of the battleship Texas today, signifying his assumption of command of the United States battlefleet.

In a ceremony marked by 17 gun salutes, Admiral William V. Pratt yesterday surrendered command of the battlefleet to Admiral Chase.

Princeton Alumni Fund Gets $500,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—The alumni fund of Princeton University was bequeathed $500,000 in the will of Thomas Davies Jones, filed for probate. Other educational and charitable institutions received sums totaling nearly $2,000,000, and the residue of the estate was divided among several nephews and nieces.

ASTHMA CAUSE DISCOVERED

Free Booklet Mailed on Request

Indianapolis—Those who suffer from bronchial asthma and hay fever will be gratified to learn that at last science has succeeded in discovering the basic cause of these two stubborn maladies.

This discovery disproves the old theory that asthma is due solely to climatic conditions and hay fever entirely to pollen. The discovery of the real cause of these diseases has proved that these are merely aggravating factors and that the basic cause lies in the individual himself.

Fortunately for all who suffer from these diseases a way has also been found to overcome this basic cause in the individual instead of merely treating the surface symptoms, as has been done in the past.

For full information write for important booklet on the discovery of the cause of bronchial asthma and hay fever. It will be sent free to readers of this newspaper who will write to Department 6736, Fugate Company, 126 S. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind.

BOROUGHS JOIN POLICE FORCES

As a move to afford better police protection in Avalon and Ben Avon, motorcycle patrolmen of Ben Avon will be sworn in by Burgess Grant Ritchie of Avalon, while the motorcyclemen of Avalon will be given the same right by Burgess Samuel Carothers of Avon tonight. The oaths will be administered in the Ben Avon police station, Church avenue.

The plan to swear in the motorcycle patrolmen of the two boroughs was a result of the recent opening of the Ohio River boulevard through Avalon and Ben Avon.

PILLS COULD NOT HELP HIM

HERE is a true story of a man who suffered for years from constipation. Then he found the pleasant, natural way to relief that millions of people now follow:

"I am 52 years old and have put in years suffering from constipation. Spent lots of money, bought all kinds of pills and drugged myself every night with them and awoke lots of mornings with a headache.

"Haven't taken one pill since I began on Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I am now feeling the best I have felt in 20 years. I eat heartily and nothing hurts me."

ALBERT F. PARKER
Massachusetts

It is never too late to try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This delicious cereal is guaranteed—two tablespoonfuls daily, three times daily in severe cases.

Start now to enjoy this way to better health. Ask your grocer for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

FORD ASSAILS ALL TARIFFS

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—A broadside against tariff protection in all countries was delivered here by Henry Ford.

Pausing long enough in his European trip to announce price reductions on some of his cars in Great Britain, the American automobile magnate proceeded to attack "All tariffs in the United States and other countries." He said:

"Tariffs as trade protection are rarely successful."

He asserted British buyers of Ford automobiles during 1929 paid about $8,750,000 more than American buyers for the same number of cars. He blamed the horsepower tax upon British automobilists for forcing smaller motors into the Ford models sold in Great Britain.

Land Purchase for City Dump Proposed

A resolution directing the purchase of seven and a half acres of land owned by John E. Born, on Forward avenue, near the Zama road, to be used as a city dump, was presented to City Council yesterday.

The dump should Council take favorable action on the resolution, will be used in place of the one recently ordered vacated in the Highland Park section, it was said.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Juicy Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

Lutherans to Hear Scheutle Speak

"The Great Confession's Vitality" will be the subject of the Rev. Dr. Walter E. Scheutle, newly elected president of the eastern district of the American Lutheran Church, at the Lutheran Reformation mass meeting Sunday night in Syria Mosque. The Lutheran Church throughout Western Pennsylvania will eliminate regular evening services on that night. The meeting is held under the auspices of the Lutheran Brotherhood of Pittsburgh and the Lutheran Inner Mission Society.

Pianos To Loan FREE

Frankly, we have too many pianos now in stock. Of course, we would like to sell them. Some new, some used instruments. Every piano in the sale will be sacrificed at a price almost unbelieveable. The slashing reductions on Grands, Players and Uprights should cause many to be sold immediately. All pianos not sold outright will be placed in the homes of families interested in owning a piano in the immediate future, particularly homes where there are children. You must call at the store to file your request.

Positively No Charge Of Any Kind

We, of course, reserve the right to select the homes in which the pianos are to be placed and they may be used indefinitely until we need them.

Easy to look at

YOU CAN'T help admiring the charm of natural beauty, any more than you can help enjoying the natural mildness of a Camel Cigarette.

Camel's mildness starts in the sun-drenched fields where the tobaccos grow. Only the choicest of the golden Turkish and mellow Domestic leaves are selected for Camels. Through every step of their cure and manufacture the delicate, sun-ripe fragrance of these tobaccos is scientifically preserved. And so Camels come to you mild and delightful—not flat and flavorless.

Swing with the crowd to Camels. Learn the happy difference between true mildness and insipid flatness. Smoke without fear of throat-discomfort or after-taste—just for pleasure!

Skinny, I Gained 25 Lbs. and Lovely, Clear Skin Quick

"I was underweight for years. Finally took Ironized Yeast. Quickly gained 25 lbs. Skin lovely, figure perfect."—Mrs. W. Hornbeck.

"Skinny," weak men and women are amazed at gain of 5 to 15 lbs. in 3 weeks. Ugly hollows vanish. Bony limbs round out. Sallow, blemished skin gets clear and rosy like magic. Nervousness, indigestion, constipation disappear overnight. Sound sleep, new pep.

Two great tonics in one—special weight-building Brewer's Yeast and strengthening Iron. Pleasant little tablets. Far stronger than unmedicated yeast. Results in ½ time. No yeasty taste, no gas.

Don't go around "skinny," ugly, unattractive. Get Ironized Yeast from druggist today. Feel great tomorrow. Money back from manufacturer if not delighted.

RULES

Proper nouns, slang and words that offend good taste cannot be used. SCORING: The first and last letters of each word do not count as strokes. A longer or shorter word can be substituted, but at a penalty. If a longer word is used, each letter above par counts as a stroke; if a shorter word is used, each letter below par counts as a stroke. If player cannot insert a suitable word, add 3 strokes to par for hole and proceed to next hole.

Home Service Fund Chairmen Named

Additional group chairmen in the business and professional division for the final week of the home service fund campaign of the Salvation Army have been announced at campaign headquarters. Thomas M. Pringle has accepted the chairmanship of the architects' group. Pomeroy J. Herron is to lead the stocks and bonds group, and W. C. McKinney is heading the plumbers' supplies group. The workers are seeking $112,900. Almost one quarter of the amount is now in hand.

FOR ANY CHILD

CHILDREN are happy and carefree by nature, so when they cry for no apparent reason any careful mother worries. No one can always guess just what is wrong but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as baby has a fretful spell, is feverish and cross and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes it is constipation. Just keep Castoria handy and give freely for any of the above conditions; relief will follow promptly.

All through babyhood, Castoria is a mother's standby, and wise mothers do not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Just increase the dose of Castoria and keep the youngster's stomach sweet and the bowels in good order.

To be sure of getting genuine Fletcher's Castoria you should look for this signature: Chas. H. Fletcher

ERIE HEAD SEES SLUMP ENDED

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Business has passed the lowest level of the depression period and is beginning a climb gradually and steadily back to normal, Charles E. Denny, president of the Erie Railroad, said in an address before members of the Traffic Club.

The Erie Railroad, Denny said, is now in the best condition in its history. The railroad has spent $30,000,000 for improvements during the last year and $125,000,000 in the last five years, he stated.

Poor complexions show big improvement overnight

with corrective cream prescribed by nurses

"HOW MUCH smoother and clearer your skin is." "And finer-textured, too." Delightful compliments! You'll get them the very next morning after you've used this quick-healing night cream.

Nurses first discovered this quick way to clear and refine the skin. And largely through their recommendation, over 6,000,000 women now keep their complexions radiantly fresh and lovely with Noxzema Skin Cream.

Noxzema is a triple action cream. Its soothing oils soften the skin and smooth away roughness. Its mild medication heals blemishes and rids the pores of poisons and harmful wastes. Its gentle astringents shrink enlarged pores back to normal. And Noxzema beautifies—as well as corrects. For it stimulates even good complexions to greater loveliness.

You'll be amazed to see how quickly Noxzema heals. It softens and smooths the skin instantly—refines and helps clear it in 8 hours.

Let Noxzema show you what glorious new beauty it can bring your skin. Get a small, trial jar today.

FEMININE STARS SHINE BRIGHTLY IN CURRENT PLAYS ON LEGITIMATE STAGE

As "Scarlet Sister Mary" Ethel Barrymore Has Hard Job

By GEORGE SEIBEL

"UNEX," the name conferred on the first of her tribe of ten children by "Scarlet Sister Mary," the mahogany heroine of the play by that title, might very well have been the title of the play in which Ethel Barrymore last night showed a great audience at the Alvin Theater what will happen when the Gullah Negroes read Bertrand Russell.

George Seibel.

"Unex" stands for "Unexpected," and there are more unexpected things in this play than audiences generally expect.

To begin with Miss Barrymore's make-up and dialect—these are unexpected. And yet, why shouldn't she play this part when generations of great actors have played "Othello"? No fault can be found with "Scarlet Sister Mary" on racial grounds. Nor on moral grounds either—for with her ten children she is no worse than the fair Camille without any.

It is the multiplied "unexpectednesses" of the drama made from Julia Peterkin's novel that one finds difficult to swallow.

Of course it was to be expected that Si May-e's truant husband would return home after 20 years of wandering, but it wasn't to be expected that he would walk in unannounced right between one daughter's goodby and the first-born's death. But he had to hurry, as it was nearly 11 o'clock.

THE PALE CAST OF THOUGHT

The play's most serious fault is that it is "sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought." These Gullah Negroes think too much. They argue too much about religion, which is a thing they might shout about, but not discuss. And, as already intimated, there is altogether too much Bertrand Russell in the air of this South Carolina plantation. There is even a suspicion, as when Sister Mary says "she does her own sinnin' in her own way," that Shaw is not unknown in those parts.

Anyway, it is hard to believe in Mary as a real sinner. She talks about it, and others talk about it, but there is little evidence. Nobody seems to shun her, and she doesn't appear to worry about it herself. At any rate not until nearly 11 o'clock, and at that hour it is time for all sinners, scarlet or pink, to think of repentance.

It is hard to believe in the play at all as a transcript of true folkways. We hear a rooster crowing, and we hear a whippoorwill calling, but the only thing that has the reality of life is an adorable baby that cooes and croons from its cradle. That's "Unex," who reappears 20 years later to die of consumption, also unexpected.

SINCERITY OF ACTING

All this does not mean that the play is without some splendid moments, or that the cast, especially Miss Barrymore, do not put into it the sincerity of great acting. One of those moments is when Sister Mary makes her first prayer to God, and another is the parting scene with her daughter, Seraphine, played charmingly by her own daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt.

Estelle Winwood, who manages her dialect better than any of the others, also is real flesh and blood as a primitive Lulu Belle. William B. Mack as a conjure man is aboriginal under the skin. Georgie Drew Mendum puts pathetic humor into the part of Doll. The rest were none too sure of their lines and none too sure of their dialect. But aside from the dialect, there is too much reasoned rationalism and too much pretty poetry in the lines to fool an audience. Even the Heaven Gate Singers sing too well for a Gullah choir.

"Scarlet Sister Mary" is not another "Porgy."

BUT IT'S WELL PUT ON

It may not be well put together, but it's well put on. The dooryard with the Gullah wedding in the first scene, and the interior of Sister Mary's cabin are appealing bits of stage realism. And many of the characters have occasional revelations of reality—in their crude superstititons, in their emotional outbursts, in their natural tolerance and intolerance. If only they wouldn't think too much. If only they wouldn't act.

Take the last scene of all as an example. Unex has just died. Sister Mary leaves the couch where he is lying—she walks over into the spotlight and talks to God. She gets religion.

Which is quite orthodox stage business. But the real Sister Mary would throw herself upon her boy's body, and tear her hair and beat her breasts, and call on God with incoherent ravings to kill her.

Miss Barrymore's instinctive art must tell her this woman is neither a Sylvia Pankhurst nor a Saint Monica. If she had more play for her noble emotional gifts, and less debating, Ethel Barrymore might overcome the handicaps of hazard that make this a play of great unexpectations.

Romance

Alla Nazimova, Russia's gift to the American stage, appears at the head of the Theater Guild Company offering "A Month in the Country" in the Nixon.

Sepia

Ethel Barrymore has the leading role in "Scarlet Sister Mary," dramatic negro character study current in the Alvin.

MOTION AND EMOTION IN GOLDEN ROD SHOW

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, JR.

"Trail of the Lonesome Pine," playing at the Golden Rod Show Boat this week, packs four acts just full of motion—and emotion. Sometimes, in fact, the motion's so fast we have no notion just what it's all about.

Having heard the first line—and probably no more—of that song of ancient vintage—"In the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia,"—entitled "On the Trail of the Lonesome Pine," you already know the setting.

There are mountaineers and a "furriner" intruding on their hunting grounds. Jack Hale is the "furriner" and his acting is very, very "furrin" indeed. But he's the new member of the cast and doesn't have a very colorful part. Just another Boy Scout.

In between are The Carrs, and Vic (Penny) Faust, swell Swiss bell ringer.

Nazimova and Guild Cast Give Fine Performance In the Nixon

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Alla Nazimova, supported by a Theater Guild company that is almost the ultimate in perfection, came to the Nixon last night and scored an artistic success in a comedy, "A Month In the Country," the original of which is by Ivan Turgenev, who has been dead since 1883. That would seem to date the play to such a remote age that there could be little expectation of exciting interest of a modern theater patron. Nevertheless there was present a house-filling audience of extreme smartness if one is to judge by sartorial evidence. Which indicates the faith of Pittsburgh that the quality of entertainment the Guild has supplied in the past could with reason be expected to be maintained.

Nazimova and her good companions did their best to see that this faith was not misplaced and they succeeded so well that the audience was completely captivated in a play that was motivated by such simple dramatic elements as to appear just a casual resume of happenings that could occur—and do—at any time and in any place. "A Month in the Country" is old-fashioned only in the costumes and Russian only because it was necessary to make that country, of the time when serfs were counted as wealth, the scene in order to give more credit to Turgenev than his memory perhaps deserves.

SKILFULLY DIRECTED

The program gives other credits—translation to M. S. Mandell and acting version to Rouben Mamoulian, remembered for his direction of "Porgy," who also directed the Turgenev opus. One imagines that it is due to his skill that the comedy, for such it is classified, seems as modern as today.

The story is simplicity itself. The wife of the owner of a vast estate, who has been romantically interested in a friend of the family, gives the triangle another side when she falls in love with the tutor of her young son and becomes the rival of her ward for his affections. The problem resolves itself into its simplest terms when both men decide to leave, going at the precise moment when it is most logical in order to get the curtain down at 11 o'clock and incidentally save a lady's reputation.

LANGUID SIREN

Mme. Nazimova reveals her capacity by being at once languid and emotional, at once languid and capricious, at once languid and passionate, at once languid and sympathetic. She, as Natalia Petronova always appears in the last stages of boredness, as, indeed, a woman with such a heart must always be. Yet from her there emanate flashes of soul fire and great depth of feeling. Can more be said for art?

Earle Larimore depicts the meticulous lover, the careful lover, the suave, genteel and polished lover, finally beaten when there comes to him the realization that his devotion is a cost too great to pay for the little return, as he points out to his successor, the tutor. The latter role is finely played by James Todd. Indeed, all roles are extremely well played, especially that of a country doctor, which is the contribution of a real actor, Cecil Yapp. His low comedy scene with Henry Travers and wooing of a maiden lady are the laugh spots of the production, which is staged with as great a degree of excellence as it is acted.

Tried Everything, Without Results —New Prescription, ACIDINE, Ends Trouble

"I am 60 years of age and had been bothered with acid indigestion, fermentation and gas in stomach and bowels for many years," writes Mr. M. A. Funk, of Riverton, N. J. "Tried everything without result until I heard of ACIDINE. It gave me relief at once. Now feel great."

Just one of thousands who have been astonished and delighted at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds where other remedies fail. The reason is that it is entirely different from other known medicines. Contains the marvelous digestant called Japtase. In laboratory experiments Japtase has been tested on certain starchy foods which cause so much stomach distress. It digested 800 times its weight of such goods in 30 minutes!

Five other ingredients in ACIDINE neutralize burning acid, soothe irritated stomach lining, stop gas and headache from acidity. No other known remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach trouble. Pain goes like a flash!

Physicians are prescribing ACIDINE, and thousands of people have found it the only relief from acid indigestion, and dyspepsia, gas, pain, heartburn, coated tongue, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, nervousness, fullness from acid stomach trouble.

Don't take chances of getting serious and more painful troubles. Get ACIDINE from any druggist today. Costs only a few cents. Watch how quick pain, gas, end. Eat, drink and smoke all you want. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT, MAIDEN LADIES IN THE PITT

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Elizabeth Sleeps Out," a sparkling, breezy comedy, is the new George Sharp production in the Pitt. It is all about a little girl who sees a man in a crowd, and falls in love with him on sight, and a maiden aunt who goes sallying forth into the night with a fellow who turns out to be her nephew.

Mabel Kroman is present as a spinster lady, with modern ideas. She confesses that reading a "yellow" journal is her secret pleasure. But she has some other pleasures. She drinks more sherry than she should, just because it has been poured and she doesn't want it to be wasted.

OH, MR. FISKE!

Robert Fiske is there as an intoxicated young fellow, who comes to his great aunt's memorial services all dressed up in evening clothes. He is three acts of fun, staggers and drunken gestures.

Paul McGrath is the hero. He enters the scene as an undertaker's assistant. He advocates smiles at funerals. And he ends up by getting the heroine.

Jean May, as usual, is the heroine. Charming and attractive, she faints the first few times she sees the man she loves. But finally she gets enough courage to look at him without dropping into a swoon.

THEY PLAY SOLITAIRE

Alice Ann Baker and Catherine Malson appear as a couple of mournful, old-fashioned ladies, who play solitaire and are shocked at a niece who loves an undertaker, a nephew who likes giggling water and sister who "falls" for a gentleman's Hope Home for Spinsters.

Others in the cast are Joseph Lawrence, who has learned that discretion is the best part of "butlering," and John Winthrop, who, as an attorney, has the mannerisms of a clergyman. His is the classic line: I'm not a cynic, I'm in a hurry.

The play is well produced by Mr. Sharp. Its staging is good and the cast does commendable work. In fewer words, it is a play that offers an evening of bright entertainment.

New Academy Show Is "Flapper Follies"

"Flapper Follies," in the Academy, has elaborate scenes, including a "Living Curtain" and "Girl and the Fan." The cast is headed by Jack "Tramp" Montague, comedian; Alice Duvall, soubret; Johanna Slade and Nanette Daily, singers and dancers. There are specialties by Lenzen and Zelig, acrobats; Jack "Tiny" Fuller, Ed Lolor, Gus Flaig, Mae Malben and Marie Oliver. "Flapper Follies" has its own chorus, the local chorus policy having been abandoned for this as well as all future shows in the Academy.

★An announcement of importance to Every Owner of a Radio

★A free demonstration of Eveready Raytheon 4-Pillar Tubes... in your own radio set, at home

It will give you an entirely new conception of what your present radio can do

NOW... learn the good news about your radio! Discover all the hidden beauty of its tone... the vivid reality of its reception when it is actually and constantly at its best! The makers of Eveready Raytheon 4-Pillar Tubes and the dealers named below want to show you what a vital difference the right tubes can make. Without obligation on your part, and at no cost whatever to you, any of these dealers will gladly demonstrate a set of Eveready Raytheon Tubes with your own radio, in your own home.

Prepare for a revelation in tone! In clarity, power, freedom from disturbing tube-noises, and in the fewer seconds it takes these tubes to jump on the job when you click the switch. For Eveready Raytheons are a new and better tube . . . a SOUND improvement, based on a revolutionary new principle in tube-construction.

It is the same principle on which the piers of a suspension-bridge are built. They always stand four-square . . . built to endure. Picture to yourself what a precarious foundation such a bridge would have if its piers were anchored at only two points instead of four. Four points of support is a tried-and-true engineering-principle . . . as old as the great Pyramids of Egypt. But Eveready Raytheons are the first and only radio tubes ever to take advantage of it!

The elements in an Eveready Raytheon have as strong a foundation, in proportion, as the mightiest bridge. You can see this patented 4-*Pillar construction inside any one of these tubes. Anchoring the fragile elements hard and fast, protecting them against dangerous jolts, safeguarding them from the racking vibration of dynamic speakers. Because they are so firmly braced, they always retain the almost unbelievable accuracy with which they are set in position. That's the reason for their matchless performance!

Ordinary tubes use only two points of support for their elements . . . Eveready Raytheon Tubes use four. This 4-Pillar construction is patented, and no other tube can use it. With Eveready Raytheons in your own radio, you can hear the difference and see the reason.

We are so convinced of the superiority of these tubes that we want to demonstrate to you what they will do in your own radio, at home, without obligation to you. Hear Eveready Raytheons, by all means. Unless you do, you may never know what a fine musical instrument your radio can be.

Clip the coupon below. Fill in the time when a demonstration will be most convenient. Write your name and address, and mail or present it to any of these dealers. Let this free demonstration bring a new world of radio pleasure into your home.

UPWARD TRADE SWING SEEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(INS.)—Business is swinging upward and wages are holding firm, a nation-wide survey presented to the National Association of Manufacturers revealed today. The survey embraced reports of 800 members and covered up to September 30.

John E. Edgerton, Lebanon (Tenn.) woolen manufacturer, president of the association, in addressing its annual meeting here, said the trade slump, although widespread, was not sufficient to "weaken the confidence of constructive minds in the essential parts of our American economic system."

The association passed resolutions urging the government to let all mail contracts as speedily as possible, calling the air mail an "important facility of transportation for manufacturers." Another resolution opposed the entrance of the government in business, saying that the "function of our government is political, not economic."

ANDREWS FINDS MANY FOSSILS

PEIPING, China, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Bringing a record bag of prehistoric fossils the Central Asiatic Expedition, led by Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, the American anthropologist, returned here today after five months of intensive work in the Gobi Desert.

Walter C. Granger, chief paleontologist, who directed operations in this field, said this year's collection is the biggest and scientifically the most important made by the expedition since its first explorations in 1922.

Fossils representing about 75 different species, several of them new to science, have been found and are expected to throw much additional light upon the evolution and dispersal of animal life millions of years ago.

No human remains thus far have been discovered, but Dr. Andrews does not consider that this rules out the possibility that forerunners of the Peking man yet may be found in the Gobi region.

HOW DO YOU STAND?

Check up on your health. Have you any balance in the Bank of Vitality—any reserves of strength to draw upon? Replenishment must come through easily digested foods that supply strength. Build up reserves by eating Shredded Wheat with plenty of milk. It supplies all the elements you need. Try it for breakfast and see how much better you feel.

Jail Built in 1671 Proves Useful Now

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—A prison erected in 1671 is still doing business and effectively keeps folks inside looking out. It was built by Danes and first known as Fredericks Fort.

DELAY TRIAL IN 'SHAKEDOWN'

Trial of conspiracy charges against Justice of the Peace Thomas R. Gracie, of Brentwood, and Constable George Hilpert, scheduled for trial today in Criminal Court, was postponed on request of the commonwealth so the state may seek a third man, thought to have been involved. The defendants are alleged to have conspired to "shake down" Anton Polak, of Glass Run road, Baldwin township, of profits from the sale of alleged moonshine liquor.

DeMolay to Hold Dance Tomorrow

The sixth anniversary dance of Allegheny Chapter, Order of DeMolay, will be held tomorrow night at Pope's Riverview Inn, near Riverview Park. All members of the order, past and present, alumni, Masons and their friends are invited. William Irwin is chairman of the committee.

Deputy Constable Named in 15th Ward

Increased business, or badness, in the Fifteenth Ward was cited by Constable George J. Michael in applying to Quarter Sessions Court for the appointment of a deputy constable to assist him in his work. Judge George V. Moore appointed Robert C. Barr, 47, of Bowers avenue, to the post upon Michael's recommendation.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Fame is fleeting, we always say, and in this connection we have invented a new parlor game for which a floor lamp is first prize, a floor lamp is second prize and another floor lamp is third prize. The game consists of asking one simple question: What was the name of the pilot who flew across the ocean with Amelia Earhart?

Pittsburgh is fast becoming an unsafe booking for stars of the stage. Harry Richman comes to town with the "Scandals," meets a young South Side miss and is sued by her. Frances Williams follows him in a latter edition of the same show and is hailed into court to tell if and why she alienated the affections of a young Beaver Falls wife's husband. Jules Bledsoe, who sang "Ole Man River" in Ziegfeld's "Showboat," is arrested as a suspicious character on the Hill because his auto is not only flashy but expensive, it seems. And now Bill Robinson feels the bullet from a local policeman's revolver nipping one of his arms, but, thank everybody, not one of his tap-dancing dogs. The catalogue will be complete when Jackie Coogan, on his next visit, is tossed into the hoosegow for causing a traffic jam with his kiddie car at Fifth and Smithfield.

From Windber, Pa., Bruce Anderson answers our request for the words to a song labelled "I'm Simply Apathetic Over You." Compose your own tune:

I'm simply apathetic over you,
If you should leave me I would not feel blue.
I never wish to be with you alone,
Believe me, I don't want you for my own.
To be faithful I will never swear,
My love for you I never shall declare,
I do not care for anything you do,
I'm simply apathetic over you.

If you meet Capt. Menke, of the Golden Rod Showboat, you will be disappointed in his appearance, especially if you saw Andy Hawks in the Ziegfeld show or read Miss Ferber's "Showboat." Capt. Menke doesn't fit the fictional description of showboat captains. In fact, he doesn't conform to any type. He is between 40 and 50, good-natured and the owner of a wide smile which pushes his face out beyond normal. He is frank, too. Between acts of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" we asked him how his boat's version of the piece (there are a dozen versions) ended, and he confessed he didn't know. He added: "I haven't seen a show on the boat for 10 years."

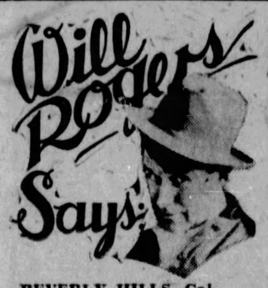
The hissing and hooting by the audience continues these nights, but one night last week there was a hissless and hootless performance. It was during the first act that a gentleman of avoirdupois jumped from his front-row seat and delivered this speech: "Now there ain't a good wisecracker in the house and I don't wanna hear any more. I came here to listen to the lines, not to any cheap wisecracks."

The gentleman won.

Will Rogers Says:



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 7.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

I don't know how it is in your part of the country, but brother, I am betraying no confidence when I announce to the world publicly that out here it's hot, not warm, but just downright hot. The Chamber of Commerce can use that as an ad, or suppress it, but it's as true as everything I ever wrote about the Republican party, and right on top of it I get a long telegram from Death Valley Scotty, (whom I have known 25 years) asking me to come to Death Valley and he would show me all through it.

Mr. Hoover looks like he just said, "I will make all my year's speeches at once, and then go home and try and live 'em down." Yours, WILL.

RATE BATTLE RESUMED BY COAL MEN

Rail Charges Protested as Unfair; M'Elvany's June Testimony Reviewed

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 7. — Cross-examination of experts for Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio coal interests occupied the first day's hearings in the resumption of the lake cargo rate controversy before Examiner Charles B. Bardwell, of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Edgewater Beach Hotel here yesterday. The hearings were attended by more than 100 operators and attorneys from the northern and southern fields.

Today's program calls for hearing of outside intervening parties testifying on behalf of the Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio interests in their demand for greater freight rate advantages over the southern districts. Hearing of carrier representatives Southern coal operators and Northwestern coal consumers are expected to follow and the sessions are likely to continue through the week.

M'ELVANY FIRST

A. B. McElvany, of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau, was the first to undergo cross-examination on testimony given in Washington, D. C., in June. He introduced, at the request of Southern coal operators, five additional exhibits as further information on his testimony as to traffic, rates and district tonnages. Cross-examination of McElvany was brief, opposing operators finding little to question or take exception to.

C. B. Ackerman, transportation analyst, the second called for cross examination was questioned at length. He had introduced charts showing operating conditions in the various fields as well as information intended to amplify evidence given in June. Cross examination was concerned chiefly with the methods he used in compiling his testimony. No serious attempt was made to attack the final result of his analysis.

PITTSBURGHERS ATTEND

Pittsburgh was represented at the opening hearing by an array of legal talent and experts and others are expected to arrive today. Among those already in attendance are: Assistant City Solicitor Charles P. Lang, W. P. Buffington, traffic manager of the Pittsburgh Coal Company; R. Templeton Smith, Poland Coal Company, and R. W. McKown, assistant to A. B. McElvany.

PROTEST RATES

Ohio and Pennsylvania coal shippers contend the differential of 35 cents in the mine-to-port rate—$1.46 per ton from Ohio and Pennsylvania, and $1.81 from Kentucky and West Virginia fields—is too small in comparison with the difference in miles. The Southern coal operators, on the contrary, hold that the differential is too great.

NEW PETITIONER

A new intervening petitioner was filed by the city of Pittsburgh and the Anthracite Institute.

The latter petitioner declared the present relationship of rates unfavorable to anthracite and opposed any change that would make the relationship more unfavorable.

CLEANUP PRIZES GIVEN PUPILS

Eight hundred dollars in cash and several cups and medals were awarded to representatives of city and county schools by the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce last night, for the work done to make the clean up, paint up, plant up campaign a success last spring. Three hundred school children were present. Charles Donley, chairman of the life and property committee of the chamber, made the presentations.

Don Black, of Langley High School, received the main trophy in the contest in behalf of his school, which had taken first place. With the cup went $75 as first prize.

P.R.R. to Honor Lyle, Trainmaster 52 Years

More than 100 passenger trainmen of the Panhandle Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad will attend a reception in honor of Robert C. Lyle, retired trainmaster, at the latter's home in Crafton Friday night. He has retired on a pension after serving the Pennsylvania Railroad between Pittsburgh and Columbus for 52 years. A committee arranging for the reception is headed by W. A. McDonough, passenger conductor.

Guilty Plea Wins Wearer Of Marine Cap Probation

Andrew H. Bailey, 26, alias Capt. A. Boyle, alias Capt. A. Hilrex, arrested three weeks ago for unlawfully wearing a cap of an officer of the United States Marine Corps, after he had registered at a downtown hotel as an officer of the marines, pleaded guilty before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court and was placed on probation for two years.

He told the court he was not a member of the marines, but won the title of "captain" serving as an aviator in a rebel army in Mexico. He declared the cap he was wearing when arrested was given him by a former member of the marines, and he said he did not realize he was violating a law by wearing it.

Bailey also reiterated the statements he made at the time of his arrest that he had made tentative plans for a round-the-world flight with Richard Halliburton, the author and lecturer.

A distinguished service ribbon he wore at the time of his arrest belonged to a brother, Bailey told the court. After being taken into custody, he told government officers he had served in the World War in the Lafayette Esquadrille, and also that he was making a record flight from Los Angeles when his plane cracked up near Steubenville, O. Neither of the latter exploits was mentioned when he appeared in court.

Lawyer Tells Cathie She Is Charged With Murder

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Mary Paige took her girl in her arms and held her close. She had determined to be brave, even a little haughty. To show these people that she wasn't taking their foolish red tape the least bit seriously. Her son-in-law was dead—God rest him, and her daughter, poor child, was being held until after the inquest and all. The ponderous law must take its course, and a person had to put up with it. . . . But Cathie calling her "mama" made her forget all that. . . . It took her back so far . . . made her realize so vividly . . . Her girl, her little girl, in this place.

Her tears rained on Cathie's curly head.

"You shouldn't have come here," Cathie said thickly.

Mary Paige tried to answer, shook her head. Cathie watched her, sick with shame. Saw her mother's bent, humbled head, her good black dress, the black silk gloves.

Black . . . Ma was wearing black, too . . . For her son-in-law who was dead, or her daughter whom they took to jail? "Ma, your veil is all crooked," she said gently. It was the veil Ma had worn long ago, for her dead husband.

"It doesn't matter," Mary Paige said brokenly. "I only put it on to hide my face. The . . . the shock. I—I can't look at people yet, Cathie."

Cathie looked down at her own hands, folded in her lap. They looked strange to her, because they were ringless. She had left her rings in a jewel box, that night. She thought, "Who'd ever think that I who was home with Ma in Clara street a year ago would be here now, in jail . . . and Ma with me . . .

Innocent

Cathie Feels Sorry for Mother

She said, "Ma, it was good of you to come."

"And who'd come if not your mother?"

Cathie's chin quivered, down went her head again on the dear, comforting shoulder. She thought of that line from Kipling . . . "and if I were hanged on the highest hill,

"I know whose love would follow me still . . ."

Yes, Ma would come, even . . . even if she were hanged, on the highest hill . . .

"Ma, you know that I don't know anything about it? That they're just keeping me here to ask me—question—"

"Cathie, my little girl."

Ma's arm around her again, Ma's arms giving comfort.

The blessed tears coming to Cathie, cooling her burning eyes, unloosening the tightness in her heart . . . "Ma, you're so good . . . so good. Oh, I can't ever make up to you . . . and I tried . . . I tried—"

"Hush, child. Darlin', don't worry. It will be all right!"

Her Secret

Doesn't Tell About Love For Gordon

"Ma, it wasn't my fault, really, that I'm disgracing you. I couldn't help it that he—"

"I know, darlin'—I know."

"Ma, he was so good to me—so good—"

"I know. There, there, child—don't cry—don't cry, so!"

"Ma, it seems so sort of cruel that I can't be—sort of sitting with him, now. He'd have liked it. I hope he can't know what's happening . . . to me . . . That's the only comfort I have, knowing he'll never know . . . And thinking of what Doctor Bulloch said—that he was going to die anyway . . . And I haven't any-

ALARM FELT FOR PENSION SHRINKAGE

Conference Adjourns After Debate Over Selection of Field Agent, Money Raiser

By THE REV. C. T. MURDOCK, Special Correspondent.

Many important questions were considered during the final hours of the Methodist Episcopal Conference session. The most important was a motion by the Rev. Dr. Hartung requesting the Bishop to change the time of meeting from October to June.

An interesting debate arose in connection with the report on the Conference Claimant's Fund, or pension for aged preachers. An alarming shrinkage amounting to 15 per cent was reported and the Rev. Dr. Mills, of Duquesne, made a speech in favor of appointing a "money raiser" or field agent. The difficulty of finding a man at this late hour compelled a postponement and the motion was voted down.

LOSE VOTE

The Rev. Dr. Duncan participated in an interesting discussion on the subject of citizenship. Many of the pastors lose their right to vote because of change in residence. Holding the conference in June will cure this.

The report of the committee on prohibition and public morals, given by Dr. Cameron, struck off many sparks of enthusiasm. He paid his respects to the great metropolitan newspapers and claimed they are partisan in their attitude. The Anti-Saloon League, the Methodist Board at Washington and the W. C. T. U. were indorsed, as was Dr. Urmy, editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

INDORSE PINCHOT

Gifford Pinchot was approved with great enthusiasm. An effort is going to be made to get this report into all the rural papers in this part of the state, the conference agreed.

Dr. Conners reported for the committee on education, saying all the colleges are flourishing.

WALKS AGAINST AUTO, HURT

As the result of walking against the side of an automobile in West Carson street last night, Harry Scott, 28, of 1003 Towell street, was in a serious condition today in the Ohio Valley Hospital, according to police.

The victim was taken to the hospital by William Cross, of 525 Ridge avenue, McKees Rocks, driver of the car.

A runaway truck owned by the North Pole Ice Company upset after crashing into the fence of Mt. Washington Methodist Church, Bigham street, near Virginia avenue, yesterday.

The driver, S. G. Robinson, of 3804 Baytree street, was making a delivery at a nearby store when the brakes on the truck became released, police said.

CITY WARNED OF FIRE LOSS

Talks on the costliness of fire in the United States and inspections of sections of the downtown district believed to be fire hazards, featured yesterday's program of "Fire Prevention Week" conducted here by the Chamber of Commerce.

Speakers using radio stations WCAE and WJAS last night declared the fire loss in the United States has increased from $162,000,000 to $472,000,000 in 30 years.

TRIO FREED OF INQUIRY CHARGE

O'Donnell, Donnelly, Moser Released 'For Lack of Sufficient Evidence'

An information filed in Federal Court, February 18, 1929, by former United States Attorney John D. Meyer in his North Side rum ring investigation, against John J. O'Donnell, Twenty-second Ward political leader; Edward J. Moser and Elliott Donnelley was quashed today by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

The information charged the trio with sale and possession of intoxicating liquor.

Judge Schoonmaker's action followed the motion of United States Attorney Louis E. Graham, who informed the court that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant further prosecution.

Today's action clears the court dockets of the cases that grew out of the rum ring investigation.

2 AUTO DRIVERS HELD IN DEATHS

Two drivers were held to await grand jury action on manslaughter charges today by a coroner's jury inquiring into two automobile deaths.

One is Harry Platt, of 5006 Glenwood avenue. On September 2, Henrietta Hillis, of 98 Hazelwood avenue, a passenger in Platt's car, was killed when the machine crashed into a furniture van parked in Beechwood, near Welfer street.

The other driver is Anthony Thomas, of 7646 Hamilton avenue, driver of a machine which on October 31 crashed into a car at Forbes street, near Homewood Cemetery, resulting in the death of Mrs. Lena Gardone, 27, of 1241 Miller street, a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Sam Gardone.

INDICT ALLEGED FEUD GUNMAN

As an alleged outgrowth of the political warfare in Wilmerding, Vincenzo Delatora has been indicted for felonious assault on former Constable John E. Williams by the October grand jury, which began sitting yesterday.

Delatora is being held in jail, unable to raise $10,000 bail demanded by District Attorney Andrew T. Park. His attorney recently applied to Judge George V. Moore to reduce to bond demand, but his motion was refused.

It is charged Delatora fired at Williams from an automobile, but missed him. Delatora was arrested a short time later in a store. He denied doing the shooting.

Auto Operators Increase in State

An increase of 36,192 in automobile operators in the state is noted this year, Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles, notified the Pittsburgh Motor Club. There is a total of 2,072,423 operators licensed in the state thus far in 1930, the commissioner states. Last year for the same period the figure was 2,034,231.

BEAUTY AIDES DISCUSS SHOW

Statistics presented at the national convention of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association in Washington last month were read at the first fall meeting of the Pittsburgh branch of the organization in the William Penn Hotel last night.

The figures showed that in 1929 the 40,000 beauty parlors in the United States took in $980,000,000, of which $350,000,000 was spent on permanent waving.

F. M. Colle, president of the branch, presided. Officers who attended and discussed a beauty show for Pittsburgh were F. G. Lichti, secretary; M. Curci, treasurer, and Mrs. L. Hill, vice president.

Jewish 'Y' Opens Membership Drive

An old-fashioned rally and Dutch supper in the "Y" building, Bellefield avenue, last night opened a two-week drive of the Y. M. and W. H. A. for 1,000 new members. Leon Falk, Jr., general chairman of the campaign, presided.

Malone Reaches High Mark In Insurance Sales

James F. Malone, former president of City Council, has joined the ranks of the foremost insurance men in the country by placing in force more than $1,000,000 in new life insurance as a general agent for the Reliance Life Insurance Company here in the last eight months. He has led the national sales organization of the company, competing against 1,500 agents since May. "Jim" Malone

The large volume of business he has done is composed of 69 cases ranging from $1,000 to $75,000. He has written at least one case a week for 36 consecutive weeks.

Mr. Malone said:

"Some people might think that to write a million dollars of insurance you must be constantly seeking big cases of $100,000 or more. That isn't particularly true. I get as much pleasure out of writing a small policy for a salaried man or industrial worker who really needs insurance protection as I do for a so-called 'big' case for someone who is protected in his financial interests."

HIGHLAND PARK BOND ISSUE VOTED

$150,000 Improvement at Carnegie Lake Expected To be Ready Next Spring

Official councilmanic approval of the $150,000 bond issue ordinance to improve part of Carnegie Lake in Highland Park as a city swimming pool was granted yesterday by unanimous vote.

The ordinance, a project of Council President John S. Herron, will be presented to the Mayor for his approval within the next few days, Robert Clark, city clerk, said.

Work on the pool will start as soon as bonds are disposed of, it was pointed out. The pool is expected to be ready for use by next Memorial Day.

Unique in many ways, it was brought out at the council meeting, the pool will have a wading section for children, another for older children and shallow and deep pools for more experienced swimmers. The pool will be developed on the order of the city pool at Lake Elizabeth, it was said and will be the largest here.

SOPHS WINNING (DON'T THEY ALWAYS?) IN ANNUAL U. OF CAL. PUSHBALL BATTLE AGAINST FRESHMEN AT LOS ANGELES

U. P. CEREMONY ARRANGED FOR THURSDAY

Pittsburgh, Xenia Schools To Join; Memorial Trip Planned as Preliminary

The merger of the Pittsburgh and Xenia Theological Seminaries of the United Presbyterian Church will be consummated Thursday.

At 9 a. m., institutional guests, local ministers, representatives of the seminary boards, the faculty and the student body will leave the seminary building, North avenue and Buena Vista street, North Side, by automobile, for two memorial services in Beaver County. The first will be observed at the site of the old Service Seminary, the original foundation of Xenia Seminary, and the second at the grave of Dr. John Anderson, only professor of the old institution.

SPEAKERS SCHEDULED

Those scheduled to speak at these services are Dr. M. G. Kyle, former president of Xenia Seminary; Dr. T. H. McMichael, president of Monmouth College, Ill.; Dr. J. O. Campbell, of Beaver, and Dr. J. H. Webster, professor of literature in Pittsburgh - Xenia Seminary.

From the site of Service Seminary the company will proceed to Canonsburg, to which place the Service Seminary was removed in 1821. At this service, Dr. S. S. Baker, president of Washington and Jefferson College, will preside. Dr. James H. Snowden, editor of the Presbyterian Banner, and Dr. W. C. Williamson, of Monmouth, Ill., will speak.

DINNER PLANNED

Returning to Pittsburgh in the afternoon, a dinner will be served at 6 p. m. in the dining room of the Kuhn Catering Company, Collins avenue and Broad street. Dr. D. F. McGill, professor in the Pittsburgh - Xenia Theological Seminary, will preside.

The formal consummation of the merger will be held at 8 p. m. in the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, North Highland avenue and Station street. An academic procession and several addresses will complete the program.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: This is Fire Prevention Week. What can you do to help make it be a success?

MISS ANN BENNOCK, North Side: People can aid in the prevention of fires in various ways. A common cause of combustion is due to carelessness with regard to the disposition of rubbish. A person should also remember that even the tiny spark of a lighted cigaret can start what may be the destruction of human lives and valuable property.

Miss Bennock

STANLEY REPKO, Turtle Creek, student, Tech: Most fires are caused through the carelessness of someone. I believe that nearly everyone can do his share to help prevent fires. One safeguard that almost every man can follow is to be careful how he disposes of his smoked cigar or cigaret.

Mr. Repko

V. A. PETROSKY, Turtle Creek, student, Tech: Some of our biggest losses come from forest fires. Tourists who drive through wooded country should be most careful not to start these fires. The average tourist is from the city and often is ignorant of the great danger that may result from a carelessly tossed match.

Mr. Petrosky

ANDREW SENKO, North Side, unemployed: There are numerous ways that the public can assist in the prevention of fires. If the cautious man sees an ignited match, he will tramp it out. Little things start big wars; so it is with fires.

Mr. Senko

JOHN KASHEY, North Side, butcher. If each individual would take the question of fire prevention seriously many disasters could be prevented. Carelessness is at the foot of nearly every fire.

Mr. Kashey

OBITUARY

Lowrie C. Barton.

Lowrie Childs Barton, 72, an attorney and proctor in admiralty, of 1944 Beechwood boulevard, died Sunday in his home following an illness of several weeks. He was born in Pittsburgh, the son of John and Rebecca M. Barton, and attended Grant school. He later attended Pennsylvania Military Academy and Iron City College. He was admitted to practice in the Common Pleas Court July, 1881, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in October, 1882, and the Supreme Court in March, 1889. Mr. Barton has appeared in every Circuit Court of Appeals and the United States with the exception of one, and with his father tried the famous riot cases against Allegheny County. He was noted for brilliant work in Federal Court, especially for admiralty. He has been called to represent clients in every part of the country, and his briefs were requested by attorneys in European countries. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Ada Ihmson Barton; two sons, Lowrie C., Jr. and John Barton; and a grandchild, Pauline Barton. Funeral services will be held in St. Philomena's Church, Wednesday, followed by interment in Homewood Cemetery.

Bert LeRoy Stewart.

Bert LeRoy Stewart, 53, died last night at his home, 713 Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg. He was born in Waynesburg and came to Pittsburgh 37 years ago. For 29 years he was connected with the Pennsylvania Water Company of Wilkinsburg. He was a member of Brushton Lodge No. 1107, I. O. O. F., and Wilkinsburg Encampment No. 280, I. O. O. F. Besides his widow, he leaves three sons, Lawrence, Joseph and Albert, and a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Raymer, all of Wilkinsburg, a sister and three brothers. Funeral services will be held at the home at 2:30 p. m. Thursday. Interment will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Anthony Funeral.

Funeral services for William S. Anthony, 71, a resident of Pittsburgh 65 years, will be held at the home, 3355 Parkview avenue, Oakland, tomorrow afternoon. He died Sunday. For 35 years he had been connected with the C. G. Hussey Copper and Brass Rolling Mill. He was a member of the Oakland Presbyterian Church, Loyalty Lodge No. 996, F. & A. M.; Pittsburgh Consistory, Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite; Syria Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, and the Syria Automobile Club. He leaves a son, William H. Anthony, and a daughter, Miss Sarah E. Anthony.

DARROW LAUDS M. E. ACTION

Birth control legislation recommended by the Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, today was approved by Clarence Darrow, noted criminal attorney and agnostic, who added it has been the practice even without legislation.

Darrow was resting in the Fort Pitt Hotel prior to appearing on a forum program tonight in Carnegie Music Hall. His subject will be "Why I Am An Agnostic," with three other speakers giving similar expression of their religious beliefs, as follows: the Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, Protestant; Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson, Jew, and Quin O'Brien, Chicago attorney, Catholic.

Asked what problem should next be taken up by the church, Mr. Darrow declared ministers should define their beliefs. He said:

"If ministers believe in miracles, as most profess, they should say so; if they do not believe in them, as the most intelligent do not, they should take the people into their confidence and tell them that the stories of miracles are meant for childhood belief."

As for birth control, Darrow expressed the opinion that people in general have been hypocritical on this question entirely too long.

The four speakers, with President James Rae, of the Chamber of Commerce, breakfasted together at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Rae will preside tonight. A sell-out of the tickets have been announced with half of the standing room yet available.

EXPLAINS RUM PLANT GUARD

Why four city policemen were stationed in front of the huge rum plant seized yesterday by Federal prohibition agents in Vickroy street, near Magee street, was explained today by Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh.

Walsh said Inspector Beebe, of Center Avenue Station and a squad of police raided the same establishment Saturday and made three arrests. The police were detailed to arrest other suspects.

The squad still was waiting when the Federal men yesterday confiscated the stills, mash, sugar and vats.

Six men arrested received preliminary hearing today before the United States commissioner. It was testified that the agents did not have a search warrant, but one of them said he had detected the odor of alcohol. The agents testified one of the men was on the first floor attending a still and the other five were on the second floor. The hearing will be continued tomorrow.

Master Printers To Hear Lecture

"Who Invented Printing," the first of a series of lectures to be given to the Master Printers, of Pittsburgh, at weekly luncheons by Prof. David Gustafson, head of the Department of Printing, at Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be given tomorrow noon in Gimbel's dining room.

TRAFFIC STUDY JUDGES NAMED

Judges for the traffic lesson contest for teachers being conducted this month by the Better Traffic Committee were announced today by Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education section of the committee. Teachers entering in the contest, which runs until November 15, are required to write on a "Traffic Safety Lesson," one that has been successfully used by them in their schools.

The judges are Ben G. Graham, acting superintendent of public schools; the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, head of the parochial schools; Mrs. O. B. Hughes, president of the Teachers Association of Allegheny County; Kenneth Gould, editor of the Scholastic Magazine; Dr. H. L. Spencer, principal of the Frick Training School, and the Very Rev. Michael A. Lambing, chairman of the executive committee of the diocesan school board.

TRY CONSTABLE IN ANDRINI CASE

Charged with being an accessory to robbery and harboring a criminal, Jack Schneider, First Ward constable, went to trial in Criminal Court today. Selection of a jury was begun shortly before noon.

The charges against the constable grew out of the arrest of Harry Andrini, sentenced to serve 30 to 40 years for the robbery of John B. Stauff.

Andrini was arrested by a North Side patrolman following a drug store holdup in East street, and a policeman said Schneider had vouched for Andrini's good character.

Andrini is expected to testify. Schneider is being defended by Attorney Louis Little.

CONTEST AUTO DEATH AWARD

Adult children who live away from home or who live at home and give their earnings to their mother, as well as minor children dependent on such earnings, have no right to recover damages for the death of the mother in an automobile collision.

These contentions formed the basis for the appeal of Frank Domabyl from a judgment in favor of the children of Justine Gaydos in Beaver County, argued yesterday before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania here.

The appeal of the Cumberland Coal Company from the triennial assessment of coal lands by the county commissioners of Westmoreland County contended that fixing the same value for all coal in the county was an unjust assessment and disregarded differences in actual or market value due to location of the coal.

Two appeals from Butler County argued were: P. F. Conerty and Michael Waltman against the Butler County Oil Refining Company, and others, appellants; Zeno F. Henninger and others against Forquer Building, Inc., appellant.

SEES BIG TREND TO ELECTRICITY

All industry is turning to electricity as a source of power, A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, said following a meeting of the board here yesterday. He said:

"Our railroads will prove a fertile field for electrical companies. We understand, for instance, that the Pennsylvania Railroad intends to go right along with its electrification program, which also means the electrification of the Pittsburgh division of the road. It is only natural that railroads must increase their ability to carry. The modern trend—that of electrification—means that it will more or less do away with smoke in our large cities."

Fourteen of the 16 directors of the Westinghouse Company came to Pittsburgh to attend the directors' meetings, which was held at the East Pittsburgh plant.

$500 Fire Destroys Old Pitt Records

BANDITS LOOT RESTAURANT

Four bandits who escaped with $16 after holding up the Montefiore Sandwich Shop, 3404 Fifth avenue, last night, were sought by police today.

While two remained in their automobile in front of the restaurant, their two accomplices entered the place and ordered the proprietor, Joseph Parnes, two employes and three customers to remain quiet. One of the thugs then helped himself to the cash in the register. They escaped in their car which was headed for the downtown district.

Walking near her home last night, Anna Whitney, of 516 Arch street, was robbed of her purse containing $15 by a man who snatched the bag and ran down Arch street. North Side police scoured the neighborhood but found no trace of the thief.

Court Probationer Located in Prison

A bench warrant was issued in Federal Court for the arrest of Earl H. Wilson, 17, of New York, a government prisoner on probation. It will be served at the Tombs Prison, where he is awaiting trial on an automobile theft charge.

Wilson pleaded guilty before Judge Nelson McVicar on August 26 to wearing unlawfully a United States Navy uniform. He was placed on probation for six months. When he failed to report regularly to Probation Officer George G. O'Brien, investigation located him in the Tombs. When released there he will be brought here to face proceedings to revoke his parole.

LUCKY GIRL

thing to reproach myself for, really, except that I ... that I ...

No, she couldn't tell it ... her love for Gordon Moore ...

"Except what, Cathie, darlin'? Cathie, if you've been good ... Cathie, it wasn't on account of you that someone took that poor man's life? That—that Mrs. Hennessey said—"

"No, no—it was a lie ... I told you it was. We never had a cross word. He loved me, and I...tried to love him, though I never got over wishing—wishing I hadn't married him!"

"My Cathie, my poor child. Don't cry so. You'll be sick. Just close your eyes—here's my hankie. See, it's one of the fine ones you gave me. With eau de cologne on it—"

In the doorway the matron coughed. "Your sister is here, Mrs. Farnsworth," she said.

Cathie lifted her heavy head. There was Ruth, wearing that silvery green dress she had made last summer to please Mr. Browning, under a new gray coat. "Well!" Ruth said. "This is a great reunion!"

Cathie nodded and wiped her eyes.

Ruth Is Hard
Makes Unkind Remarks To Cathie

"I've been talking to Mr. Browning's friend, Mr. Harmon," Ruth rattled on nervously. "He says we're in for a pretty mess. He says Cathie is really under suspicion. Under suspicion, can you imagine that?"

"No, Ruth, no! My Cathie . . . Who told you? I'll talk to him! I'll say a few things that will——"

"Oh, Ma, do be reasonable. You don't understand, Cathie, I don't expect Ma to grasp this, at her age and the sheltered life she's led and all, but YOU ought to realize! You're just sitting there dumb as an oyster. Don't you REALIZE what this means? You'll have to consult your attorneys, and do something to prove where you were, and get an alibi and all that. Why, you can get into terrible trouble. Drag us all into the notoriety, too. I don't care so much for myself, because I'm too independent to care the least bit what people think, but you must admit it's hard on Phil Browning, with his position and all——"

Cathie hung her head.

"Mr. Harmon says you have two fine attorneys, anyway. I'm glad you had that much sense. Did you send for them right away?"

"No. Mr. Farnsworth's attorney sent them. He said—" Her voice broke again. "He said that he didn't handle criminal cases, himself."

Lawyer Calls
Says Cathie Is Charged With Murder

"Now, Cathie, don't get tragic! My gracious, goodness! With you sniffling and Ma crying, I don't know what you'd do without me. It seems I'm always the one to bear the brunt of it—poor me! I ought to be used to it. But I did think that right now I'd have a little peace for a change, and a chance to plan my own marriage—"

"Ruth, dear, you're hurtin' Cathie! Ruth, you mustn't talk—"

"No! I mustn't say anything! It's my fault that Cathie is mixed up in a murder, I suppose!"

"Cathie isn't mixed up in a—in a—"

"She is. Haven't I just been telling you? Didn't Phil Browning's own friend, Mr. Harmon, say—"

Cathie sat up with a faint show of her old spirit. "I don't care WHAT he said—or your Mr. Browning, either. I don't know a thing about it, and I'm not going to worry, so there!"

Ruth sighed. "You're hopeless. Perfectly hopeless. I only wish I had your optimism. But I'm too intelligent to fool myself. I suppose it's my training, but I can't help seeing things as they ARE . . . oh! Cathie, here's the—the lady—"

"Your attorney wants to see you, Mrs. Farnsworth, in private," the matron said.

Mr. Jesse Allan was standing just behind her.

"Come, ma!" Ruth said.

Mary Paige got up heavily. She kissed Cathie again, but hurriedly this time. Under the attorney's eyes she was self-conscious.

"Good-bye, ma."

"Good-bye, darlin' . . . don't worry. This will be right over, I know . . . Cathie, can I . . . can I bring you anythin'?"

Cathie shook her head, smiling sadly. Ma went out.

"My dear girl," Mr. Allan said, and hesitated.

Cathie looked at him wearily. She saw that his fat, smooth face was troubled. He wiped his bald head. What a lot of worry she was causing people! Ruth was worried . . . that was why she was so mean. She always got that way when she was worried . . . and ma . . . Poor ma was just sick . . . oh, to think she had brought this on ma . . .

And Ma would share the troubles every time, though she wouldn't share the other things. It was six months before she would come to the big house in Presidio terrace ... She only came then because there was a hint of trouble A hint was right ... It came that very night ... But at the first news of the tragedy she was right there . . right at the jail . . . loving .. comforting...

"Do you see where all this trends?" Mr. Allan was asking gently.

Cathie didn't. "Please excuse me,'" she said. "I'm afraid I didn't hear what you were saying. I was thinking—about something else."

Mr. Allan's fat hands reached out for hers. He held them strongly between his own. "My dear girl," he said. "You are charged with murder."

DE LUXE TOURS BECKON GIRLS

The glories of Paris and the delightful summery breezes of picturesque Bermuda still beckon girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity who would be guests of Gloria Swanson on these de luxe tours.

A nomination blank, describing the contest and explaining the rules for the tours will be found on page 19. Girls 18 or over, and unmarried, should read the rules, find out if they are eligible, fill in the blank and send it to the Paris-Bermuda Tours editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. By return mail, full information as to requirements will be sent.

The girl selected for the Paris trip will leave here early in December and will spend a day or two in New York visiting the motion picture studios. The party will sail on the French liner Paris. The return trip is to be made on the Ile de France shortly after New Years. Girls from 24 cities in the country will make the trip as guests of Miss Swanson.

In addition there will be five trips to Bermuda, given by the Sun-Telegraph. This trip will be made about the same time.

ORDER LIGHTS FOR BRADDOCK

Material for the installation of 12 flashlight signal lights at Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossings through the borough of Braddock will be purchased in a few days, W. S. Booth, superintendent of the Pittsburgh division, assured the borough council at the monthly meeting last night. Mr. Booth said the railroad's executive office in Baltimore had authorized the work at an expenditure of $50,000 The work will commence as soon as the material arrives, and it is expected that it will be completed in 60 days. The new system of lights will eliminate 13 watchmen at the crossings.

Glassport Mill Worker Falls Dead

Frank Ecel, 55, of 401 Erie street, Glassport, an employe of the Glassport Hoop Mill, fell dead at his work there early today, according to a report to the coroner's office.

POLICE TRAIL KILLERS OF 4

With checks and a set of license plates their only clues, county detectives today continued their search for the two gunmen who shot to death three men and a woman, Saturday, in a store at 419 Sixth street, Braddock.

Those who fell dead from the gunmen's bullets were Mrs. Mary Lobianco, 22; her husband, Joseph Lobianco, 42; his brother, Carmen Lobianco, 37, and Louis T. Tomano, 69, of 618 Margaretta street, Braddock.

Detectives, tracing the checks, said they linked the Lobiancos with bootleggers. Efforts were being made to find Arturo Lamort, of Friendship avenue, to whom the license plates found on the killers' abandoned car, were issued, they reported. The machine was found in Brinton road, Braddock, several hours after the killings.

JEWS OBSERVE 7-DAY FEAST

Celebration of Sukkoth, "the Feast of the Tabernacle," was begun by Jews throughout the world last night. The feast continues seven days, in accordance with the ancient custom in Palestine when thanksgiving and sacrifice were offered in the temples.

In synagogues throughout the Pittsburgh district special decorations of leaves, palms and branches of myrtle and willow were used in profusion.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Barrymore and Nazimova Attract Society Folk To Alvin and Nixon

First nights are becoming most exciting events with Alla Nazimova in a Theater Guild performance at the Nixon and with Ethel Barrymore appearing at the Alvin in "Scarlet Sister Mary," presenting her charming daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt, in her stage debut. Both houses were nearly sold out. And very brilliant spectacles were the foyers and the orchestra circles of both theaters, filled with brilliantly gowned audiences.

Smart Gowns

Among those attending Ethel Barrymore Colt's "coming out party" were Mrs. James Oliver, the W. J. Crittendens, Mrs. Charles W. Davis and Caroline Crittenden and Janet Davis, who occupied a box. Mrs. Crittenden wore black lace and Mrs. Davis appeared in black velvet, and Mrs. Oliver chose black velvet, too. Caroline Crittenden wore a frock of powder blue crepe, and Janet Davis appeared in a blue brocaded crepe. Her wrap was of black velvet with a deep cape collar of white ermine.

Mrs. Frank Severance was in a box, too. Ever so many of the social set met in the lounge during intermissions to talk over the Barrymores and the play. Among those in the foyer was Mrs. Sydney Binns wearing a distinctive gown of black crepe, cut with a square decolletage and having shoulder straps of rhinestones.

The George L. McCooks and Dr and Mrs. E. J. McCague, I saw, too. Mrs. McCook wore a severely simple white satin gown, and Mrs. McCague appeared in American beauty crepe. Mrs. William Whitcomb wore white crepe with an ivory crepe wrap embroidered in gold.

The Roberdeau Green Annans chose the Barrymore play, too. Mrs. Annan wore a black lace and net dress with an exquisite wrap of black velvet, banded in white ermine. Elinor Munroe wore black net with the skirt arranged in tiers of net ruffles, and Mrs. Jack Bissell chose a rose flowered taffeta dress and a white bunny jacket.

Margaret Stewart chose a gown of scarlet crepe, molded to the figure, with a peplum ruffle as the only trimming. I caught a glimpse of Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., who was wrapped in black velvet, with a collar of ermine. Mrs. Simon T. Patterson wore dahlia crepe and a corsage of violets, and chatting with her was Mrs. Francis Burke Rodgers in a flowered taffeta dress, fashioned with a brief train. The junior W. W. Blairs were there with Mrs. Blair wearing a smart gown of black crepe with a rhinestone belt suggestive of the Empire period as the only ornament.

A brilliant audience gathered to fill the Nixon last evening and to see the incomparable Nazimova in "A Month in the Country."

Colors Popular

During intermissions I saw Mrs. Allen Magee Scaife in the foyer, wearing a gown of rust lace, with godets touching the floor, and with it she wore a black velvet knee-length wrap banded with white. The Herbert A. Mays were there, too, with Mrs. May in pansy-purple crepe. Mrs. Joseph Scribner wore a gown of coral pink crepe with a deep flounce of melon pink chiffon.

Mrs. Felix B. Snowdon looked attractive in black lace having a cape collar, and Helen Leovy wore a gown of figured crepe. I caught a glimpse of Mrs. John W. Lawrence, wearing a gray and white chiffon with a wrap of black and silver. Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock had chosen a gown of aquamarine satin with a brocaded wrap having a collar of mink. I saw Mrs. Sidney Stewart, too, and Frances Fitzgerald looked charming in a gown of pistachio green crepe, with a knee-length wrap of emerald green transparent velvet.

I think I noticed Mrs. T. Howe Nimick, too, wearing green printed chiffon. Mr. and Mrs. George Kelly III were among the spectators, with Mrs. Kelly in a gown of black lace, with a wrap of black and gold brocade.

Lovely Wraps

The William A. Duckhams were smoking in the foyer, and Mrs. Duckham wore an interesting gown of ruby-tone satin, with a square decolletage, and a wrap of crimson velvet with a collar of lapin.

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby wore a gown of black crepe, with a fingertip jacket of black velvet furred in white fox. As she entered the theater I saw Mrs. T. M. Jones III, who wore a gown of black velvet with a knee-length wrap of the same material.

Martha Edmondson, a bud of the past winter, wore a gown of Alice blue crepe with a black velvet jacket, and with her was her mother, Mrs. Frederick William Edmondson, who wore a gown of copperglow crepe with a gold brocaded wrap.

Mrs. John A. Byerly had chosen a distinctive gown of melon pink printed chiffon with a stunning white brocaded Chinese jacket. I saw Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., too, wearing a gown of blue brocaded velvet with a pansy velvet wrap having a silver fox scarf.

Others I noticed as they were leaving were Mrs. Lucille Miller Werner, Mrs. Elizabeth Vermorcken, who wore black velvet; Miss Suzanne Beatty, Miss Emma Mellor Campbell, Mrs. T. H. McGray, of Oakmont, and Miss M. Helen Marks.

Schley Wedding

This morning at 11 o'clock St. Paul's Cathedral was the scene of one of society's loveliest weddings of the fall. The bride was Katherine McKibbin Schley, daughter of Charles Schley, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., and a granddaughter of Mrs. Chambers McKibbin, of the Schenley Apartments, and the bridegroom was H. Allen Machesney, Jr., son of the H. Allen Machesneys, also of the Schenley Apartments. The Rev. William J. McMullen was officiant. The church was a bower of cibotium ferns, palms and bamboo, with tall standards of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums marking the aisle. The altar was decked with yellow chrysanthemums and tall cathedral candles.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin having a full court train lined in flesh color and long, close-fitting sleeves of lace. Her tulle veil cascaded from a cap of old rose point and duchess lace worn by her mother. She also wore an antique gold necklace set with diamonds and pearls, which was worn by her mother at her wedding, and carried a sheaf of lilies.

Attend Bride

Muriel Gates, of Cincinnati, O., as maid of honor, and Mrs. Alexander Logan Wilson, of Plainfield, N. J., as matron of honor, wore gowns of copperglow transparent velvet, having slight trains, and they wore matching turbans of velvet. The bridesmaids, who included Louise Evans, Elizabeth Guiler and Rebecca Robinson Follansbee, of Pittsburgh; Sara Thompson, of Edgewood; Betty Young, of Pittsburgh, and Ventnor, N. J., and Mary Maccoun, of Baltimore, all wore gowns of capucine transparent velvet, having slight trains and matching velvet hats. They all carried dahlias and chrysanthemums in shades of bronze and yellow.

The bride's grandmother wore rosetta green satin with a matching velvet turban and a corsage of lavender orchids. Mrs. Machesney, mother of the bridegroom, wore pearl gray satin with a matching velvet hat and a corsage of lavender orchids.

Women's Press Club Told Of Palestinian Trip By Harvey Gaul

American short skirts are international and American bloomers, probably rayon, are world-wide, Harvey Gaul, Post-Gazette arts critic, pinch-hitting for Mrs. Gaul, told the Women's Press Club yesterday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Gaul spent the summer in Palestine and it was his very original observations on what he had seen and done there that made Mr. Gaul's talk decidedly interesting and distinctly amusing.

He described the singing of the Egyptian copts (they do the 150 Psalms to the accompaniment of cymbals and shoutings) as "a marvelous jangle." The Abyssinian copts do their singing to the accompaniment of many drums and this he said is "the most terrible and inspiring noise you ever heard." There is no notation and the music is handed down by word of mouth. The Arabs, Mr. Gaul said, are thrilled by the most terrible American movies, preferring the wild west type and having no interest in a sex play since they hold women so cheaply at all times, far below their animals and male children. "The Hollywood Revue" was the first talkie introduced, much to the delight of the Arabs and to the scorn of the Jews who declared they would have no more if this was to be the type.

Palestine has the workingman's theater and opera, where those who work all day may act or produce plays or sing at night, but without pay. Everything is done for the glory of Palestine, the speaker said. Haydn's "Creation" was done for the first time in Hebrew.

Workers Theater

You may go to Jerusalem for religion's sake, but you will be cured after seeing the three sects at each other's throats; it destroys any feeling for organized religion, while it may not alter one's individual belief, he said. Tel Aviv is the center of all eastern culture and here an attempt is being made to establish a real Jewish culture and to have Hebrew become the common language, although some of the older people think it is too sacred for common usage.

Mr. Gaul spoke of the difference between the Arabian and the Hebrew communal colonies. The former still use the most primitive methods. In the latter girls of from 12 to 16 years are trained to become specialists. In many cases training is had in America and Germany.

Open to Public

Mrs. I. H. Levin, president of the Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah, will preside at the open meeting of the chapter Wednesday evening, October 15, at the Y. M. & W. H. A. Mrs. Levin has just returned from a four-month stay in Europe, during which she attended the world Zionist congress in Berlin. She will introduce the speaker of the evening, Harvey B. Gaul, musician and art critic, who will speak on "Impressions of Palestine." Yiddish and Palestine folk songs will be presented by a mixed quartet, consisting of Edith Canter Lazear, soprano; Madeline Kahn Lewis, contralto; Max Franklin, bass, and Albert Eckstein, tenor, accompanied by Mrs. A. L. Balter. The meeting is open to the public.

BOWS ADORN MANY FROCKS OF THE NEWEST CREATION

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—It's the little things that are enjoying the big success this season. The smartest dress in the world is smart enough to accentuate its charm by the addition of a little jacket of sequins or an ornament of the same. Black evening frocks borrow a vivid splash of color with the aid of a bright crimson, or green bow clinging precariously to one frail shoulder strap. And wide sashes of bright, crisp taffeta are willing and ready to perform miracles of smartness on the simplest evening model. The girl with a limited dress allowance comes off very well when accessories are such an accessory to smartness. A couple of simple black evening frocks are enough to see her through a season with the aid of some carefully chosen details. Bright bows can do wonders, but the woman of more ample proportions must be extremely careful just where said bow is placed, otherwise the result will be anything but gratifying. And the sash with a large bow at the back should be used only by the youthful and the slim. It is not compatible with years and the wise woman recognizes this fact and chooses clothes and details that will make her appear a vision instead of a sight.

WE SHOW YOU today sketches of some of the bright gadgets by which the dressmakers here are lending additional charm to charming frocks. They are all by the very clever Lanvin. A very simple evening dress of white crepe georgette makes a distingue appearance by the addition of a short straight coatee made entirely of jet sequins. A tiny jabot matching the coat is attached to the bodice. The belt is made of heavy semi-discs of silver and white galalith.

* * *

ON THE CORSAGE of a black georgette dinner dress is a huge bow of crisp crimson taffeta ribbon attached to one shoulder strap. Those seeking a happy variant of the usual floral shoulder decoration should welcome this very bright idea and let their frock take a bow.

WIDE SASHES of taffeta ribbon with enormous bows, boned at the center, are to be found on many Lanvin models. Often the taffeta is striped in Roman stripe effect and the bow and long ends, although to the back, are invariably to the fore by virtue of their crispness and colorful appeal.

* * *

THE SAME DESIGNER is responsible for a very striking model made entirely of black chenille. This arranged in narrow closely grouped strips of the chenille attached horizontally upon a chiffon backing. The dress is snug fitting with a long flaring skirt. Arm bands of chenille with black tulle flounces lend a picturesque note to this smart evening frock. The decolletage is straight at both front and back. The belt is of galalith.

SUGAR SUPPLIES CALORIES AT THE LOWEST PRICE

Few Foods Return Such High Caloric Value for the Money

Sugar is an inexpensive food. Compared with butter, bacon, macaroni, bread, meats, milk, green vegetables and fresh fruits, sugar supplies the system with far more calories for each cent spent than the same amount expended on any of the rest of the products named.

This fact is significant because the average system requires approximately 3000 calories daily. Of this amount, sixty per cent should be derived from the carbohydrate group of foods to which sugar belongs.

To get the full value of sugar the housewife should consider it in relation to all the foods she chooses for her table. The most inexpensive balanced meal can be made satisfying and complete by a sweet dessert. Canned vegetables, as well as fresh ones, can be much improved in taste appeal if a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is added while they are cooking. Breakfast cereals and stewed dried fruits have added goodness when sugar is added.

Doctors and dietitians approve the use of sugar in making essential foods tasty. For these foods contain vitamins, minerals and roughage—all of which are needed by the system. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

Lena Madesin Phillips, of New York, honorary president of the National Federation of 60,000 women and president of the recently organized International Federation, will address the conference.

Miss Phillips has been in the van of many progressive movements for business women. The income tax legislation of the National Federation, which seeks an increase in exemption for single persons under the federal income tax law was inaugurated during her presidency. During that period, also, she added to the staff an educational secretary who is working towards the development of a nation-wide plan for putting sound vocational advice at the disposal of the woman with a vocational problem.

To her work among women Miss Phillips adds the responsibilities of her law practice, for she is an attorney in New York City.

Her organization connections are many, for her advice is widely sought upon organization problems. She is second vice president of the National Council of Women, a member of the executive committee of the Southern Women's Educational Alliance, a member of the American Bar Association, of the Chi Omega sorority and the Phil Delta Delta Legal Society, an honorary member of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Rome, Italy, and honorary president of the New York League of Business and Professional Women. Great Deeds Not Done in Minute, but by Years of Preparation—Fay King

By FAY KING

The painter completed a fine portrait in what the sitter considered a very short time.

"It certainly didn't take you long to paint that picture!" he exclaimed.

"You are mistaken," said the artist. "It has taken me over 30 years."

The artist was thinking of the long years of patience, practice and experience without which he could not now have done so well so quickly.

And so it is with nearly all successful performance.

We applaud the highly successful moment, without considering the background of effort.

Whether it is an executive whose instant wise decision amazes us, or as a singer who thrills us for a few moments upon the stage—behind that brief and highly successful performance are the years of study and preparation.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

Raquel Prepares to Return To Desert With Jerry

CHAPTER LXXII.

Raquel waited. Dusk was drawing curtains across the windows of the room in which she sat, creeping into the corners, seeping into her heart and across her soul.

A woman in a starched white dress that crackled and a mite of a white cap that perched perilously on the top of her blonde hair came into the room and switched on the lights.

"Dr. Logan will see you in a few minutes," she said to Raquel.

Raquel moistened her lips. They were dry and stuck to her teeth. She felt so queer in the head, so giddy that she held to the arms of the chair in which she sat to steady herself. She hoped the blonde-haired woman didn't notice. And she was glad of those few minutes the woman promised. She felt too weak to rise.

Almost at once, it seemed, the woman was back.

"Dr. Logan will see you now," she said crisply.

Raquel dragged two lumps of lead that were her feet across the floor and opened a door the woman indicated.

She was in a room. Spartan in its simplicity. A faint odor of antiseptics increased her giddiness.

Her Help Needed

"Sit down, Mrs. Parker," said the great specialist, kindly.

He pulled out a chair beside his desk and motioned her to it.

She sank down numbly.

"About your husband, Mrs. Parker," he said. His eyes were fastened on her as if to command silence.

"It's not — you mustn't tell me—oh, you mustn't—" Her voice seemed so shrill it was almost a scream. And she had spoken in a whisper.

"If we are to get on with this," said the great man, sternly, "you must give me your assistance. You can do it by being calm."

She fell into a quivering composure before his eyes.

"Somewhere," the stern voice went on, "Mr. Parker has picked up a germ. I'm convinced it must have been either in water he drank or food he ate while he was in Europe. Anyhow, he has it."

She was on her feet, leaning across the desk.

"You, you can kill the germ —" she cried.

He did not answer. Only bored her with those eyes of command. She sank into the chair again.

"No," he said, and hurried on before she could shrill again. "But he can, with your help."

The room careened around her and then floated, dizzily.

"I'll do anything," she managed to say through dry sobs rattling in her throat. "Do you understand? Anything."

"That is good," said the great man. "Then we can go ahead. There is only one place I know where we can fight this thing successfully. The whole battle is a matter of climate. Climate, quiet and diet. There are your three essential elements of cure."

The ice that had been cutting through her veins turned to liquid fire.

"Then we must go. At once. Tonight."

The great man shook his head.

Back to Desert

"You make haste quickly, Mrs. Parker," he said. "You have not asked me where this climate is to be found."

"What does it matter?" flared Raquel.

"The germ of which I speak attacks the blood," said Dr. Logan. "A hot, dry climate is necessary. And the outdoors. Eat, sleep, live out of doors. Away from people. From things. Quiet, content, peace. I have decided the best place to stage the battle is southern Arizona."

The desert. The great warm cradling desert was going to save Jerry.

"I know the country well," said Raquel. "It is my home, you see. And I shall be able to find exactly the right place."

She seemed so eager about it that the great man watched her with puzzled eyes.

"Your husband will be relieved," he said. "He had an idea it would be the last place in the world you would want to go."

"Then Jerry knows?"

"Yes. He knows. He has asked me to tell you that if you will be unhappy about going, there are other places that might do. I believe a year or two will fix him fine, in Arizona. It might take longer in another place."

"We shall fight it out in Arizona," Raquel said. Her voice was faint, far away. Darkness in the room, lights out.

It was the first time Raquel had ever swooned in all her turbulent young life.

Now she didn't mind the dizziness. She was slipping through the humming lane of Fifth avenue. Lights danced and swerved and shimmered. They set fire to the ruby that smoldered on her finger. Jerry had placed it there. When they were together in the garden of the house in Neuilly. There was a warm red ring of fire around her finger too—her wedding ring.

She nestled down into the soft gray fur of her collar. Her chin rested on the waxen petals of the gardenias Jerry had pinned on her coat before she went out. She could see his dear brown fingers as he did it, awkward at the task.

"Drive faster, please," she ordered the chauffeur.

"Can't do it, ma'am. In this traffic."

Knows Place

"You must." There was no need of his crawling home.

"I'll do the best I can. Going the limit now."

Back to the desert. Velvet dust puffing up like mist across the trails. Funny little old toads with jeweled eyes. Scorpions with their amusing antics that made you laugh at their pretense of wisdom.

These things and—Jerry. She was going to them. To Jerry. With winged feet. With a song that made of her being a mighty symphony of joy.

"Jerry," she cried, bursting in upon him like a bright bird that has found a dear lost nest. "Jerry, I love you. We're going back to the desert, dear. We must start packing at once."

He tipped back her head, brushing the sable cloud from her wide black eyes with the glad lights gleaming in them.

"But Raquel," he said. Grave. "You will be buried down there. You're so beautiful, so fine, so alive—to take you away from it all——"

"I know just the place," Raquel trilled on. "A rancho right on the border by the Rio Grande. A man from the East built it. There's a patio with a fountain—we'll have our meals served there—and it's irrigated for a flower garden—there's running water even. You'll love it, Jerry."

"But lonesome for the Queen of Beauty——"

She was silent then. Her head against his heart.

"There'll be you, Jerry," she murmured. "And in a little while there'll be——"

THE END.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Amused at Seriousness of Mr. Train

The concern was that in Harry Underwood's voice as he gave me the message for Lillian which made me pause for an instant's thankful retrospection. Not always had there been that intonation as he spoke of his wife. Lillian had once told me that her marriage to Harry was a case of "picking up the pieces" for both of them, and my impression of them during the first years of my own marriage had convinced me that while they were wonderful comrades and staunch friends, there was no romantic love on either side. But since Harry's return to his world which he had left in tragic disgrace during the World War there had been a new note struck for both of them, and they had had a renaissance of happiness beautiful to see.

I turned from the telephone to an empty room and realized that the Trains and Mr. Hasbrouck had tactfully absented themselves during my talk. I tapped on the door which I thought led to the kitchen, and after a few seconds Mrs. Train came to the door and I saw her husband and Mr. Hasbrouck smoking in the rear of the room.

"I have finished telephoning," I said. "Thank you so much."

The two men rose and came toward me.

"Everything all set now?" Mr. Hasbrouck's big, jovial voice boomed the question.

"Oh, yes. The man is no doubt bound for the hotel and Mrs. Underwood's husband will look out for him there. We are going down the west side of the river and shall telephone him at Englewood."

"Then that's all right," Mr. Train said. "You can wait another hour, and then if Ed hasn't telephoned, you can start. Why don't you join your friends. They evidently are having a wonderful nap."

"I might waken them," I returned, "and I want them both to sleep until the last minute. Besides, I'm so wide awake now that I couldn't go to sleep again. Do you suppose—it's such a glorious morning—that it would be all right for me to go for a walk?"

Mr. Hasbrouck and Mr. Train exchanged glances.

"Why, I can't see any reason why she shouldn't have a stroll," Mr. Hasbrouck rumbled after a second's hesitation, "unless Ed should telephone. The man must be half way to New York by this time. And even if Ed should telephone you could get Mrs. Graham back here in the car while I talked to Ed. You could start after her as soon as we knew it was a long-distance call. You know how long it takes to put one through."

"Yes, I know," Mr. Train announced. "That is a perfectly good plan—if we know where Mrs. Graham is going to walk."

"Couldn't you outline a route?" I asked with an effort to keep from smiling. "I would promise to follow it strictly. Then you would only have to travel up one street and down another until you found me."

Mr. Train's face cleared and he eyed me with distinct approval. "That's a good idea," he said, "if you're sure you can remember the route."

"I'll try my best," I said meekly, but with twitching lips as I imagined what Lillian would say if she could hear him.

"Then get your things on," Mr. Train advised briskly, "and I'll map out a route."

When I came back into the room I found that he had put his map on paper. Indeed, he was busily marking the names on it and bade me wait until he had finished it.

"There!" he said triumphantly a moment later. "You can't go wrong now. Just turn to the left as you go out of the door—you see the house is marked with a cross—then walk to the corner, turn left, walk one block, turn right and walk along this long street for—out how would you like to have Mrs. Train go with you?"

More Wear

Don't deceive yourself in the matter of make-up. That is a vain deception for the benefit of others. It is all very pleasant to have a soft light in your boudoir, and one that induces confidence when you gaze into your dressing table mirror. But facing the light of day is another matter. To discover your cosmetic errors take care to learn the truth before you venture forth into the warm sunshine. Take one last, long, lingering look into a well-lighted mirror and see yourself as others are certain to see you in the bright daylight. Have a bit of clean cotton in your hand and wipe away the extra rouge or smooth it down until it blends into the natural tint of the skin.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, October 8

The stellar influences in operation on this day are to be interpreted as adverse, holding portent for new projects and perils for finances or any venture of a speculative nature. It is advised that all important new moves or plans be deferred for more auspicious planetary rulership, as the julgment may be rash and irresponsible and the tendency to impetuosity and turbulent action may prove a determining factor for defeat and misadventure. Generally the influence is a disturbing and devastating one.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of disturbing and disintegrating influences, with a predisposition to rash and impetuous moves entirely detrimental to the successful advancement of plans. Finances are hazardous, speculation, litigation and new projects to be postponed. Conservatism and self-control may assist in weathering storms.

A child born on this day may have a tendency to be rashly speculative, clarmorous and self-willed, elements of character which may jeopardize the best interests unless subjected to early discipline and training.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Informal Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for a young lady who is getting married with an informal wedding to have printed invitations made? I am going to have only a few of my close friends present at a little party I am having at my home. How would the invitations be worded? I have no father.

MARGARET.

If for lack of time or for any other reason you do not wish to have the invitations engraved, I advise you to write informal notes to your friends, asking them to the wedding and to the party afterward. It is much better form for you to write a note than to have the invitations printed. Write a note something like this:

"Dear Anne:

"Bob and I are to be married on Wednesday, October the tenth, at four o'clock, at my home. We are asking only a few of our closest friends—and, of course, we both count you among that number. Will you come?

"And will you plan, too, to stay after the ceremony to a most informal gathering of our friends? Please do.

"With friendliest wishes and greetings from us both,

"Most affectionately yours,

"MARY."

Keeping the Friendship in Proper Bounds

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For the past five or six years I have corresponded with a boy living in Europe and whom I have never seen. The correspondence started through a school newspaper when I was in grammar school. Our letters have always been about school subjects and things of interest we have seen while traveling. Recently I had some photographs of myself taken and I would like to know whether it would be correct to send him one? I want to send one very much but I want to do that which is correct, too. We have exchanged quite a number of snapshots. Could you, Mrs. Beeckman, help me decide?

JUNE

I believe, dear June, that it would be the way of wisdom for you not to send this "correspondence friend" your photograph. I know that this seems narrow-minded and "fussy," but we must watch an unconventional relationship like this, and it is best not to let it get out of bounds.

If the gods that preside over such thing will it, you and he may some day meet, and then you can have a wider range for your friendliness and expression of amenities. And until that time, I do urge you to wait for this exchange of photographs. Don't you believe that this will be better? It's better to be narrow-minded than sorry, you know!

To Eat a Sandwich

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to eat a sandwich with a knife and fork?

M. G.

Yes—the best form of all.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Who Do You Think Should Handle the Money in the Home —The Mister or the Missis?

Maurine's husband claims that he should handle the family pocketbook . . . He says that he makes it and therefore he should spend it.

"Whatta you kickin' about?" he snorts indignantly. "Don't I pay the bills? Isn't that all that's necessary?" So poor Maurine, who used to be as chipper as a chipmunk with her own paycheck, is creeping about in dire humiliation, dodging her friends and ducking matinee parties, because she hasn't even change enough in her purse to treat anyone to a soda.

"Shouldn't I have a housekeeping allowance, and a little money for myself?" she wails. "It isn't that he's stingy, exactly, but . . ."

"Dear Sally:

"I hope you will have time to help me with my problem. I just don't know what to do about it, myself. Of course, maybe I'm in wrong, but I don't think so.

"Here it is. Who do you think should handle the money in the home? The man or the woman?

"My husband claims that the man should. He says 'I make it, and I'm going to pay it out.' I have tried to talk to him, and make him see the way I feel, but I just can't seem to make any impression on him. He always answers 'I don't see what you're kicking about. I pay the bills, don't I. Isn't that enough? Why should you want money to blow in on everything you see?' And that really isn't fair, Sally. When I married Dolph, I was working, and out of my salary of $27.50 a week, I saved $5 usually. Sometimes a little less, and sometimes a little more. So you see I am not extravagant. And I would like to have an allowance for household bills, and a little for myself. I hate to have to charge everything, and ask him for every cent of spending money I get.

"He treats me as if I were a child. If I ask for a few dollars for myself, he always inquires what I want it for, and that is terribly humiliating to me. I have got so I dodge all the friends I used to have, because it's seldom I have enough to even treat them to a soda on the spur of the moment

"Dolph isn't exactly stingy. He simply seems to want to play the Big Ike with his money, and keep me in my place, whenever he imagines.

"For a while after we were married I worked, but I quit not not long ago, and it's just terrible to not have your own money. I may sound awfully foolish, but this thing is getting to be an awful blight on my marriage. I don't believe I can stand it much longer. If Dolph saved anything, I wouldn't mind it so much, but, although he can make plenty of cracks about me spending, he spends everything himself. Even the savings I had when we were married, are gone. I spent them to furnish our home.

"Now I know very well, that if he would give me a reasonable allowance, I could shave off a few dollars for a rainy day, each month. But he refuses to believe that.

"Lately, after I kicked and kicked about it, he has been doling me out $5 a week . . . and expecting me to set our table and pay for lights and fuel out of that. But it isn't half enough. He makes $45 a week. I think I should get $15 at least. Do you think I am unreasonable? He seems to think I am.

"Please help me and tell me what you think. He reads your column and maybe he might change his notion if you say I'm right. Or do you think I should go back to work so I'll have my own money?

"MAURINE."

Do I think you should have a little real money to handle? I certainly do!

Marriage, if it is to amount to anything at all, must be a partnership. And any woman capable of making and handling her own money cleverly and sensibly is capable of handling her husband's as well.

I suspect that Dolph is getting a big bang out of making you ask for it. That he isn't doing it because he is a tightwad, but because it flatters his egotism, and gives him a sense of importance and power, to hold what he feels is the whip-hand, over you.

Of course, he actually may feel that since he earns the money, to make your marriage possible, he should have complete say about how it is spent. But if he does, he is wrong. Because when you keep his home and do his cooking and mending, you are contributing just as much to that marriage as he is. If you didn't do those things, he would have to hire someone to do them. And therefore you are entitled to a fair share of what he makes, and you should see that he gives it to you.

And how'll you handle him? Well, why not insist on a budget? Setting aside what you need for rent and other household expenses—for savings, insurance and clothing for both of you, and then divide the remainder equally between you. That's my notion of fairness.

And now let's hear from some of you other husbands and wives. How have you met this problem of "Who-handles-the-money?"

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

Fatigue has a bad effect upon the eyes. It has an influence upon vision. The eyes lose their natural sparkle and brilliancy. Nothing is to be gained by working after one has a feeling of fatigue. Efficiency is lessened. Best to rest. The nervous system is bound to suffer from overstrain, and good looks depart under high pressure.

Victims of blackheads must drink plenty of water, at least six glasses a day. The skin is an eliminating system and is constantly throwing off salts and vapors; internal washing of the stomach and intestinal tract through water drinking lessens the work on the skin structure. Turkish baths are helpful in cleaning the pores of oil and dust.

When the nose takes on a rosy hue, the diet must be regulated. Delete condiments, go slow on acid foods, avoid heavy meats and rich pastries. Applications of ointment of zinc oxide are effective in bringing about a more normal condition. Blotches call for medical attention. Any persistent irritation of the skin surface requires professional treatment.

Twin chins can be rolled into single blessedness. Anoint with a heavy massage cream, pick the flesh up between thumb and finger, roll firmly. This treatment dissolves the fat cells. Follow with astringents and ice rubs.

A few drops of simple tincture of benzoin added to the rinsing water to be used after the soapy facial tubbing, will discourage freckles. It sets up a mild state of dermatitis, which is a fluffing away of dead skin. Lemon juice isn't to be scorned as a bleach; it has a whitening effect upon a skin that is discolored with tan and brown polkadots.

When hot oil is used for the removal of dandruff and for reconditioning the hair, it should remain on the scalp over night. Mineral oil, olive oil or petrolatum will prove effective as a tonic. Wrap the head in an old towel and let the hair soak in its oily bath. Begin the shampoo next morning with a spray of water fairly hot. Have the soap melted; it cuts away the grease quickly, if the solution stands for several days before being applied. Give several sudsings and rinsings.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Use All Your Teeth in Chewing

We never think about exercise of the jaws as important, yet exercise used in feeding is about the most fundamental and essential form of exercise there is. Vigorous chewing on both sides of the mouth develops the jaws and teeth properly, and tends to prevent tooth decay and overcrowding.

DR COPELAND

Indeed, in this connection, there are even more far-reaching effects that make for good health When the jaws are doing natural, honest, hard work, the whole digestive tract feels it. There is increased activity in the formation of the gastric juices. The heart pumps faster and stronger, the pressure of the blood in the arteries rises, the circulation of the blood is stimulated to quicker flow.

Digestion begins in the mouth. As soon as you begin vigorous chewing, the secretions of the mouth begin to flow. The secretions of the stomach and bowels are stimulated to action through the action of the nerve centers which send their message from the mouth to the brain and back to the stomach.

It is most important to teach every young child to chew his food thoroughly and to chew on both sides of the mouth. If he doesn't, one side of his face may be more developed than the other. And most children, being reasonable beings, would best be told the reasons why they should chew properly.

It is not easy to bring up a child in the way he should go. Watch your child carefully and see what his habits are in this respect. Appeal to his intelligence and tell him why he should mend his ways.

Don't allow a child to bolt his food. It is a habit difficult to break. He is certain to have bad digestion, if he persists, and this may lead to much worse things.

Chewing hard and tough foods strengthens the teeth and jaws and helps to keep them strong. Eating raw, ripe apples and all the firm, fibrous fruits and vegetables is invaluable for cleansing the teeth and promoting digestion. Soft foods cling to the teeth and permit tartar to form. That is one reason why eating cake, candy, chocolate and like things at bedtime is bad for you—to say nothing of causing indigestion.

Adults, as well as children, should take heed of this matter of chewing thoroughly and on both sides of the mouth. Long life and a happy one depends much upon good teeth. Keep them in perfect condition, and teach the children to begin early. Proper habits formed in early life will prevent much misery in later life.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

The Bride of Death

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Robin Dale goes to California to report on the case of Elsie Donahue. On the night of her wedding Elsie disappears after entering the house she had built and furnished as a new home.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER II.

At Laguna Beach, the mountains come down to meet the sea. In spots one can stand on the cliffs and look down at the churning water 50 feet below. The beach proper is a sandy stretch of upwards of a mile, hemmed in on three sides by the foothills. Along the adjacent coast are innumerable inlets and coves, many of them studded with rocks, where the mighty Pacific beats a perennial symphony.

Robin Dale spent many hours after his arrival at Laguna absorbing its beauty and weekday serenity. The mystery it held appeared buried under a surface of calmness.

Late in the afternoon Dale visited Alonzo Franks, head of the county detective force. The headquarters for the investigation of the Donahue case, as it was called, had been established at Laguna Beach. Franks welcomed Dale cordially and for quite some time discussed the case with the reporter. During this Myles Sherid, the county prosecutor, came in.

Nothing developed during the first discussion to add one whit to the information Robin Dale had gathered from the profuse news reports he had read. One important point was settled. He was at liberty to interview whoever of the figures in the case would consent to be interviewed. No police action had been taken against anyone.

The fact of the matter was that no grounds for any kind of action had been uncovered. It was still a case of corpus delecti.

Robin Dale realized that the truth of the affair was hidden in the mind and conscience of some one of the actors in the case. It was up to him, in justifying his self-imposed assignment, to unearth the secret.

That night he decided to wipe the slate clean—start at the beginning, build up the story in his own way from personally obtained information. Far into the morning he planned, plotting his action as carefully as a dramatist creating a play.

The following morning he called at the home Elsie Donahue had built. An interview with Roy Carroll was the object of his visit.

The house was a large, white stucco dwelling set amid expansive, landscaped lawns. It was set on a hillside about 300 yards from the water's edge. The terrace upon which the dwelling stood sloped gradually toward the beach of the natural cove which was a portion of the property. This cove was protected on the north by a jetty of rock, protruding from which a wharf or landing-place had been built. At the end of this wharf, beyond the line of breakers, Dale noticed as he approached the house, a neat-looking motor launch was made fast.

Roy Carroll answered Dale's ring. He was a tall young man, his blonde hair sleeked back and his blue eyes lighted with a perpetual sparkle. His features were somewhat drawn, obviously the result of worry and sleeplessness. Even this pallor did not detract from a handsomeness which made it simple to understand why Elsie Donahue had fallen in love with him.

Carroll invited the reporter into the house. Dale followed to an inclosed porch on the side facing the ocean.

Dale explained his mission briefly.

"There's little I can tell that hasn't already been printed," said Carroll, cordially enough.

"But I'd like to ask a few questions. You know, of course, you are at liberty to refuse answers to any of them."

"You'd write your story in spite of that. You might better have the truth."

"I'll go back to the beginning, if you don't mind. Assume I know nothing whatever about the affair." Dale paused a moment before asking his first question.

"Was Mrs. Carroll the first to enter this house on the night of her disappearance?"

"Yes. She and I drove up from Los Angeles in the coupe. We led the way for the other cars. Naturally, we arrived first. Elsie went inside at once and I waited on the steps for the others. They arrived almost immediately. We entered the house in a group. Elsie was not to be seen. After a bit we called upstairs, but there was no answer."

Dale noticed, during the recital that Carroll had to take a grip on himself. His nerves seemed frayed to the breaking point.

"Just who were in the party, Mr. Carroll?"

"Elsie's mother and her sister, Louise. They went upstairs at once, because Mrs. Donahue had been ill for some time. The trip from the city had been a severe strain on her. There was Fred Wagner, who had been best man; Edward Norcross, Ralph and Charles Potter, who were old friends of mine, and the three bridesmaids, all from L. A."

"When Mrs. Carroll did not respond to the calls, didn't it appear strange to you?"

"No, it didn't. You see, there had been many friendly threats by those who came for the wedding party that they were going to keep us from boarding the yacht and starting on our honeymoon. You know the tricks that are played on brides and grooms. On the drive Elsie and I had talked over various ways of outwitting them. When she did not appear, I imagined she had hidden to play a joke on them and would get word to me at the proper moment."

"A thorough search was made?"

"Very thorough. Most of the guests seemed to have the same idea as I. Not a single spot was left unsearched."

"But, as far as is known, no one ever saw her again. Is that right?"

"No one!" Carroll paused for an instant. His fingers clenched and unclenched, nervously. "Except Fred Wagner, if we can accept the truth of his shouted words. He was searching in the garden. Most of the others were in the house. Suddenly his voice rang out loudly enough to be heard inside. 'There she goes!' he cried. We all ran out. I imagine the rest saw just what I saw . . . the figure of Fred Wagner dashing toward the beach. He was a hundred yards away. Elsie was apparently too far ahead to be seen in the darkness of the night. Wagner also faded into the blackness almost immediately."

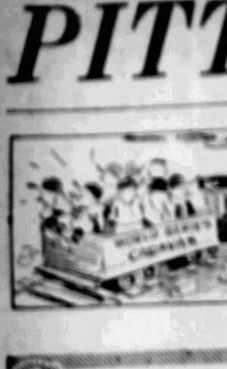
CLUBS MATCHED, ANYTHING POSSIBLE

ABOARD WORLD SERIES BASEBALL SPECIAL EN ROUTE FROM ST. LOUIS TO PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—The shifting tide of baseball fortune has turned again in favor of the American League, and Connie Mack's Athletics, thanks to Jimmy Foxx's ninth inning home-run smash that brought a 2-to-0 victory after a sensational battle in the fifth event of the set, are leading once more by three games to two, as the scene of the colorful World Series moves back to the home grounds of the White Elephants for the deciding game or games.



Jimmy Foxx

But whether that latest advantage is going to stay on the side of the American Leaguers, or the series is going to deadlock again with a third Cardinal triumph tomorrow, making necessary a seventh and deciding meeting on Thursday, is a question that has biased all men divided in opinion. True, the A's hold the edge, being required to win only one game more to capture the series and retain the world honors which they took in 1929, while the Redbirds face the tough uphill job of having to win twice in succession to come from behind and annex the big title. But the clubs are so evenly matched in pitching, hitting and spirit, and the fighting is so close, hot and uncertain that anything may happen and there is a possibility that the Cardinals may at least tie things up again by grabbing the sixth game and thus put the final decision back to a seventh contest with a fighting chance to win out.

AS A MATTER the chances appear to be slightly in favor of the National Leaguers for the taking of the sixth game, as far as can be judged from the pitching situation. For the Cards will have Bill Hallahan all set and ready after three days of rest, and if he may be expected to show anything close to the form he displayed in shutting out the A's on Saturday, the Mackian batters are not likely to do much hitting at his expense.

The White Elephants, on the other hand, are not so well fixed on the slab for the sixth game. Mack must either gamble by taking a chance on Rube Walberg, who failed to go through in his first start, or come right back with George Earnshaw or Bob Grove. Both of the last named two are horses for work, as a rule, but inasmuch as Earnshaw toiled seven innings yesterday, and Grove pitched two rounds in the same game after hurling a full contest the previous day, the advisability of sending either of them back after only one day's rest is open to question.

THESE TWO HAVE borne the brunt of the series pitching burden in remarkable style thus far, not only working overtime, but delivering a grade of hurling that, barring Grove's below-par performance in the opener, has been remarkable in its effectiveness, steadiness and general perfection.

Burleigh Grimes

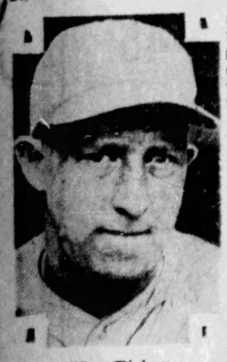
But it was no ordinary strain under which both were placed to win that sensational fifth game from Burleigh Grimes. Though finally beaten in one of the best-pitched World Series games that ever was lost, Grimes made his two mound foemen spend everything they had to win, and the exertion may have taken too much out of them to make it possible for them to come back strong after one day's rest. On that account, the general view is that Mack will gamble with Walberg in the sixth game and have aces ready for the seventh game if Walberg does not go through.

CONNIE MAY HAVE only a two-man pitching staff, but from what they have shown National Leaguers in this series, those two are more valuable than an entire full-size average slab corps. They would be remarkable for their ability alone, but when their amazing endurance and rapid recuperative qualities are considered, in addition to their mastery of mound-craft, they are just about in a class of their own. The work of the St. Louis flingers themselves —Grimes, Hallahan and Haines, has been of such a big order that against average pitching, the Cards would now be well out in front. But instead of average pitching, Earnshaw in two games and Grove in the fourth and part of the fifth have produced a super quality.

IT IS DUE chiefly to the brilliant work of the two great pitchers that the A's are leading in the series, as they have received little help from their mates on the offensive. Until Foxx's homer produced the two runs that won the fifth game in the ninth inning, the Mackmen had scored only a single run in 13 consecutive innings against the Cardinal chuckers.

Ordinarily such a run famine would mean the certain defeat of a club in a short series like the post season derby, but because of the great pitching of Earnshaw and Grove on their own side, the A's have come out of it holding a lead. It isn't often that a club scores only three runs in three straight games, as the Philadelphians have done, and escapes losing all three games. Earnshaw, in particular, had been a standout in averting disaster for the A's. In 16 innings pitched he has allowed only one run and eight hits. He looks all over the part of a perfect pitcher.

ASIDE FROM HIS success in holding Al Simmons hitless for the first time in the series, one of the most impressive features of Grimes' splendid pitching, until he laid a ball where Foxx could get hold of it, was the manner in which he stopped Max Bishop.



Max Bishop

Though he hit only .255 for the regular season, Bishop had been a veritable plague to the Redbirds, apart from the damage his great fielding had done. When he wasn't cracking a hit through some opening, he was generally drawing a base on balls. In the first four games he made four hits for a .333 average, 78 points above normal, and walked five times. Grimes finally got his number, however, fanned him twice, and the only time Max got on the paths was when he had a chance to win the game in the eighth inning and forced Haas at the plate with a rap to Bottomley.

IT'S A QUESTION if that strenuous eighth inning did not take something out of Grimes and lead to his undoing in the ninth. It was through no fault of his own that Burleigh Grimes got in the big jam. The A's filled the bases without knocking a ball out of the infield. One of the two hits made off Grimes was a bunt, and the other was a scratch hit that caromed off the pitcher's glove. Haas, after beating out a bunt, should have been an easy out on an attempted steal, but Umpire Geisler ruled that Frisch had dropped the ball. Haas was the first player to reach second base against Grimes since the beginning of the game.

AFTER BOLEY HAD followed the foozle at second with a scratch single, Grimes filled the bases when one out by walking Moore, who batted for Earnshaw. It looked like curtains for the Cardinals right there, with the top of the batting order coming up, but Haas was forced at the plate on Bishop's hopper to Bottomley and Dykes forced Moore at second for the third out.

Grimes had pitched himself out of a bad hole by a remarkable exhibition, but the task evidently took its toll, for right at the start of the next inning, the ninth, he wobbled by walking Cochrane and then

GEORGIA TECH TO FACE STIFF ATTACK

By JESS CARVER.

Whatever happens when a flock of rival engineers get together will be found out here Saturday as Carnegie Tech and Georgia Tech pit (not Pitt) their varsity elevens against each other in the Stadium.

Tank Highberger

The Skibos have been running wild in their warm-up games; witness the scores piled up against Buffalo and Thiel. Georgia Tech opened up Saturday against opposition that may be classed as semi-serious, bowling over South Carolina, 41 to 0. This would indicate that the Jackets have something on the ball beside a prayer.

HALFBACK WEALTH

From all the Tartans have shown to date, and they have not been forced to dig very deeply into their bag of tricks, the thing the Yaller Jackets will have to stop will be the running attack as engineered by Dutch Eyth, Murray Armentrout, Johnny Graveno, George Kavel and those babies battling for the fullback berth, John Karcis and Joe Morbito.

To say that Tech is well off for halfbacks is putting it mildly. Few sophomore backs have shown the promise and class that Kavel and Graveno have, even in easy games. Eyth and Armentrout, provided they hold up physically, may be termed Poison No. 1 and Poison No. 2. Shake well while using, behind interference, and you have the makings of a score. They'll shake well, too, shaking off tacklers or simply outrunning 'em.

Big Tank Highberger, the veteran tackle, who was lugged off to hospital last week, where medicos prepared to do a bit of carving on Tank's wayward appendix, was discharged from the hospital yesterday with his innards still intact. The doctors decided they'd put off cutting Tank until later on. Highberger came out of the hospital nine pounds underweight. Poor fellow, he's down to a mere 200 now. Positively anemic.

BACK AT TACKLE

This being the case, Tank worked out at his position at left tackle yesterday, and Don Fletcher went back to the right side of the line. Len Schnupp went back to the second team.

They'll be certain to call on Tank for duty Saturday. He may not start, but he'll be in there sooner or later, likely the former.

Pitt and the Dukes began preparations for their out-of-town jaunts scheduled for the week-end. The Dukes are to play Loyola University in Chicago Friday night and Pitt meets Western Reserve in a let-down game in Cleveland Saturday.

Graduate Manager Holohan, of Duquesne, by the way, is running a special choo-choo to Chicago for the Loyola game, which will carry the team and fans to South Bend Saturday for the Notre Dame-Navy game. If you wish to take these contests in and have a nice little week-end trip, get in touch with Holohan at Duquesne University and he'll be tickled pink, blue and green to fix you up.

Pitt came out of the West Virginia game with a lot of confidence and a lot more bruises, aches and pains. Yesterday's workout was light, and today's does not figure to be any heavier. Western Reserve hardly can be classed as a major team, and most of the varsity players will enjoy an afternoon of peace and calm this Saturday.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: MOTION PICTURES DO NOT MOVE—This suggestion came from Conrad Nagel, one of the screen's famous artists. Nagel explains that what seems to be a picture actually moving is really a series of still pictures on the film, which passes through the projection machine at the rate of about 16 pictures per second, each picture coming to a dead stop in front of the arc light. HENRY WILSON, VICE PRESIDENT, SERVED UNDER AN ASSUMED NAME—Henry Wilson was vice president under President Grant, 1873 to 1875. His true name was Jeremiah J. Colbaith. His reason for changing his name was that he feared the position of his family, his father being a day laborer, would retard his own advancement. The secret of his childhood and real name was kept until his death, when he revealed the truth. His ability as a student and public speaker was responsible for his phenomenal rise from a farm-hand to Vice President of the United States.

TOMORROW—A REMARKABLE FUNERAL.

A'S NOT DUE UNTIL LATE TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—Gabby Street's Cardinals, comprising the vanguard of the World Series hosts, invaded this city again today, this time to make a final stand in the battle for baseball supremacy.

The fighting Redbirds arrived in town early this afternoon. The targets of their fire, the World Champion Athletics, were not due to reach the home port before 5 o'clock, they making a much later start from St. Louis last evening.

Connie Mack and his baseball heroes paused in Pittsburgh for a brief spell about 10:30 this morning. Both clubs traveled on special trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the National League champions reaching Pa Pitt's gateway in the early hours of the morning.

The Baseball Writers' Special, carrying more than 100 journalists, acted as a pilot to the American Leaguer's train. The newsmen were just a little bit in front of the Mackians all the way over the stretches of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Connie Mack's team is the possessor of the rubber game in the five battles of an October classic that may go into history as the most spectacular pitching series yet unfolded. The climax of gripping slab duels was reached yesterday when George Earnshaw and Burleigh Grimes swapped punches in a masterpiece at Sportsmen's Park, St. Louis. The renowned spitball pitcher, nearing the end of his appealing career, had to bow to a 2-to-0 setback through the home-run prowess of Jimmy Foxx, sturdy firstbaseman of the Mackian band, who broke a scoreless deadlock in the ninth with his wallop into the left field seats with Mickey Cochrane aboard.

DRAMATIC MOMENT

The oft-referred to bolt from the blue was dramatized in the soaring loft from the bat of the firstbaseman. Up to this moment, Grimes had every one of Connie's premier band on his wagon and singing his tunes. Foxx, Simmons, Cochrane, Bishop—they were all annoyed and pestered by the strong-armed veteran of the saliva, who seemed to be turning the greatest feat of his 15 years of major league sharpshooting. Grimes has been in many tough spots and he has fought his way out of a hundred and one jams, but it never before fell to the fortune of this perennial winner to get into such a bright spotlight. And he certainly did grace the front-and-center position.

It might seem sufficient, in trying to tell of Grimes' great effectiveness, to state that the veteran did not allow an enemy runner to get as far as the middle of the diamond in seven rounds. That, in itself, is a rare feat, especially

TO FLY TO SERIES

Joe Dawson, former Pirate star and now a demon aviator, is going to fly to Philadelphia tomorrow to see the sixth game of the World Series, and wants three passengers to go with him. He has the seats —everything but the passengers. Joe will leave at 9 a. m., and return to Pittsburgh immediately after the game is over. He will take off from Rodgers Field, in Aspinwall. Persons interested in making the trip may communicate with him at Montrose 3509.

GALLANT FOX IS RETIRED

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—The retirement of Gallant Fox, champion 3-year-old and probably the greatest thoroughbred to step a hoof on American turf since the days of Man o' War, was announced yesteray by his owner, William Woodward.

The Fox, which rose from the ranks of a mediocre 2-year-old to the all-time money-winning champion with earnings in excess of $327,000, was to have fulfilled several fall engagements, including the rich Latonia championships and the Hawthorne Gold Cup. Last week, however, he developed a cough and, after he was out of training for several days, Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons and Owner Woodward decided to retire the big son of Sir Gallahad III.

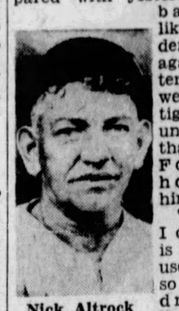
OAKLAND, Cal., Oc. 7.—(AP.)—Dick Bartell, shortstop for the Pittsburgh Pirates, returned home here yesterday from Pittsburgh and a few hours later was operated on for appendicitis. Mrs. Bartell reported his condition as excellent.

Fifth Game Hurling Like Lauder vs. Scott—Altrock

By NICK ALTROCK,
Famous Baseball Humorist.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—Well, folks, I don't know what we're going to do about this guy Burleigh Grimes. He has pitched two of the best games in this World Series and he has nothing to show for it but an average of 10 below zero. When you can hold the A's to two hits and still get shoved out the small end of the cornucopia, you were born under a sprig of poison ivy.

All those other games were just reconnoitering skirmishes compared with yesterday's pitching battle. It was like Harry Lauder pitching against Sir Walter Scott, they were both so tight. It wasn't until the ninth that Burleigh let Foxx pry a homer off of him.



Nick Altrock

The only way I can dope it out is that Burleigh used his spitter so often he went dry just when Foxx came up. Well, we had to go back to Philly anyway, so I don't care so much.

This series may have produced the smallest players' pool in years, but it has sure rung up some handsome mileage. I didn't mind when we went to St. Louis from Philadelphia, because I figured the series would never come back. But here I am again on one of Mrs. Pullman's portable rooming houses. I wouldn't have done any more traveling this autumn if I had joined the Notre Dame football team.

NOW A TOURIST

This series has certainly taught me a lesson in touring, and I hope they never admit Los Angeles into either league.

Since the invention of the lipstick, I never saw a series change its complexion so quick. When us experts boarded the funeral train for St. Louis we were divided whether the entertainment would end in four straight or five games. In fact, I was planning to jump from St. Louis to Peoria for a little fishing.

Now it looks like it might take seven games to solve the riddle. I do not mind this myself, because I am paid by the article, including rainy days, but it is pretty tough on the players. Beginning with yesterday's game, they are working exclusively for the magnates. They don't get paid a nickel for playing from now on. In fact, some of the athletes in Sunday's game played like they weren't getting paid for that.

GOOD FOR N. L.

But no matter how the series comes out now, it is a good thing for the National League. Up to the time the Redbirds started playing like Eagles, folks began to think the National League was the tackling dummy of all World Series. I have seen better ball

STREET SEES CARDS VICTORIOUS IN PHILLY

BILL HALLAHAN CARRIES HOPES OF BIRDS

By GABBY STREET,
Manager St. Louis Cardinals.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—We are ...e down in this World Series again, but we are not beaten. We have thown that we can come from behind once befor in the battles with the Athletics and we will d'- it again. We will win the next two at Philadelphia and then we will be world champions.

Gabby Street

My team was defeated in the fifth game to give the Athletics a three-game-to-two edge in one of the greatest hurling duels I ever have had the pleasure of seeing. One thing certain it will go down in the annals as one of the finest in the World Series.

Burleigh Grimes dropped his second hard luck contest of the series and like in Philadelphia it took an extra-base smash to beat us. This was Jimmy Foxx's home run with Cochrane on base in the ninth. Before the smash from Foxx, Grimes had allowed only four hits, two of them of the infield variety. He gave a remarkable exhibition until that belt of Foxx's.

In the eighth he stopped the Athletics without a run after they had filled the bases with only one out, and only a pair of unfortunate breaks enabled the Athletics to fill the bases in this inning.

However, we have no excuses. Earnshaw pitched remarkable ball and so did Grove after he went to the hill in the eighth, in spite of the fact that he had pitched a hard game only the day before. Earnshaw stopped us with two hits in seven innings and I think it is the first time I have seen a pitcher who has done such great work taken out for a pinch hitter with the score tied. We had one bad break in the seventh when we put men on first and second with two out. If Grimes' line smash to right center had been a little lower, it would have been a different story.

Young Charley Gelbert gave another remarkable exhibition of fielding at shortstop. He may not be the best shortstop in baseball right now, but if he continues to improve as he has, he will be the greatest baseball ever has known.

He is a wonderful fielder and he has been a fine hitter in this series.

But we are not beaten, my club is too good and has too much fight. In fact, I think we now have an advantage, although we are one game behind. I still have two fine pitchers to throw against the Athletics, while Manager Mack will be forced to use a second stringer or send his stars to the hill without sufficient rest.

Grove has worked in two of the last three games, while Earnshaw pitched seven hard innings. I hardly think either will be able to come back and stop us with only a day's rest.

However, I am sitting pretty. I will have Bill Hallahan to shoot against the American Leaguers in the opener at Philadelphia and then Jess Haines will be ready for the seventh contest, and there will be seven. Hallahan will beat them just like he did in the first game here. We are all going back to Philadelphia confident that we will be the next world champions.

in these days of the lively ball, but when one sat through the moving spectacle he could not but sense some of the rare mastery which Grimes exerted. The intelligence of his sharpshooting was magnificent and then, the careful hurler apparently slipped just once—that was enough.

GRIMES COOL

Mickey Cochrane opened the ninth by waiting for a base on balls, which he got with a three-and-two count. Grimes had been passing banter with certain of the Athletics and he was engaged in this sort of stuff as he worked on Al Simmons. Simmons had been pie in the hands of Burleigh in the earlier rounds and in this instance the Cardinals' star made him hoist a high fly to Charley Gelbert.

The suspense was terrific when Simmons came up, but when Grimes took him out of the play there was a lessening of the tension. Grimes, too, might have let up. Foxx is one of the longest hitters in the game and while the left bleachers in St. Louis are quite a distance from the plate, the span is not a long one for Jimmy when he gets his punch into his drive. In this crisis he got hold of a spitball with just enough force to lose the ball in the left-center section of the seats. The Cardinals and their 40,000 supporters were a sad spectacle as the ball fell among the spectators.

A smaller, but contrasting scene took place in the Athletic dugout when Foxx came in after scoring the two runs. His mates grabbed him. The Redbirds were quite docile in the home half and what had been a screaming multitude was turned into an almost solemn assemblage.

EARNSHAW CLEVER

But the real reason why Grimes did not win a noble World Series effort can be found in a powerful fellow of righthand persuasion, who is believed by many to be the best right handed pitcher in the game. George Earnshaw was just as clever as Grimes, even if he did not exert as much color on the scene.

Earnshaw mowed down the Redbirds in a painful manner through seven rounds, he allowing just two hits over this long journey. Something very exciting occurred in the Athletics' half of the eighth, the incidents leading to the departure of the pitcher who had so bravely competed against Grimes. Connie Mack felt the need of a pinch-hitter and the brilliant Earnshaw made way for one. Lefty Grove, a hard loser, came back in runless fashion in the last two rounds and thus recorded his second series success.

Grimes had very little to do with the loose play of the eighth, but Burleigh was catapulted into a sweet jam and there was nothing for him to do but to let fly with everything in his bag of tricks. He did this eloquently and as he brought about the last out of the round the fans kicked up one of the biggest moments of the championship games.

Mule Haas proved to be the first threat of the high-powered eighth. One was gone when Haas dropped a fine bunt on the grass along the third base line for a hit. Grimes made a brilliant effort to stop the batter with Boley at bat, Haas tried a steal and he was safe after Jimmy Wilson had thrown him out by a big margin, the catch being that Frank Frisch, after tagging Mule, dropped the ball.

The decision on Haas by Umpire Geisel precipitated a stormy scene around second. Frisch threw the ball away in disgust and then all but roughed the official for his decision. Like most of the rulings, the decision withstood the protest and then Grimes went back to work on Joe Boley. The latter scratched a hit off Burleigh's glove. Grimes deflected the ball toward third, and then tried for a play on Haas as George slid into that bag. The runner was safe.

The cautious Connie sent Fielder Jim Moore out to hit for Earnshaw and Moore drew a pass that filled up the bases. The Cardinals' infield closed in on Bishop and Max obliged with a grounder to Bottomley, who tossed to the plate for an important force-out. The scene was still full of dynamite as Grimes made Dykes ground into a force play to end the inning.

GROVE AIRTIGHT

Now here was the psychological spot for a home spurt that might have put the Redbirds in the land of delight. Lefty Grove went to the mound, but the home boys had the top of their batting order ready to swing. Alas, they could not break through on the great lefthander and then came the ninth and with it the winning drive of the invader.

Soon after the fifth fight came to a close, the diamond heroes left with bag and baggage for the home of the reigning monarchs of the game. Special trains carried the athletes and the supporting casts. The actors in the October drama are due in Philadelphia this afternoon.

The Cardinals expect to swing into action behind Southpaw Bill Hallahan tomorrow afternoon. The clever lad from Binghampton cut himself a niche in baseball glory by his shut-out victory of Saturday and, with three days of rest, he should be able to baffle the enemy again.

Mack's slab choice is in doubt. Some think he will take a chance with Rube Walberg tomorrow, while others look for him to come back with Earnshaw. Then, if a seventh game is necessary, he would have Lefty Grove. But there are others who incline the belief that Connie will give Lefty the slip for the sixth scrap.

HERRERA LOSES TO GLICK, BUT GETS DRAW

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

One of the greatest main bouts ever staged in Pittsburgh last night served to usher in the 1930-31 boxing season before a large crowd at Motor Square Garden. It also saw Tony Herrera, Mexican lightweight flash, and a great favorite here, fail to come through with victory for the first time in his many appearances in this district, aside from the night he fouled Phil Goldstein at the Meyers Bowl, last summer.

Joe Glick, Jewish veteran, of Brooklyn, was Tony's opponent, and he deserved the decision at the finish of the 10 blistering rounds, but the judges, Frank Brown and Frank Ferris, agreed on a draw, and a draw it was. The referee, Al Grayber, voted for Herrera. The sentiment of the crowd, especially at the ringside, was strongly in favor of Glick.

RALLY PREVENTS ROUT

Only the fact that Glick tired in the closing stages, while Herrera rallied to come on and force the fighting, saved the battle from being a rout for Tony, who didn't win a round until the seventh and then carried every one from then on to the finish. A Garrison finish in the final frame might have evened up matters a bit for Herrera, but he was unequal to it and just managed to eke out a shade in the session and finished as tired and spent as his foe.

The fourth round was an even one, and, in the five others up to the seventh, Glick handed Tony a beautiful pasting. The veteran winged Herrera at will with a rubber-like left to the body and head and right uppercuts to the head in close and had Tony's lips badly puffed at an early stage. Until he tired, Glick always was the aggressor and he stalked Herrera all around the ring, punching as he went. Beginning with the seventh round, however, Tony, who had not been fighting his fight, clipped Joe on the chin with one of his lights and from then on it was Glick who was doing the back-pedaling.

GLICK HAS WEIGHT EDGE

Glick's right eye was cut in the ninth round and bled slightly. The eighth and ninth were the best fighting rounds of the full-of-action battle, with Tony punishing Joe with his blows to both body and chin. Joe did considerable holding following a left to the body at the start of the eighth, but shook off the effects to electrify the fans with his fighting in the following round.

Glick sported an edge of seven pounds in weight, scaling 140 to 133 for Herrera at 3 p. m. He had up a $200 forfeit, half of which was for weight and the other half for appearance, and Tony first claimed the weight fee, but gave it back after the bout. Glick's big pull in the weight, plus his experience, stood him in good stead throughout the battle. A rematch between the pair at an early date should be another good attraction for the Garden.

HARRIS STOPS TAGGART

Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O., "Gene Tunney's double," won by a technical knockout over Chuck Taggart, of Butler, Pa., in the fourth round, when Referee Joe Keally called a halt with Taggart groggy and bleeding from a bad cut on his left eye. Harris, scaling only 166½ pounds against 176 for his opponent, had the bout, a hard-punching affair, well in hand after an even first round, despite a lot of thumbing and mugging that got Taggart in wrong with the crowd.

Al Becker, of Sheraden, 155½, ran into a surprise technical knockout defeat at the fists of of Tom McCaffery, of Youngstown, 159, after one minute, eight seconds of the second round of the second bout. After winning the first round, Becker was floored by his opponent at the start of the second, going down heavily for a count of nine. He rushed McCaffrey and was sent down again, but got up groggy without a count. He was toppled flat on his back for another count of nine and was reeling when he regained his feet and went down into the ropes, whereupon Referee Grayber wisely intervened, although Becker wanted to continue after hearing the knockdown timer toll off another count of nine.

HEENEY, ROCCO NEXT

Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, 139 3-4, rallied after being saved by the bell at the count of four in the second round of the opening bout with Bobby Barnes, Negro, of Homewood, 137, and came on to win the grueling affair, but got only a draw by the agreement of the judges, while Referee Keally properly voted for Gornick.

It was announced that Tom Heeney and Emmett Rocco, heavies, will box the main bout next Monday night. Harry Klaas, of Millvale, made an auspicuous debut as an announcer at the Garden, all dressed up in soup and fish. Tommy Grant and Max Zeugschmidt were the timers.

Between Rounds

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, boxes Benny Burns, of Akron, O., in the main bout of a show at East Liverpool, O., tonight. Jimmy McGraw and Leo Genet are in the semi-final. Rosy Rosales boxes Chuck Burns at Akron, with Frankie Porto, of Glassport, opposing Phil Zwick in the semi-final and Lynn Jordan and Tarzan Wolfe boxing one of the preliminaries. played by the House of David team than the Cardinals, Pirates and Cubs checked in, in the last three years.

But the Cards certainly found themselves in St. Louis, and I hope they don't throw away their guide book when they land back in Philly. It would really be a good thing if they snatched the pennant. On account of being on the payroll, I like to see the American League win most of the time, but it is no fun when the senior circuit begins to look like Sir Thomas Lipton. If the National League goes now and loses this series, I wouldn't be surprised if they changed their ball parks into tea stores next year.

A'S WILL COP SERIES TOMORROW—MACK

CONNIE'S CLUB CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

By CONNIE MACK.
Manager, World Champion Athletics.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—It took Jimmy Foxx with his first home run blast of the series and matchless shutout pitching of Earnshaw and Grove to lift us back in the lead in the World Series yesterday.

The advantage is now decidedly in our favor. We have three victories to our credit as against two for St. Louis and we are on our way to Philadelphia to finish the series at Shibe Park.

Everybody on my team expects they will win tomorrow and retain the world championship we won last year by beating the Cubs.

In a tight series the first team winning three games always has a tremendous advantage, and I don't think it possible for the Cardinals to beat us two straight in Philadelphia, as they now must do to wear the baseball crown.

It was mighty disconcerting to us for the National Leaguers to tie the series here Sunday, but, as I pointed out in my story yesterday, this defeat did not take any confidence away from us.

WHERE'S LIVELY BALL?

We came back today and beat Grimes for the second time and again with just five hits, the same number we made on opening day.

Perhaps there has never been a World Series in recent years where the hitting has been so light. Five games have been played and there has been very little hitting. So much talk has been heard in past years about the lively ball that we wonder how that ball has apparently vanished.

Yesterday I had to address myself to one of the most perplexing tasks that fall to the lot of a manager. I had to take out Earnshaw, who had been pitching shutout ball and apparently would keep the Cardinals from scoring in the full distance.

Earnshaw never looked better, but when we had a chance to break the scoreless tie in the eighth inning, I was forced to take action and send Jimmy Moore, one of my reserve outfielders, to bat for him.

As Grimes was pitching great ball and probably would have struck out Earnshaw, there was nothing for me to do, but to take Earnshaw out and send in Moore.

If I had allowed Earnshaw to bat, we would have not taken advantage of our first opportunity of the afternoon to score.

As it turned out, it would not have made any difference had Earnshaw batted and fanned and there is no doubt in my mind that he would have shut out the Cardinals in nine innings if I kept him in.

Grove came into action in the last half of the eighth in a very tight place and the slightest delinquency on his part would have been fatal. But what Bob did yesterday he has been doing all season, and too much credit cannot be given the sidewinder for jumping into the game at this stage to help his players win the game.

As I go along, I cannot help but feel that Earnshaw is deserving of wonderful praise for the great pitching he has done so far in this series.

A'S SHOW PEP

What impressed me greatly yesterday was the way in which the Athletic players went about their work. It was so much different from the way they performed Sunday. Without doing any hitting to speak of, they never lost their pep and confidence, and it was due to this feeling that Jimmy Foxx made his spectacular home run in the ninth inning to beat Grimes.

It is unnecessary to say that we are returning to Philadelphia in the highest spirits and confidence that we will win the series tomorrow.

The Cardinals have proved to be powerful opponents, and they must get every credit for the way they have fought against odds in this series.

Each Cardinal player is out to win and doing his best, yet one and all have been playing a clean game, and I canot help admiring them for their wonderful spirit.

The fielding yesterday was good, with Watkins and Foxx making the plays that stood out.

The Athletics will reach Philadelphia this evening and will have a night's rest at home to prepare themselves for the sixth game that we are so confident we will win tomorrow.

It seems that Connie simply outFoxxed the Cards to win that fifth game. . . . The A's needed a run badly, so it wasn't surprising that Gallant Fox should come through in the streich. . . . What with his kidding and everything, Burleigh Grimes seems to be having a lot of fun out of the series, but he isn't winning any ball games. . . . Love, they say, is the tenth word in a telegram and what the Cards and A's don't have for each other. . . . "Gallant Fox to Be Retired," says a headline. . . . And all along we thought Gallant Fox was a race horse instead of part of an automobile. . . . Two runs in 30 innings, yet leading the World Series—that's the Athletics for you, and a testimonial for the lively ball. . . . When tougher luck goes with tough pitching, Burleigh Grimes will have it. . . . Speaking of odd ones, how about Burleigh tossing his damp one amid the raindrops? . . . Ask anyone who knows what makes the South High School football team a fighting eleven this fall. . . . There shouldn't be any mystery about why the great Bottomley is breezing so much in this series (eight whiffs in five games). . . . He's a free swinger and that's the kind of a bird out of which smart pitching can make a sucker by a little concentration. . . . The same thing happened to Bottomley against the Yankees two years ago and to Rogers Hornsby last year. . . . The birds who choke up their bats or don't take a full cut at the apple seldom look bad, but the free swingers—wow! . . . The answer in Bottomley's case is that Connie Mack simply is working the same hocus-pocus on him that he did against Hornsby last year, to wit: making him swing too early or too late.—HARRY KECK.

RUTH LAUDS DEFENSIVE PLAY

By BABE RUTH.
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—I think, in many respects, yesterday's game was the greatest World Series battle I've ever seen. Certainly I never saw a better job of pitching, and but for one or two lapses, the defensive play was almost as perfect.

Babe Ruth

Grimes and Earnshaw were wonderful. Burleigh was touched for a few more hits, but except for that ninth inning when he got one a little too good for Jimmy Foxx, he pitched almost perfectly. The wonderful thing about Grimes, to me, is the way he goes calmly about his business in a pinch. He isn't worried, and he isn't concerned. Just stands out there pitching ball as if he was in a sandlot game, and believe me that's the test of real pitching.

To my mind the greatest single thing in that game yesterday was the way Burleigh pitched himself out of a hole in the eighth, when the A's filled the bases with only one down. When he got out of that one I felt sure the Cardinals would win.

And don't overlook Earnshaw either. George not only had his fast ball working in great shape, but he seemed to me to have better control of his curve ball than usual.

GOOD STRATEGY

He certainly was using it enough and he reached the climax of pitching effort when he struck Watkins out on three straight curve balls right next the bat handle. It was a shame George had to be taken out of the game—but I still think it was good strategy for Connie, even though it didn't work out. It was the first scoring chance the A's had really had and Connie was anxious to take advantage of it even though he did have to remove a pitcher.

There were two lapses in Athletic defense that were a bit surprising. Jimmy Dykes pulled one when he chased Gelbert back to second base instead of throwing to Bishop for a putout, and Mule Haas contributed the other when he fielded Wilson's hit slowly and let it go for a two-bagger. Either of those breaks might have been costly, and the fact that they weren't was just another tribute to Earnshaw.

A'S WILL WIN

I still think the A's will win the series—but, believe me, they're not out of the woods. I imagine Bill Hallahan will come back at them in tomorrow's game, and Bill is a mighty tough pitcher. Not only is he good, but the Cards also play well behind him. He seems to inspire them to great things.

The Cards are a fighting, hard-battling ball club—I never saw one that fought harder, and the fact that they're down don't seem to bother them any. I talked to Gabby Street last night, and he was just as confident as ever. He admitted that yesterday's was a tough game to lose and a sweet one to win, but he wasn't conceding a thing.

"We'll win yet," he said. "I think Hallahan can stop them tomorrow, and in the seventh game—well, Haines will be ready to come back at them."

COLEBANK WANTS PUNCH

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 7.—Jasper Colebank, coach of Fairmont State Normal School, will strive this week to get more punch in his backfield before the game with Morris-Harvey here Saturday. Colebank was satisfied with his defense in the scoreless tie with Indiana, Pa., Normal last Saturday, but disappointed in the offense.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Boston College defeated the Quantico Marines, 13 to 7, in a hard-fought game at Fenway Park yesterday.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK
MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 26.

It is not my intention to take any credit away from the impressive victory of John McGraw and his Giants in the World Series of 1905 by saying that the result would have been different had Rube Waddell been available to pitch for the Athletics.

Connie Mack

I will say only that we were weakened tremendously by his loss just as the Giants would have been had Christy Mathewson met with a similar injury just before the games.

The Giants won four games out of five and that World Series always will be remembered as the only one on record where the losing team did not score a run. Every game resulted in a shutout.

The outstanding figure was Christy Mathewson, whose pitching was of the heroic order, for he won three games and shut out the Athletics in all of them.

That rare feat still stands as a record in World Series battling and may never be matched. It is the best possible monument to the memory of a beloved character in baseball, who, in my opinion, was the mightiest pitcher who ever lived.

I will have more to say on this point in the chapter where I select my all-time America teams for all time.

BENDER ONLY WINNER

Iron Man Joe McGinnity pitched in the other two games. He lost to Chief Bender, 2 to 0, at the Polo Grounds in New York, but won his next start, 1 to 0.

Both of these pitchers who won the big title for the Giants are dead, mourned by thousands of baseball followers.

All of the games in this World Series except one were close and hard-fought, and we could have turned the tide with a timely hit or two in three of our defeats, but Mathewson and McGinnity were absolutely air-tight.

The series opened in Philadelphia, when Mathewson beat Plank, 3 to 0. The teams went to New York and the next day the Athletics won their only conquest of the series when Chief Bender downed McGinnity, 3 to 0.

The third game was a real rout for the Athletics, Mathewson outpitching Andy Coakley, 9 to 0. The fourth game was a great pitchers' battle between McGinnity and Plank, New York winning, 1 to 0.

The only run scored was in the fourth inning when, with two out, Lave Cross fumbled Gilbert's grounder and Mertes scored the winning run. Mertes had reached base on a fumble by Monte Cross, so the run was unearned.

GAMES ARE CLOSE

Four times we had runners on second and once on third, but the necessary hit was not forthcoming. Inability to sacrifice cost us two runs.

We picked Chief Bender for what proved to be the final game, while Mathewson was John McGraw's choice. This resulted in another keen grapple and the Giants won, 2 to 0, and carried off the world championship.

The Athletics had six hits as against only five for the Giants, but the National Leaguers used theirs to better advantage while Bender issued three passes and Matty's control was perfect.

The World Series of 1905 were memorable because of the fact that it was the first played under special rules.

To meet the objections of John T. Brush, owner of the Giants, who in 1904 declined to permit his team to play the Red Sox at the end of the season because there were no rules to govern the contests, baseball chiefs empowered the National Commission, composed of August Herrmann, chairman, and the presidents of the American and National Leagues, to have complete jurisdiction over these games.

COMMISSION IN CONTROL

To the end of its days the National Commission exercised this power and it was one of the most important duties it had.

When the National Commission was dissolved, years later, to have the power transferred to one man, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who was named commissioner of baseball, the latter took over these duties and today every world series is arranged and run by Judge Landis, who is the court of last resort.

There is no doubt that the World Series needed special rules and authority over the games to see that rules are enforced and that there is an absence of rowdyism.

While the Red Sox and Pirates met in a post-season series for the championship in 1903, there was absolutely no jurisdiction over the games and either team could have walked off the field without fear of punishment.

Therefore the establishment of jurisdiction over the World Series was a big advancement in baseball and greatly increased the prestige of the games until now they are considered the salad of every baseball year.

SERIES GROWS STEADILY

An index of the great growth in the World Series can best be pointed out by a comparison of the returns of 1929 with those of 1905.

In 1905, the winning players received something like $1,200 each, while the losers took $382 per player. The Athletics' club donated its share to the players, giving them a total of $832.

In the 1929 series, the winning Athletics each drew a check close to the $6,000 mark, while the losing Cubs were consoled with something like $4,000, and this, too, with the teams in the two leagues finishing second, third and fourth getting a share of the spoils.

Increase in seating capacity at parks had a lot to do with these improved figures. Even some recent previous years beat the 1929 mark because of the greater capacity of the parks belonging to the contesting teams.

The high-water mark for world series receipts was attained in 1926, when the Cardinals and Yanks drew $1,207,864 in a series that lasted seven games.

The lowest record was in our 1905 series of five games, when the total receipts were only $68,435.

By TOM BIRKS.

Now that Sunday's conference battles are a matter of history, fans will have another chance to see independent football under the lights when East Pittsburgh meets Burns A. A. tomorrow night at Parnassus High School field. Managers Joe Wambaugh and Jimmy Smith are driving their charges hard in practice sessions to regain a winning stride.

Coach Dick Goldberg is blaming a slow-charging line for the Olympic defeat, but Uansa and Parkinson never got started. Burns went through a strenuous practice session last evening and two players were released.

Tomorrow also will find the Majestic team hooking up with the Prospect club, of Johnstown, in a night game.

On Saturday evening at the Armory in Alder street, Homewood, will meet the Lawrenceville Mohawks in the first intersectional independent game of the season.

Two conference games are listed for Sunday. Ambridge Mystics, which made such an auspicious start in the conference against West View, will appear at Rainbow Gardens against the Olympics. At West View Park the first battle between West View and Majestic will be staged.

Manager Art Rooney, of the Majestics, announces all future home conference games will be played at the Bridgeville Speedway. The first home game will be with the McKeesport Olympics, but whether it will be a Sunday or a night game Rooney cannot say. The North Side mentor is trying to get floodlights installed at the race track.

made the fatal pitch to Foxx that settled one of the greatest World Series slab duels on record.

THE PRESENT SERIES, in which great pitching has subdued the vaunted sluggers and held most of them to puny averages, making it one of the hardest fought world title events in many seasons, is the first in nine straight years to produce as many as two shutouts.

Until now, no World Series since that of 1921 had been featured by more than one shutout. Three blanks were registered in 1921, while the Giants and Yankees were battling. Carl Mays and Waite Hoyt beat the McGrawites in the first two games, the score being 3 to 0 on each occasion and in the final game Art Nehf won a 1-to-0 decision.

Charley Gelbert

THE IMPRESSION THAT young Charley Gelbert has made as a hitter as well as a fielder in the series was attested by the action of Earnshaw in walking him in a pinch in the fifth game. Earnshaw had been getting down all the other Cardinal stickers but declined to run any risks with the youngster. Gelbert, though the rookie of the series, holds the distinction of being the leading hitter up to date. He and Simmons were tied after the first four games with .500 averages, but Gelbert now tops both clubs with a mark of .429, while Simmons has dropped to .389. Quite a few for a second-year kid to be batting above .400 in a series in which the pitching has been so great that the Cardinals club-hitting mark for five games up to date is only .208 and the club average of the A's is only .187.

Extra Dividend Sets Good Example for World Of Business

—By B. C. FORBES—

THESE BUSINESSMEN last week set the financial and industrial world a good example.

Mr. Forbes

H. L. Pratt, Frederick S. Wheeler (chairman), Arthur O. Choate, Harry Craver, C. E. Green, E. E. Loomis, George G. McMurtry, Edward S. Moore, Paul Moore, Henry W. Phelps (president), Charles Stollberg, James B. Taylor, A. E. Wheeler, of New York; K. S. Breckenridge, Chicago, and M. J. Sullivan, San Francisco.

They are the directors of the American Can Company. During the thick of last week's gloom they did not hesitate to declare an extra dividend disbursement of 1 per cent to their 15,000 stockholders.

Too few boards of directors have given sufficient thought this year to the importance of treating investors with all the liberality possible.

THE LIQUID surpluses carried by many corporations are unnecessarily large. The very heavy income taxes levied upon wealthy investors have deterred more than one board of directors from making increases in cash dividends which would not have made undue inroads upon treasuries.

There is no justification for hoarding swollen cash surpluses during times like this. Directors should, rather, go as far as permissible by safety to put excess sudpluses into circulation. Proper attention must always be paid, of course, to accumulating sufficient reserves to take care of all possible emergencies. But in many instances conservatism has been carried beyond that point.

IT WAS INEVITABLE that 1930 should compare with 1929 dividendwise. The record would not have been quite so disappointing had all corporations in a position to do so paid out a reasonable part of unwarrantedly large surpluses of cash and the equivalent of cash.

The number of unfavorable dividend announcements this year forms a striking contrast with last year's total. This table summarizes the number of dividends either reduced or passed each month this year and gives comparisons with previous years:

	1930	1929	1928	1927
January	52	3	7	16
February ...	24	11	26	13
March	61	16	11	15
April	49	7	10	15
May	43	11	10	12
June	97	16	19	19
July	76	14	11	11
August	55	7	12	9
September ..	139	9	11	21
T's, 9 mths.	596	94	117	131
October		14	12	11
November		20	3	6
December		26	10	22
Totals..... ..		154	142	170

THEN THERE has been a marked decrease in the number of improved dividends during the last nine months, meaning extra dividends, initial dividends, stock dividends, increased dividends, resumed dividends and back dividends.

The total this year is 1,044 against 1,436 in the first nine months of last year. It should be added, however, that this year shows a gain over any earlier year.

Also, in spite of the dividend omissions and reductions, the actual amount of cash disbursed this year has reached a new maximum. This is because there have been a larger number of favorable than unfavorable declarations, and because of the larger number of companies now in existence. Moreover, far more stock is outstanding now than throughout 1929.

THIS TABLE classifies improved dividend declarations during the third quarter of the current year, and appended is a table covering the corresponding period of last year:

—1930—	Ind.	R. U.	R. R.
Extra	129	6	0
Stock	34	7	0
Initial	29	10	2
Increased	20	5	1
Back	8	0	1
Resumed	5	0	0
—1929—
Extra	160	9	1
Stock	86	12	1
Initial	94	10	0
Increased	32	5	2
Back	11	2	2
Resumed	8	1	0
Totals	391	39	6

A summary of the improved dividend payments, month by month, since the end of 1925, is given in the following table:

	1930	1929	1928	1927	1926
January	172	120	111	89	87
February ...	117	126	98	81	72
March	161	169	99	93	102
April	93	159	70	60	60
May	105	166	78	68	54
June	139	233	163	137	98
July	62	122	93	60	54
August	46	121	108	63	57
September ...	149	193	135	104	85
Totals, 9 months.	1,044	1,436	955	755	669
October		179	133	83	69
November		287	153	136	103
December		391	227	205	184
Totals		2,293	1,468	1,179	1,025

IT IS POPULAR now to urge a maximum of rational spending. Let corporation directors exercise a maximum of rational distribution of dividends so that stockholders may be able to do their bit in speeding up business activity.

STEEL PRICES HELD READY FOR TURN

Grace and Girdler Think Low Point Now Passed; Building Expansion Seen

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Two outstanding ironmasters of the country have expressed the opinion to me that steel prices are now at the bottom. If they are correct, the turn would be a sign pointing to general economic recovery.

Asked to what extent the Bethlehem Steel Corporation was taking advantage of low commodity prices and depressed conditions to put its plants in readiness for the next era of prosperity, Eugene G. Grace, the president, informed me:

M. S. Rukeyser

"The most important constructive plan at present in the steel industry is the stabilizing of prices. We believe the low point has been passed. Bethlehem has been moving ahead steadily with respect to develop work, construction and other forward looking activities throughout this entire period, recognizing that in the course of events the country will again enjoy good business conditions."

Tom M. Girdler, president and chairman of the Republic Steel Corporation, the new merger put through last year by the associates of Cyrus Eaton, who, by the way, is seeking to block Mr Grace's merger with the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, gave me his views on the outlook. It was his first expression of opinion, given to the public this year.

SEES TURNING POINT

Like Mr. Grace, Mr. Girdler believes that steel prices are touching a real bottom. The most convincing evidence of this, he pointed out, is found in the attitude of customers themselves. He said:

"For the first time in many months buyers are showing an increasing interest in making purchases for future delivery, indicating growing confidence in the underlying firmness of prices.

"It is significant that at a time of reducing operations in the steel industry some large buyers are seeking to place orders at current price levels for first quarter of 1931 requirements. Producers, however, are disinclined to accept commitments beyond the end of the current year.

"The level of steel prices has fallen 12 per cent in the last year to the lowest point since 1915. The prices of many steel producers have dropped to a point where many large consumers themselves realize any further decline would serve no constructive purpose. While the steel industry is endeavoring to bring about economies in production, there is a firm intention of maintaining present wage levels. Consumers of steel are equally interested, with producers, in the success of this policy."

REPORTS INCREASE

Further evidence of the awakening of sagacious management of the opportunities of buying in a depressed market was given to me by George A. Bryant, Jr., executive vice president of the Austin Company, international firm of engineers and builders, with headquarters in Cleveland and branch offices in 16 cities throughout the country.

Mr. Bryant said:

"Large industrial companies throughout the country are beginning to take advantage of low costs of building construction to prepare for the inevitable upswing of the business cycle.

"The total wave of contracts placed for construction with my firm in August and September was substantially in excess of the corresponding months of 1929. This represents an even larger physical volume of business because costs of construction, according to the Austin Company's index, are the lowest in eight years.

"We find that many industrial leaders whose confidences in the future expansion of industry has not been shaken, are planning to avail themselves of the existing market for building wherever the need exists or is likely to exist as business revives."

NEW APPREHENSION

I find a new and significant apprehension developing among executives of big business. Recognizing the cyclical character of business, with its ups and downs, they are fearful lest they later be criticized by directors for stupid waiting at a time when, perhaps, they should have considered affirmative action to take advantage of prevailing "bargains." The turning point in regard to sentiment came when the courageous Edgar Bloom, president of the Western Electric Company, told the world that he had bought copper and some other low priced commodities four months in advance. Picking bottom in commodities is like picking bottom for stocks, but many executives are showing a disposition to follow strong leadership.

In the long run, cheap money will establish a bottom for commodities and securities. As for securities, cheap money is now working mainly on bonds and mortgages. Next in line will be preferred stocks, and later in the cycle investment common stocks. Meantime, cheap money is a factor in sustaining security values.

Railroads to Reduce Purchases

By GEORGE B. SNYDER

CURTAILED INDUSTRIAL activity has been sharply reflected in the gross and net profit of railroads. While the carriers have displayed a high degree of managerial efficiency in the face of falling revenues, the reduced profits will have a pronounced effect on the purchases of equipment during the coming year.

In the standard system of accounting used by all railroads no provision is made for depreciation. All replacements are charged as operating expenses. In order to avoid showing exceptionally sharp drops in earnings during periods of reduced traffic, the carriers are in the habit of reducing their purchases.

This will result in the sale of smaller tonnages of rails and other materials by the mills of the Pittsburgh district. The makers of railroad cars will also find their orders reduced in the wave of railroad economies.

Buying Movement Stopped

LAST YEAR RAILROADS bought new rolling stock at a fairly active pace. This followed a period of about four years during which the carriers showed little interest in new cars. Increased operating efficiency made it possible to move a growing volume of freight without adding to the supply of cars.

The resumption of buying by the carriers indicated that the demands of traffic had at last caught up with the supply of equipment. This year's slump in traffic has brought an abrupt halt to car buying. The carriers are not likely to come into the market for any large numbers of cars until they have convincing evidence that the volume of traffic is again on an upward trend.

Traffic Reduced

GROSS OPERATING REVENUES of Class 1 railroads in the first eight months of the present year amounted to $3,615,071,417 compared with $4,213,688,668 in the corresponding period of last year, a decline of 14.2 per cent. Expenses for the same period were reduced only 10 per cent.

As a result of this the net railway operating income for the eight months amounted to only $555,302,118 a decline of 32.9 per cent from the corresponding period of 1929 when net amounted to $828,394,791.

The figures cover 171 railroads operating 242,620 miles of track. Net railway operating income is the amount left after the payment of operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals but before the payment of interest and other fixed charges.

August Net Declines

AUGUST SHOWED A MORE pronounced decline in traffic but the rate of loss in earnings was kept in check. Gross revenues for the month were $466,370,434 compared with $587,322,415 a year ago, a decrease of 20.6 per cent. Expenses for the month were reduced 17.4 per cent.

Net railway operating income for the period of $95,603,923 was 32.6 per cent less than net of $141,758,501 reported a year ago.

RAZOR FIRMS TO MERGE

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Agreement has been reached for consolidation of Gillette Safety Razor Company and Autostrop Safety Razor Company and the necessary financing to take the form of $20,000,000 10-year convertible 5 per cent notes and about $31,000,000 5 per cent preferred stocks convertible into common for five years will shortly be announced.

Proceeds of the notes would be used for working capital and the preferred would be offered in exchange for the 310,000 shares of Autostrop Safety Razor Company stock, consisting of 87,500 shares of Autostrop "A" and 222,500 shares of "B". The "A" is convertible into "B" shares, share for share.

Railroads Report 8-Months' Net Off

Eight months' net operating income of class one railroads aggregated $555,302,118, or at a 3.59 per cent rate of return. The 1929 period produced net of $828,394,791, or at 5.48 per cent return. Eight months' gross was off 14.2 per cent.

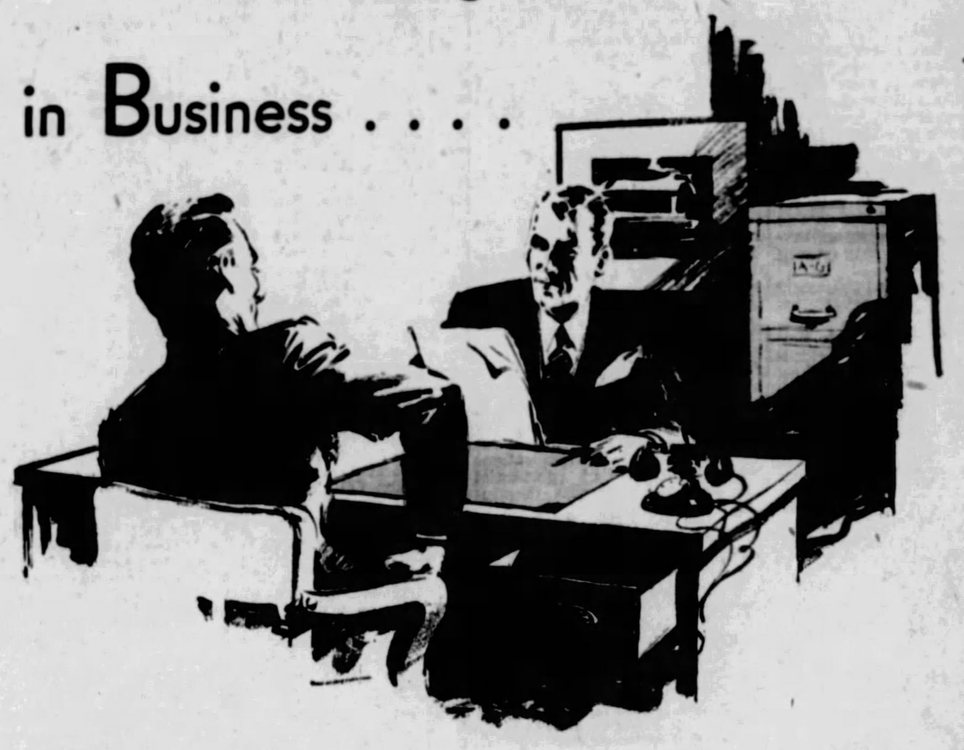
Two Young Men in Business . . . .



The first question they will probably ask themselves is: "Where shall we do our banking?" It is one of the most important of all the puzzling questions that will confront the young partners. And it cannot be far from the truth to say that their future depends in a large measure upon a wise and careful answer to this one question.

The cultivation of a friendly and lasting association with a bank of high standing is quite as essential as the development of a market. Almost every business in time needs financial help for recapitalization or for current operations. Mutual confidence is the basis of all transactions between bank and customer. It is never too early to lay the foundation for such relationship.

The Mellon National Bank welcomes the accounts of young business firms. The size doesn't matter. Many of the Bank's largest accounts grew from a small beginning, both bank and customer profiting from a long and friendly association.

MARKET NEARS LAST FALL'S LOW MARK

Large Scale Liquidation Sweeps Stock List Down After Short-Lived Rally

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Leading shares were marked down close to the panic levels of last November in today's stock market. Large-scale liquidation swept into the market after a short-lived rally in the first hour. Stocks were absorbed in orderly manner, but bull leadership failed to appear, as selling orders for both long and short accounts kept the list under stubborn pressure until well into the afternoon, when trading slackened and recoveries of a point or so appeared here and there.

Few shares lost more than 3 points, although Peoples Gas, a volatile issue, dropped 17. Allied Chemical, which lost 18 yesterday, rallied 7 points, then dropped 11 from the top. American Telephone sold off nearly 3 to 198, a new 1930 low, only 1 point above the bottom of last November. U. S. Steel dropped more than 2 to a new 1930 low at 151⅛, only 1⅛ above the November minimum. General Electric and Radio each fell more than 2 points to record lows for the present shares. Eastman, American and Foreign Power, American Power and Light and Macy declined 3 to more than 4.

BEARS QUESTIONED

Although disclosure that Stock Exchange officials had questioned some members about bearish operations appeared to have been the basis for the opening rally, Wall street was inclined to interpret the action as indicating merely a determination to make the bears play fair, rather than any indication that the exchange might consider placing restraints on short selling, which it has always defended as an essential factor in a free market.

It was said in brokerage circles that the exchange was concerned over such unethical practices as making use of knowledge of stop loss orders on specialists' books as the basis of bear drives, or the spreading of malicious or destructive propaganda. It was recalled that the investigation of the short interest last November marked a turning point in the trend of the market, but failed to disclose any concerted bear drive.

On the whole, the persistence of the selling was somewhat perplexing to brokerage circles. Although many of the so-called pivotal shares have held above last November's lows, the general level of stocks has broken well below that level, as was shown by a tabulation of 687 stocks made by a commission house, which showed the average price the lowest in two years.

SUPPORT FAILS

In the early trading, a few large orders indicated that some efforts were being made to support the market, but the list soon gave way. So far as could be learned, important banking interests were unconcerned over the liquidation. Brokers felt that much of the selling was of a discouraged variety, since repeated efforts to rally the list have failed during the past six months. Further investment buying was reported, but only on scale down.

The day's news failed to account for the action of the market. News from Brazil continued to be disturbing, and transactions in Brazilian exchange were at a standstill. Nevertheless, bankers did not believe the Brazilian situation would normally have any market reflection in this stock market. Trade reports indicated that retail sales were in better volume since the cooler weather set in, and wholesale merchants said they were receiving numerous re-fill orders. Early estimates of this week's steel mill operations, however, still indicated that there may be a slight slowing up this week. Call money held at 2 per cent.

Zinc Stocks Gain During September

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank, has been re-elected president of the New York Clearing House Association.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Persistent selling that was associated with reports of improved crop prospects in Argentina and Australia carried grain values sharply downward here early today. Advices were at hand that Russian offerings of wheat at Liverpool were again pressing, with no immediate demand there. Opening ⅝-1¼ off, Chicago wheat future delivery contracts rallied a little, but then dropped lower than before. Corn opened unchanged to ¾ down, recovered somewhat and subsequently underwent setbacks all around.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Plenty of Statistics For Wall Street This Week.

The financial community will have its share and fill of periodical statistics for consideration before the end of this week rolls around. On Wednesday the government report on cotton will be made available at noon, showing the condition and the estimate yield as of October 1, last. A little while later the weekly steel trade summaries will appear, and on Friday Wall street will have for its perusal another monthly statement setting forth the unfilled tonnage on the books of the steel corporation. It will be recalled that the current decline in stocks had its inception shortly after the last tonnage statement of the steel corporation came out on September 10. After the closing on Friday the government crop report setting forth the condition of wheat, corn and other grains will be on hand.

In these days when gloom is almost universal, and particularly so in the financial district, it is heartening to run across figures that indicate clearly the wheels of progress are still turning. Recent conditions in the commodity markets have tended to emphasize unfavorable statistics at the expense of more encouraging figures. It develops that since the statistical year started July 1, 119,379,000 bushels of wheat have been cleared for export from the United States and Canada to and including October 2, against 83,277,000 bushels in the same period a year ago. In the week ended with that date exports reached 6,389,000 bushels, against 4,649,000 bushels in the same week last year. From August 1 to date, cotton exports aggregate 1,324,000 bales, as against 1,115,000 bales in the same period of the previous statistical year.

The action of the market through yesterday set forth plainly the fact that dribbling liquidation was the main force driving prices lower. To be sure, there is plenty of evidence of fresh selling for speculative account, but such pressure was without much effect on stocks except when sporadic liquidation made its appearance. Moreover, the spectacle of the so-called pivotal shares in various groups slipping grudgingly but steadily to progressively lower levels appeared to sustain the generally held belief that real liquidation was in progress. How far this selling came from individuals and to what extent it represented the selling of trusts could not, of course, be ascertained. But report had it that at least two big investment organizations were letting go of substantial amounts of high-grade description.

Wall street has heard estimates of earnings of around $7 a share for International Cement for the current year, which would leave a good margin over the $4 a share annual dividend requirements. Interests identified with the organization state that the foreign business has been good, and that projects planned in several South American countries promise continued good business.

Judging from comments heard recently, many market interests are inclined to favor electric equipment issues when considering the advisability of taking long positions through scale buying on the reactions. Despite the business depression, it is contended that the future of companies such as General Electric and Westinghouse Electric is assured. Although earnings may be affected for a time, it is felt that eventually those concerns again will be doing a steadily increasing business.

Commission houses report that outside business has increased moderately in the past week. Early in the period, rather active liquidation took place, but later in the week buying exceeded the small amount of selling. That was true again on Saturday. Professionals and floor traders, who are contributing approximately 75 per cent to the daily transactions, covered shorts in the first hour Saturday. Later, they resumed their selling tactics and pressed some of the pivotal stocks on the market. That element sold on balance.

Industrial Rayon Plants at Capacity

CLEVELAND, Oct. 7.—Industrial Rayon Corporation is operating at capacity both in its Cleveland and Covington, Va., plants according to Hiram S. Rivitz, president. The company has been offered more business than it can handle for the rest of the year, according to Mr. Rivitz.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Heavy selling of utilities, especially issues of companies having connections in Brazil, featured a general decline on the curb market today. Trading was in substantial volume.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

DAILY TRUE STORY

Galloping Fish

Gormley, the vaudeville booking agent, sat in his office and stared glumly at the photographs on his walls.

He would have stared glumly at anything.

Anyone who depends on vaudeville for an income stares glumly these days.

However, Gormley had a certain amount of booking in the game, or what is left of it, and he was surfeited with applicants.

Once he used to fairly beg for headliners to come under his booking banner. Now he couldn't book a fraction of them. You not only had to be good to get anything—you had to be better than good.

As Gormley stared and scowled and wondered whether vaudeville would fade away entirely or ever revive, a rather timid appearing man entered.

"Nothing," Gormley said, without looking up.

"Something," the man answered pleasantly.

This made Gormley look up.

"I never seen you, who are you?" he growled.

"Tibbetts—Andrew Tibbetts."

"Never heard of you, what do you think you can do?"

"Not a thing—Hortense does it."

"You're one of them guys who lives off his woman, eh?"

"You got me wrong——"

"Wife, then."

"Do I look like a guy who would marry a seal?"

Gormley chewed on his cigar and stared at Mr. Andrew Tibbetts.

"My gawd — trying to break into the game these times with a gallopin' fish!"

"Hortense is good," Mr. Tibbetts said.

"Hortense could be sainted, and she couldn't get bookin. Goodbye."

"Bet you real money you'll book me and Hortense."

"Nobody's got real money in this game, and I wouldn't take a sure thing—goodbye."

Booked By Agent

Mr. Tibbetts handed Mr. Gormley a note. He read it. His eyes popped, then they squinted.

"Phoney—the Big Guy wouldn't write no such thing," he muttered and grabbed his telephone. He got the Big Guy, who bossed all that was left of vaudeville that was worth while, and he said, "Would-be funny guy here with a gallopin' fish, name's Tibbetts, he's faked a letter from you—huh?—Wha-a-at?—Oh, certainly, certainly, my error, yes sir, I'll slip him in—what? That outfit's fixed—all right, all right, I'll fix it."

He turned and made a face at Mr. Tibbetts. He thought he was smiling, but it had been so long since he had smiled that he really made faces.

"I hand it to you, Mister—you got pull enough to run a speakeasy in a corner of the Anti-Saloon League office. You and your gallopin' fish is booked."

Mr. Andrew Tibbetts didn't seem surprised or elated. He nodded.

"When and with what bunch?"

"First of next month, with the Ming-tu-Wong outfit."

"Wrong. I'm booked for next Monday with the Aerieletta outfit."

Gormley nodded slowly.

"You win—you had it cut and dried—"

"What I don't like," Tibbetts said suddenly, "is this: my friend Kethbee told you to book me with Aerieletta's crowd and you tried to shunt me over to the Chink magician outfit. I go with Aerieletta — wherever she shows. I show—if you don't believe it, ask Kethbee how about your franchise?"

"No offense," Gormley hastened to say. He saw that this man Tibbetts knew all about it and stood No. 1 Boy with the great Kethbee.

And so "The Great Hortense" was booked along with Tibbetts. Tibbetts got the money. Hortense got the fish during and after each of her performances.

The show opened in Cleveland.

Aerieletta, in private life Miss Kate Dugan, was a solo trapeze artist, and she was mighty good. She had a marvelous voice and added singing that alone would have put her over without her trapeze stunts. When she discovered that Sari Romonoff (Sally Donovan in private life) and her trained dogs had been switched and an unknown with a trained seal put in Sari's place, Aerieletta was furious.

She started to take it out on Tibbetts.

Falls in Love

"What gets me," she said, in the wings, when Tibbetts was putting Hortense through her stunts—and she said it loud enough for him to hear, "is how any life-sized man can make a poor seal do flip-flops and draw money for it, just as though he was talented himself.

Andrew Tibbetts heard. He made no attempt to get back at Aerieletta.

Seeing that he was madly in love with her, he wouldn't start any argument, at least until he got better acquainted.

Whenever Aerieletta did her breath-stopping stunts on the high trapeze, Tibbetts joined in with the outside applause, from back of the wings where he always watched her do her act.

Aerieletta did not reciprocate. When Tibbetts finished putting Hortense through her wheezing, balancing tank stunts and tossed her some food, Aerieletta always said, for Tibbetts to hear—"Poor fish—both of them!"

When Tibbetts and Aerieletta became well enough acquainted for him to call her Miss Dugan, he always would say, "I think your act is wonderful."

She would always say, "I think yours is lousy!"

And she meant it.

Once, out for some eats between shows, Aerieletta said to Winnie Hecksher, the dancer, "Honest, I believe I'd rather marry an acrobat than a guy who gets his flop and scoffin money out of a poor seal."

Tibbetts was at the next table; Aerieletta said it for his ears.

So, regardless of how madly Tibbetts loved Miss Dugan—Aerieletta—it was quite one-sided, and he apparently had no more chance of awakening any tender emotions in her for himself than he had of finding a show town in these legally dry United States where he couldn't get a quart within 15 minutes after arriving.

They got to arguing, finally.

Tibbetts was human, after all, and he decided to fight back a little.

"A galloping fish, Andy," she would say, "is the lowest form of amusement."

"Wrong. A seal is educational, clean and lovable, and, moreover, he is entertaining, especially to children—the children love him."

"Horse-feathers," Miss Dugan would reply.

"I thrill 'em, my stuff takes muscle, nerve, talent."

"It takes no talent to teach a seal to know that if he balances a ball on his nose he gets a fish."

Aerieletta Embarrassed

"Your act scares 'em—especially the kiddies—they gasp and scream and are frightened, or else they go home and make a trapeze and fall down and bust their little clavicles."

Miss Dugan glared and blushed.

"Vulgarity is never wit," she said, coldly.

"The clavicle is the handy little bones that hitches your shoulder blade to your breastbone, and not what you think, Miss Dugan."

"I detest you," she cried, to cover her embarrassment.

"Hortense loves me, and Hortense amuses the children without frightening them or anything worse, and if they want to imitate him and balance big balls on their noses that doesn't hurt like falling from a homemade trapeze and fracturing their femurs——"

"Can't you be decent?"

"The femur is the longest bone in the human body—except, perhaps, your skull," Tibbets said, finally losing his temper.

And so they argued and quarreled.

Tibbetts' act made no especial hit, and Gormley tried to drop him. He did write him to that effect once, and got a letter from Kethbee to keep Tibbetts in if he wanted to continue in the booking business.

Aerieletta sometimes introduced Tibbetts back stage as "A seal's chambermaid."

Tibbetts would come back at her with, "Aerieletta, graceful as a swallow, lighter than a feather — especially in the head."

It was in St. Louis that Aerieletta's stuff was late in arriving.

She just had time to dash on, after it had been put up "back of one," and start her act, without testing everything, as she should have done.

It was when she was in the short, inner trapeze away up in the top of the stage, swinging vigorously for momentum enough to do a back flip and catch the bar below, that a catch snapped from its holding and she shot downward.

Tibbetts was watching her from the wings.

He leaped out about a foot on the stage and braced himself, all in a flash, his arms extended.

Aerieletta was hurled directly upon him.

Down they went, falling back of the wings.

Taken to Hospital

"Get up and take a bow—they'll think it is part of your act," Tibbetts ordered her.

She did, and got a great hand.

The curtain at "two" dropped. Aerieletta saw that something was wrong.

They were carrying Tibbetts off the stage.

He had lost consciousness after he told her to run on and take a bow.

The doctor came. Tibbetts was taken to a hospital.

Aerieletta, as herself, Katie Dugan, followed him.

"Clavicle and femur fractured," the doctor told her.

After he came out of the anesthetic and saw her he nodded.

"Take care of Hortense for me, Katie—" and he whispered directions for feeding.

She cared for Hortense. She remained over and let the show go on, and when Tibbetts could hobble about she tried to thank him.

"And I like your galloping fish, Andy," she confessed.

"Let's get married as soon as I'm well, Katie."

"Sure, but it's a rotten reward to you for saving my life, and I've lost my nerve, can't even perform again, Andy."

"We'll go back to New York—I'm no professional. I just took my pet seal and went along with you because I fell for you. I own a string of hotels—but we'll live in a private house and keep Hortense—she always amuses children and perhaps, well perhaps—"

"Why not?" Katie Dugan asked.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON HUMAN BEHAVIOR

We dislike always to be harping about human behavior. But when someone sends us a snapshot like the above, we cannot resist from repeating our warning against the practice of permitting strange ladies to let gentlemen occupy the only chair. Of course, this woman pretends that she is the respectable citizen's true friend. But whilst she is whispering honeyed words into his ear, and giving his whiskers a finger wave, she pours the knockout potion into his ice water. It would not be surprising to find, on awakening, that the old gentleman's wallet has been relieved of his money, lodge cards and return trip ticket.

Liberals Admit Public Utilities Are Issue

The Sun-Telegraph does not uphold prohibition, Nevertheless, it is for Gifford Pinchot, a dry, for Governor. It is for Pinchot because it regards the other issues in the gubernatorial campaign as more important than the candidates' personal views on the liquor question, and, in particular, because it finds Pinchot's stand in regard to the public utilities and the coal and iron police question more satisfactory that the stand of John M. Hemphill, the Democratic and Liberal candidate, on these matters.

Notwithstanding that the Governor can do little or nothing to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment or modify the Volstead Act, that being the province of Congress, the Liberal Party has tried to make the voters believe that prohibition is the big issue of the campaign—and that notwithstanding the fact that the Liberal Party, professing to be anti-dry, has offered the voters no anti-dry candidates for Congress.

It is gratifying now, however, to see the Big Business men who are backing the Liberal Party coming into the open, throwing off the mask, and admitting that they are against Pinchot because he proposes to make the public utilities treat the people of Pennsylvania more fairly in their rates and in their service.

Philemon Dickinson, Philadelphia banker, who is chairman of the Liberal Party's finance committee; Samuel Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; John Hampton Barnes, Pennsylvania Railroad attorney, and other corporation men who are supporting Hemphill, have not concealed the fact that they are against Pinchot because of his attitude towards the public utilities and the coal companies rather than because of his dryness. Clarence Dorrance, Liberal state chairman, says plainly that the public utilities and the railroads are fighting Pinchot.

This throwing aside of the camouflage is to be welcomed. Let the fight be waged around the real issues—whether or not the rapacious public utilities are to be curbed, whether or not the coal and iron police system is to be abolished, whether or not the Philadelphia gang is to rule Pennsylvania.

Fate of New Railroad Rests With Commission

Pittsburgh will be given a new railroad bringing the city 75 miles nearer to New York City and $177,000,000 will be spent for construction purposes in this state if the Interstate Commerce Commission permits L. F. Loree, veteran railroad president backed by the Harriman interests, to go ahead with the project.

When finished the 344-mile line will be the only major railroad built on thoroughly modern principles. It will have lower grades and lighter curves than any existing route to the East. It will operate at lower costs. It will reduce the time necessary to move Pittsburgh's products to Eastern points.

On November 18 the Interstate Commerce Commission will conduct hearings at Washington on Loree's application.

C. V. Burnside, assistant director of finance for the commission, after hearing evidence in the case, has made a report recommending that the application be denied.

The report is a peculiar document. After reviewing the benefits to be derived from the new line it admits that the railroad is needed and that it should be built, but declares that Loree should not be allowed to do it. It recommends that the other railroads, which have been fighting Loree's plan, be allowed to make the improvement.

Pittsburgh wants the railroad for the aid it will be to its industries and for the benefits to be derived from the expenditure of a large part of $177,000,000 in this district. The city does not particularly care who builds the line providing someone starts to work.

If the other railroads were willing to go ahead with the project, Commissioner Burnside's recommendation would not be objectionable.

But the other carriers have made no such offer. They have merely opposed the plan because the line will compete with their own systems.

In view of the fact that Commissioner Burnside has recognized the need for the line, it is difficult to understand his rejection of the proposal of a thoroughly competent railroad man when no one else has offered to provide the needed service.

It is to be hoped that the commission will recognize the unfairness of such a stand and that it will not follow the Burnside recommendation.

Religion to Be Argued Without Fear of Riot

Some of the saloons used to display signs warning their patrons that discussions of religion and politics would not be permitted. The saloonkeepers had learned by sad experience that religious and political arguments often ended in fights. It was unfortunate that this was so, because there is nothing more interesting or important to intelligent people than religion and politics.

So far as religion is concerned, we appear to have made progress. A Protestant, a Catholic, a Jew and an agnostic are to defend their faiths (or, in the case of the agnostic, his lack of one) on the stage of Carnegie Music Hall tonight, and there is not the slightest expectation of a riot.

This changed attitude may be due to growth of broad-mindedness. On the other hand, it may be that people do not take their religion as seriously as they once did.

It is doubtful if the time has yet arrived when a Communist and an Anarchist could air their views on the same stage as a Republican and a Democrat, and before a mixed audience, without causing trouble.

SUN TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

1—A better, cleaner, more beautiful city.
2—Rapid Transit.
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law."
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
5—Community Fund for charities.
6—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.
7—Voting machines to insure honest elections.
8—Development of river transportation.
9—Development of air transportation.
10—Electrification of railroads.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The European Situation

Our diplomats should take a lesson from Paul Revere. When a fight started he had a hoss.

There's going to be trouble over in Europe. They're measuring peace for a war right now.

First of all, Mussolini wants more territory. And he doesn't want it miniature.

Tardieu carries epaulets on both shoulders when he states that France must come first in everything. Especially to the bank.

The Spaniards in Madrid hooted Alfonso. He couldn't tune his ears out.

Hitler, of Germany, says that Germany must conquer Russia in one of those laughing mergers that makes everybody cry.

So you can see that peace looks thinner than the telephone book that 16 barbers are using to wipe their razors on.

It's flatter than the city directory with all the Joneses and Smiths taken out.

The Soviets have dumped their apple cart on the world. And have gone back for another load.

When you stick your nose into the lions' cage you better be wearing a false face.

So far as peace talk is concerned we have heard better sounds coming out of a dog house.

Europe hasn't had war for 12 years. And it's lonely.

That narrow gauge optimism looks pretty on the dotted line. But 15 different nations on one continent are too many. Of all the bricklayers on the Tower of Babel not one of them joined the union.

We have some beautiful ideas about peace. But it's like giving a mustache cup to a bird with a full beard. No matter what we say he's going to get his whiskers wet.

We have some stray diplomats over in Switzerland now. We're very fortunate when they're on the golf links.

There's going to be war in Europe inside of 10 years. The peace talk shows that.

And fun's fun. But blackjacks ain't tuning forks.

METEORITES

By Archibald Henderson

Although the universe is filled with countless bodies, beyond our powers of computation, it is an extraordinary fact that the earth has almost no contact with the outside universe. The contacts are made through light, in the form of heat or solar and stellar radiation, and through meteors. It is customary to call meteors by the popular name, shooting stars; but this name is properly applied only to the smaller meteors. If the meteors are exceptionally brilliant, they are sometimes called fireballs.

These highly brilliant meteors travel sometimes with high detonation in the immediate neighborhood of the earth. For instance, such a meteor exploded about 1 o'clock in the afternoon of July 13, 1927, in the neighborhood of Tilden, Ill. This meteor was traveling, it was estimated, at the rate of about 30 miles per second. It came from the southeast and at an angle of about 50 degrees from the horizontal. Many people heard the three explosions and a loud humming in the air, but thought it was an airplane, backfiring, as it passed overhead.

Three aerolites were found, masses weighing 9, 46 and 110 pounds respectively. The largest mass penetrated the hard, yellow clay to a depth of 48 inches. The story of this meteor and the three meteorites found has been scientifically told in an interesting monograph, The Tilden Meteorites, by A. R. Crook and O. C. Farrington. These are the only meteorites ever known to have been found in Illinois.

Meteors are confidently believed by scientists to be fragments of suns or worlds. They are stones, lumps of metal—in general, cosmic particles wandering through space in countless numbers. The visible shooting star or fireball is called a meteor; the actual mass is called the meteorite. Like all other bodies in the stellar universe, meteorites move through space under the influence of the force of gravitation.

As described by Thomas in Heaven and Earth, meteors are bodies which rush, say, into the atmosphere of the earth, compress the air in front of them, and striking thus on this cushion of dense air, ignite. They burn for a few seconds only; and while they burn they are meteors. Most meteors burn to ash, which vanishes in the air. Only a few very stubborn meteorites fall to earth as meteoric stones. In the larger museums one can often see gigantic specimens of such stones. Two very large meteorites are those which fell at Youngadin in Australia and at Tucumana in Mexico. The first of these weighs about 1,800 pounds, the second 15 tons.

The number of such meteors traveling through space is almost unbelievable. It has been estimated by scientists that a thousand million meteoric particles collide with the earth's atmosphere every 24 hours. All but the very largest of these, which are moving at the slowest rates of speed, are burned in the atmosphere.

In 1867 a meteor traveling at a speed of some 35 miles a second, caught up with the earth, itself speeding along at the rate of about 20 miles a second. A small fragment of this meteor, in other words a tiny meteorite, was picked up where it landed in Central Poland. This meteorite moved toward the earth in a hyperbolic orbit, showing that it entered the solar system from outer space. The age of this tiny meteorite is estimated as about one hundred thousand million years. It is believed to be older than the earth itself!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I wonder if Prof. John Dewey was laughing up his very wise sleeve when he named his new book—"THE QUEST FOR CERTAINTY."

As questors for Certainty we Americans hold all records. Other peoples are content to accept life as it comes, a mess or a muddle, and make the best of it. But we are convinced that there's a Perfect Solution somewhere, if we look far enough.

Certainty . . . a fool proof, guaranteed formula for perfect happiness and success . . . we dream of it as little children dream of miraculous candy shops with inexhaustible jars of lollipops. Some day we'll find that formula. And when we find it, all our questions will be answered, all our problems will be solved, all our troubles will cease. Life will thenceforth be as simple as a game of tiddledywinks.

So before we're barely out of the cradle, we begin looking for Certainty. And some assure us that it can only be found in a certain brand of Religion. And others advocate a new branch of politics . . . or psychology . . . or physical training. Even the ads tell us the How, Which and When of the Perfect Life. Buy a Certain Mouth Wash...or Chewing Gum...or Cigaret...or Collar...or Automobile Tire... and all your dreams will come true.

And this belief in the Perfect Panacea is no passing whimsy of the American mind. It is as deep rooted as the Puritanical conviction of God. It is, indeed, our twentieth century conception of God. No longer do we worship a Jehovah of blood 'n' thunder. Such rough stuff is out-of-date. Nowadays we want a nice, obliging God who knows his onions and will help us get success easy, as a gentleman should.

All of which, of course, is childish nonsense. THERE IS NO CERTAINTY. There is no program for the perfect life . . . there is no panacea for human ills. No one can tell you what is the right way to live. Nor will you ever, however hard you may strive, stumble upon any method which will wipe out your weakness and restlessness and fill you with joy and content.

For life is not arranged that way. Life is, in its very nature a vague restless affair . . . always groping . . . always tearing down and building up . . . always going on . . . never satisfied, never finished. Life is never certain. Life never arrives. Life never settles things.

And God, if there is a God—and I, for one, believe there is—is a Going Business, too, who needs all infinity to house his magnificent unrest.

If you would like a full life, stop looking for a simple or certain one. Stop trying to put yourself and the world in order. Abandon yourself to the vast disorder of creation. Stop fretting because you're restless and bewildered and hungry and rebellious. Stop thinking that these are sick, unnatural conditions. Realize that they are THE RIGHT CONDITIONS OF GROWTH. REALIZE THAT THE ONLY GROWING LIFE IS THE UNCERTAIN LIFE.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

When Song Wells Up

The song that soars like a bird's betrays
The singer's heart,
Though there be little of depth in its ways
And less of art.

When song wells up from the lips of a child,
Bird-gay, bird-free,
Life's rapture rings there, undefiled,
Earth's sudden glee.

It is as though a door swung out
On vista blue,
As though joy's tides in a lyric shout
Came flooded through.

It is as though the sound revealed
Lost dreams again;
As if, with crystal notes, it healed
An old, old pain.

So ever the simplest songs are most sweet
In all men's ears,
And the rhythm of their lilting lines will beat
Down distant years.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

I.—The Scale of the Universe.

Again we apply our hundred-fold multiplication. An inch now represents only 1,000,000 years. Our page takes in most of the time since the beginning of the Pliocene (V D); the whole Ice Age (V E) occupies about half an inch. Magnify once more, again by 100, and an inch represents 10,000 years.

H. J. Wells

Within two inches is included all the time there has been since the final retreat of the ice of the last great Ice Age, and within this space man, as we shall describe, has evolved from his Old Stone Age habits to modern civilization.

The time since the discovery of America by Columbus is represented by about one twentieth of an inch. Magnify by a hundred once more and our inches become centuries.

She can, however, point to facts and ideas which bear on their reasonableness.

She can, for instance, justifiably turn to the theologian and reason as follows: If the natural selection of random variations is the main agency of Evolution, then Evolution receives a scientific explanation in terms of known natural forces.

It receives as natural an explanation as does the pressure of air through the impact of its myriad separate molecules, as envisaged by the kinetic theory of gases, or the formation of sulphuric acid from heated iron pyrites, steam and the fumes of nitric acid through the atomic theory and the laws of chemical combination.

Not only is the fact that Evolution looks purposeful no proof that there is true purpose behind it; but if there is real purpose behind it, there must be real purpose behind the transformations of dead matter, too.

The biologist can also point out that evolution, whether looked at as a whole or in detail, is very far from coming up to what we might expect if it were in truth the realization of some exterior cosmic purpose.

Firstly, it is extremely slow. Then the method of selection is not only slow, but wasteful, and, in higher animals at least, involves great suffering. Worst of all, it has achieved much that seems definitely bad.

Evolution has deprived barnacles and oysters of movement and brain; it has produced the female mantis, who begins eating her mate during the act of pairing; it has generated the blood-thirsty land-leeches and mosquitoes, and fitted the ichneumon-fly grub to devour its living caterpillar prey slowly, from the inside; it has brought into being not only strong, intelligent and beautiful creatures, but also degenerate parasites and loathsome diseases.

In brief, we are confronted with the gravest theological difficulties if we too light-heartedly set out to see purpose in evolution. The wiser and saner course is to acknowledge our ignorance of ultimate causes and designs.

If we do so, then, while frankly confessing that we do not understand what may be behind Evolution, we can yet appreciate at fullest value what it has achieved and seek to turn its further progress into channels that seem good to us.

For when we reach man, Evolution does in part become purposeful. It has at least the possibility of becoming purposeful, because man is the first product of Evolution who has the capacity for long-range purpose, the first to be capable of controlling evolutionary destiny.

Human purpose is one of the achievements of evolution.

Human purpose has arisen as a product of the mechanical workings of variation and selection. But now that consciousness has awakened in life, it has at last become possible to hope for a speedier and less wasteful method of evolution, a method based on foresight and deliberate planning instead of the old, slow method of blind struggle and blind selection.

At present that is no more than a hope. But human knowledge and power have grown very marvelously during the last few hundred years.

The multitude of our race living today still does not know of more than a minute fraction of what is known to man, nor dream yet of the things he may presently do.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Although they say time softens such a blow, any effort to comment upon the recent passing of Will C. Hogg in Baden-Baden, Germany, brings a fierce choke. One of my dearest friends, he was the most impulsively noble and steadfastly loyal gentleman I ever encountered. No person could be more widely beloved.

I loved him as few could love their favorite brother. For 12 years our lives have been almost constant companionship. About ten years older, he was my guide, my counsellor, my friend. His mind, his vitality, his varied resourcefulness were magnificent. He had a lightning temper. His sweetness was childlike. He was a man!

Just three months ago, after knocking around Europe all summer together, we exchanged rowdy farewells in Berlin. "So long, you big stiff!" I called out the Bremen boat train window. He glanced about quickly, thumbing his nose slyly, turned and was swallowed up by station crowds as the train thundered away.

Then the other week came that distressing cable from his sister: "Brother has undergone an emergency operation." There were three days of waiting anguish and came from the patient himself, a typical cable: "Don't speak of my unemployment." And while our hopes ran high, the thunderclap news of the end.

He was superlatively civic conscious and spent largely of his vast wealth in beautifying his native Houston, but always from an obscure anonymity. Until several years ago there was not a newspaper in the Texas city in which he was deservedly known as "the first citizen" that had his picture in its filing room.

Due to my personal manner of writing it was next to impossible not to mention him in my trivialities but it always vexed him. Often in a flush of anger he would exclaim: "If you run my name in your blankety-blank column again I'm going to slap you down." And I trust he forgives this attempt at eulogy.

The son of an illustrious sire, Gov. James Hogg, he had that fixation for right so frequently characteristic of sons of great men. Outwardly gruff and at times poetically profane, inwardly there was no phase of altruism he did not possess. The rascals remain but the worthy go on. It is all inscrutable.

No person I ever knew was such a human anomaly as Will Hogg. He was at once the cosmopolite and the backwoods Jasper. He was an art collector of distinction, his collection of Remingtons being the largest in the world, his knowledge of period furniture profound. He divided time among his Park avenue home, old world capitals and his beautiful estate, "Bayou Banks," in Houston. Yet I have seen him hunched over a steaming bowl of chili in a sawdust joint eating with the gusto of a starving tramp. He would endure tortures of jerk-water railroads to see a county fair. He carried cooks from Texas all over the world to have a daily supply of corn pone for himself and friends. Always his friends—he lived solely for them and his brothers and sister.

Two of his very closest intimates were Irvin Cobb and Ed J. Nolan, a Los Angeles banker. There is no one outside his immediate family for whom Cobb bears such affection as he does for "Bilog"—as he signed himself. Cobb hurried home from a shooting trip in North Carolina upon hearing the news—a tragic, stricken and inarticulate humorist whose despairing grief is born of the same selfishness as Nolan's and my own. The world can never be the same place for any one of us with Will Hogg not here.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You wonder at times why you are not a greater success.

In school you were numbered among the upper third.

Others had to dig for what they got, but you never seemed to study.

Perhaps you learned to be mentally lazy on that account.

It was so easy for you to maintain a place ahead of the rest in school that you imagined life would be just like that—you could get along with little effort.

If you have given sensible thought to the subject you have realized that worthwhile results mean a commensurate amount of work.

You are bound to meet others as bright as you are and be in constant competition with them.

This does not mean that you compete for knowledge but for the application of the knowledge you both have gained.

You cannot win a place in the sun unless you use your brains intelligently.

Mental exercise to be worthwhile must be increasingly stronger.

You found it easy to acquire knowledge, now it is how to use the facts.

You can't lie down on the job just because you were an "A" student and could keep your grades high with the best of them.

Now it is life and you must find a personally unique way to use the knowledge a great many others possess as well as you and success comes from using your mental equipment better than the other fellow.
